Bulgarian Claims U. S. Plans Bases In Greece

Near East Designs Are 'Open Secret,' Official Spokesman Tells U. N. Group

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 2.—The United States plans to set up air and naval bases in Greece "to make its influence felt in the Near East," an official Bulgarian spokesman told the Assembly's political committee today.

The charge was made just one day after the United States established diplomatic relations with the Communist government in Sofia.

The Bulgarian, Nissim Mevorah, said it was "an open secret" and "an undeniable fact" that the United States planned such bases on Greek soil. To prove his charge he said it had appeared in "the newspapers" and had been repeated "by persons in high official positions."

Deny Aiding Guerillas

The accusation was one of many against the United States made by the Bulgarian and also by Theodor Heba of Albania today. The two Balkan Communist spokesmen used the entire morning session of the Assembly's committee to reply to the American complaint that their governments were helping guerillas in Greece.

Mevorah, for Bulgaria, said his country had given asylum to refugees" crossing the border from Greece, but denied giving them arms, ammunition or training. Nothing in the Greek border situation constitutes a menace to peace, he said, and he accused the United States of deliberately creating the impression of a threat to Greece.

"This so-called 'troubled situation' would supply a good excuse to transform Greece into an armed camp of the the United States," he told the committee. "If, therefore, the American government succeeds in convincing the world that the territorial integrity of Greece is threatened and that the border incidents are signs that an invasion of Greece is imminent, then their intervention in Greece's internal affairs would seem justifiable."

Both Accuse Greece

Both he and the Albanian disclaimed any intention of agression against Greece, although both speakers accused the Greek government of aggressive designs against their countries. The Albanian was especially emphatic in recalling Greek territorial claims against his country.

Greece, he said, still considered herself in a state of war with Albania and was following an "expansionist policy."

The two Balkan spokesmen had been invited as witnesses, but without the right of participation in further debate. Even without them, the Political Committee will have plenty of speeches on the Greek issue in the next few days, for 23 nations have asked to speak before the debate is ended.

Girl Cheer Leader Suffers Strange Paralysis of Legs

Hope Henderson, 16, cheer leader at Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, Md., suffered a mysterious paralysis of her legs after a fall while practicing yesterday.

Sergt. Melvin Wheeler of the Montgomery County Police said the girl fell while practicing with other cheer leaders for today's football game with Georgetown Prep.

She got up and walked after her fall, but a short while later complained that she could not move her legs. Police rushed her to Washington Sanitarium in Takoma Park. A specialist from Washington was called to the hospital to diagnose the case.

The popular young cheer leader is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Henderson of 745 Thayer ave., Silver Spring.

U. S. Bars Russian Visitors At Aberdeen Ordnance Show

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., Oct. 2.—Military and press representatives of Russia and its satellites were conspicuously absent at a showing of American Army ordnance equipment held here today.

Close to 3000 United States industrialists, Army, Navy and Air Force officers, newsmen and foreign military attaches attended the annual demonstration of Army weapons held here each September for members of the Army Ordnance Association and invited guests.

Last year Soviet military and news representatives were invited and attended the ordnance show, an Army spokesman said. This year they were excluded and Army officers understood the bar was imposed by the United States Government in reaction to the recent refusal of Russia to admit a group of American Congressmen to Moscow.

At any rate, the Departments of State and Army—not the Ordnance Association — controlled foreign invitations, it was said.

Nothing outstanding in new weapons was unveiled which would rule out foreign observers on security grounds. In fact, about 100 military attaches from almost every other country so represented in Washington were on hand.

The capacity crowd, however, was considerably impressed by the array of new tanks, armored cars, self-propelled artillery, aerial bombs and infantry weapons put through their paces.

Contrasting with the latest equipment were such antiques as Gen. John J. Pershing's 1917 Locomobile staff car, a 3-ton Ford tank of the same vintage powered by Model T engines, and a 1922 imphibian forerunner of the "alligator." The latter, which resembled an aluminum bathtub, successfully completed a water test.

Among the new weapons and equipment demonstrated were:

A 2000-pound armor-piercing bomb with a rocket motor in the tail fins. Dropped by Flying Fortress in view of the assembled guests, its downward speed was accelerated by the rocket to achieve greater penetration before exploding.

Body armor made of thin sheets of aluminum and nylon. Forty-five caliber slugs were fired at a dummy wearing a vest of the metal. They went right through. With the addition of what looked like several thicknesses of women's hose, however, the vest stopped the bullets.

Sharp Rise in Serious Crime Shown in Barrett's Report

Serious crime rose sharply in the District during the fiscal year which ended June 30 as felonies increased by 45 per cent.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, submitted his annual report to the Commissioners yesterday and it showed:

1. That there were 12,280 felony cases during the fiscal year of 1947 as compared with 8426 felony cases the previous fiscal year.

2. That police cleared only 6237 of the 1947 fiscal year cases for a percentage of 50.1—a sharp drop from the 6050 cases cleared the previous year for a percentage of 71.8 per cent.

Barrett agreed in his report that the figures were "far from encouraging."

"There is a definite upward trend," he said, "particularly in the crimes of passion."

Unrest Nationwide

Barrett said that reports from other sections of the country show the unrest to be nationwide and not confined solely to this area.

"It is generally conceded," he said, "to be attributed to postwar readjustment and is very likely to increase for some years to come. After the initial readjustment is accomplished, economic conditions are expected to exert a strong influence on the crime rate."

The report disclosed that steps have been taken and are being taken to combat the rising tide of crime.

Barrett said that it is hoped within the next few years that the police force will have attained its goal of 2300 men. He said also that a thorough organization of the department has begun and is expected to be completed by December 31, 1947.

"A thorough survy of the organization of the department," he said, "shows that there is room for considerable improvement, but no defect has been revealed that cannot be corrected by the proposed organization.

Model Status Foreseen

"It is felt that before July 1, 1948, this department will be in a position to hold itself out as one of the most outstanding in the United States."

Police reached a low-water mark in clearing only 50.1 per cent of the felonies reported between July 1, 1946, and June 30, 1947. In 1940 there were 7382 felonies reported, 4883 cleared for a percentage of 66.1.

In 1941 the figures were 8463 cases, 5912 cleared, 69.8 per cent; in 1942, 8322 cases, 5439 cleared, 69.8 per cent; in 1943, 6807 cases, 4960 cleared, 72.9 per cent; in 1944, 6356 cases, 4974 cleared, 78.2 per cent, and in 1945, 6240 cases, 4829 cleared, 72.6 per cent.

Police placed the 12,280 felonies of fiscal year 1947 in eight categories.

There were 88 murders and 83

Examination Of D. C. Police Funds Ordered

Auditor Reveals Delay In Sending Welfare Money to Court

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

Examination of the financial records of all District police stations has been ordered by the District Auditor's office, it was learned yesterday.

Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton revealed this as an aftermath of disclosure of irregularities in the financial records of the Fourth Precinct.

Preliminary investigation by the auditor's office has revealed that welfare money was not transmitted promptly from the Fourth Precinct to the finance office at Juvenile Court. Some instances of several days' delay were uncovered.

Pilkerton refused to say whether the investigation had uncovered any shortages until complete report has been made. A shortage of $145 in welfare money was made up by policemen attached to the precinct.

Change in System Sought

Pilkerton said thta he would seek a conference with Juvenile Judge Fay Bentley as soon as she returns from her vacation in an effort to relieve the precincts of the job of accepting juvenile welfare payments.

A recommmendation to this effect has already been forwarded to Juvenile Court.

The Washington Post disclosed Saturday that the auditor's office had ordered an investigation of Fourth Precinct financial records after learnign that a shortage in juvenile funds had been made up.

The story also revealed that Pvt. Oscar L. Fisher, station clerk at the Fourth Precinct, who committed suicide on September 18, was behind in collection turn-ins for three police benefit associations ot the extent of more than $750.

The two investigators checking Fourth Precinct accounts moved their activities to Juvenile Court yesterday. In making their report to Pilkerton tehy disclosed that there were instances where money

Two Jewish Refugee Ships Seized by British Destroyers

Haifa, Palestine, Oct. 2 (U.P.)—British destroyers seized two refugee ships off Palestine tonight despite their desperate efforts to reach land with 3596 unauthorized Jewish immigrants by throwing out smoke screens and racing off on opposite zigzag courses.

Scores of RAF search planes and seven destroyers thwarted the vessels' efforts to escape a 36-hour sea and air surveillance.

An official British announcement in Jerusalem said the refugees would be deported to Cyprus and not returned to their point of origin, the Bulgarian port of Burgas.

One of the vessels, the Northland, renamed the Redemption, was taken in tow off Carmel Point near Haifa and was brought into port with its 1551 passengers at 10 p. m. They were immediately transferred to a ship bound for Cyprus.

The second ship, the Paducah, renamed the Jewish State, was intercepted 60 miles to the south off Tel Aviv with 2045 refugees aboard and was not expected to reach Haifa until Friday morning.

Thousands of British troops, including the crack "Red Devils" of the 6th Airborne Division, were brought into Haifa to guard against underground attacks when the refugees were being transferred to three British transports.

Brief reports said refugees on the Northland did not resist

Russia Plots Red Rule for All Korea

Order Outlines Steps to Be Taken When U. S., Soviet Troops Withdraw

A Communist government for all Korea which would "eliminate reactionaries immediately upon withdrawal of Soviet and American troops" is proposed in a Russian propaganda order intercepted by the United States and now under study here, it was learned yesterday.

Less than a week old, the order —which calls Americans "reactionaries" nad "war-mongers"— was described by one American propaganda expert as "the first clearcut evidence of the full-scale nature" of the newest Russian propaganda drive against the United States. Recently this has become even more vicious, including even a personal attack on the President.

U. S. Charge Confirmed

The "elimination" part of the directive was apparently full confirmation of this government's charge that the Russian proposal for withdrawal of both American and Russian troops from Korea is merely a subterfuge to pave the way for a Communist puppet government to take over the whole nation.

Directed to both the north (Russian) and the south (United States) zones of Korea, the order states the steps to be taken. It is propaganda order No. 342, dated September 27, and signed by Han Chong Sook, chief of the propaganda department of the North Korean Peoples Committee. It was broadcast that day from the North Korean radio station of Pyongyang.

Partial Text of Order

Part of the text of the order follows:

"In view American delegation's dilatory tactics in joint commission and General Shtikov's proposal of September 26 for mutual troop withdrawal, chief of provincial propaganda department are instructed to distribute his proposal far and wide on large scale and be guided as follows:

"1. Instruct peoples' committees and broadcasting stations to publicize full text of proposal three or four times in succession.

"2. Publicize in press and over radio favorable reactions by members of Peoples' Front.

"3. Report immediately to propaganda bureau reactions to Shtikov's proposal and Vishinsky's statement at United Nations.

"4. Lecture committee members and propaganda workers to be given immediately two-day lecture course and dispatched by experienced committee members in provinces, cities, counties and subcounties to spread among the people the proposal and Vishinsky's report.

"5. Monopolize all organs of political parties, social organizations and propaganda workers to become active and assist.

"6. Main points in the statements to be highlighted are as follows:

'Propagandize Soviet Policy'

"A. Explain and propagandize Soviet policy for peace and security by comparing same with reactionary American war-mongering policy.

"B. Explain and propagandize Soviet's sincere efforts and policy to establish a united democratic Korea by exposing and drawing comparision with reactionary American plotting and unfaithful acts by American delegation to sabotage Moscow decision for purpose of colonizing Korea.

Bums Score First Series Win, 9 to 8

Dodgers Almost Blow 6-Run Lead In Debut at Home; Newsom Blasted

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Brooklyn, Oct. 2.—Brooklyn's Bums restored themselves to better standing in this rabid community and the World Series today in a knockdown, drag-out battle with the Yankees, dragging a narrow 9-8 victory out of the slugging affray.

An apprehensive mob of 33,098 Brooklyn fans sweated out the longest game in World's Series history—a three-hour-and-five-minute contest, in which the Dodgers all but blew a 6-0 lead.

This third game of the series had everything, including the first pinchhit homerun in World Series history, by Yogi Berra of the Yankees, and the game produced Brooklyn's first hero of the series.

He was burly, 34-year-old Hugh Casey, who moved out to the mound as Brooklyn's third pitcher and closed the gates on the Yanks, who had knocked Joe Hatten and Ralph Branca out of the box.

Mighty Casey Takes Charge

Berra's massive swat off Branca over the scoreboard in right centerfield cut the Dodgers' lead to 9-8 with one out in the seventh, and then it was that the frantic Bums called on the Mighty Casey. He took charge, and held the Yanks to one futile hit from that point on.

And so it's the Dodgers trailing now, only two games to one in the series, and operating tomorrow again in their home lot.

The threat of a rout by the Yankees is averted, but the Dodgers' pitching schedule is fouled up for tomorrow's fourth game. Against Floyd Bevens, who is expected to start for the Yankees, Brooklyn Manager Burt Shotton may unveil Rookie Harry Taylor.

The Yankees threw five pitchers into the game in a futile effort to overcome the Dodgers six-run bombardment of Buck Newsom and Rookie Vic Raschi in the second inning.

Big Buck Pretty Sorry

Newsom's first World Series start for the Yankees was a sorry thing. The big guy scraped past a scoreless first inning, but he couldn't last out the second. The Dodgers packed six hits into that inning against Newsom and Raschi, three of them two-baggers by Carl Furillo, Bruce Edwards and Eddie Stanky.

Karl Drews, the Yankees' third pitcher, got it, too. And so did the veteran Spud Chandler. The Yankees scored in five consecutive innings starting with the second, but until Joe Page appeared on the scene in the sixth, the New York pitchers were giving runs back to the Dodgers.

Joe DiMaggio inserted a two-run homer into the upper stands of center field in the fifth to cut the Dodgers' lead to 9-6 at that point and in the sixth they came up with another run. Berra's long swat narrowed the Brooklyn margin to one run in the seventh, but from that point the Yanks were a gone gang.

The eighth inning was only slightly less painful for the Yankees than the Dodgers' six-run second. That was the inning when it appeared that the Yanks had Casey on the ropes, with the tying run on second, the potential winning run on first with none out. And then the Yankees flunked out.

Casey walked Tommy Henrich to open that eighth and then Manager

Judge Orders Longshoremen To End Walkout at Albany

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Federal Judge Stephen Brennan today signed an order, under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, temporarily restraining about 150 members of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association from continuing a strike in the port of Albany—the first such move since the new legislation went into effect.

The strike had blocked grain shipments to Europe, delivery of fuel oil to various New York State communities, and had threatened a curtailment of operations in paper mills, the Government said.

The order is returnable October 7 in the United States Court House in Syracuse, N. Y.

Charles T. Douds, director of the second region of the National Labor Relations Board, who announced the signing of the restraining order, said it was the first time such an order had been issued since the Taft-Hartley law went into effect.

He said it was similar to the action taken by the Government against John L. Lewis, president of the AFL United Mine Workers, to compel him to send miners back to work last spring.

The strike, according to the petition, was brought about as a result of a dispute between Trailerships, Inc., which on August 15 started water service between Albany and New oYrk for loaded truck trailers, and Local 294, AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The Longshoremen called a strike as a retaliatory measure against the Teamsters because of their refusal to handle the truck trailers.

Then, Cargill, Inc., grain shippers, filed a complaint against the Longshoremen, charging the strike interfered with the shipment of grain to Europe.

According to the petition, the operation of Trailerships would reduce employment of the Teamsters and provide employment for members of the Longshoremen's Association.

The Teamsters, the petition said, demanded from their employers "standby" pay "as a condition for delivering truck trailers to trailerships, Inc." As a result of the action by the Teamsters, the petition said, Trailerships was forced to discontinue and to discharge its crews who were members of the ILA.

In beginning the strike, the ILA declared an intention to bring pressure on the mayor of Albany, Erastus Corning, and other Gov-

Bus Fare Hikes Are Granted Arnold Lines

Arlington, Fairfax Runs up 5 and 10 Cents; Appeal Time Given

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized Arnold Bus Lines to make fare increases of 5 and 10 cents for its service to Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Virginia.

However, the ICC required the company to give 10 days' notice before such fares may become effective.

The 10 days' notice provision was added to the order late yesterday after opponents of the increased fares had requested time to petition for a review of the case by the full commission.

The order provided 5-cent cash increases for the first, second, third and fifth zones and 10 cents for the fourth zone, while the rate in the sixth zone is unchanged.

Tokens at Four for 50 cents

The issuance of tokens at four for 50 cents was also provided for in the order. The tokens could be used in all zones in lieu of the first 12½ cents of the fare. If tokens are used, the increases would amount to 2½ cents and 7½ cents intead of 5 and 10 cents, respectively, over present fares.

Increases allowed were the same as asked for by the company, which is also known as the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co., in hearings last June.

The commission order set aside the recommendation made by an ICC examiner two months ago for increases in the first and fourth zones only.

Pentagon Run Excluded

Fares between Washington and the Pentagon, a route taken over by Arnold beginning on April 1 when Capital Transit service was withdrawn, are not affected by the order. The ICC noted a "strong indication that the added traffic from the Pentagon Building is

Eisler Arrest, Deportation Are Ordered

Song Writer Also To Be Prosecuted on Visa Perjury Charge

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Arrest for deportation of Hanns Eisler, Hollywood song writer and acknowledged onetime Communist Party member, has been ordered by the Immigration Service, it was disclosed last night.

The announcement was made by Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.), chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which recommended six days ago that Eisler be prosecuted on the criminal grounds of perjury and passport fraud and then be "forcibly deported" from the United States.

The warrants, issued against both Eisler and his wife, will serve to hold the composer of the Comintern March and other revolutionary songs pending any Justice Department action on criminal charges.

Speed Held Significant

The speed with which the Immigration Service moved against Eisler in the deportation proceeding was taken to mean that this Government is preparing to move almost simultaneously on other charges as well.

Had the Justice Department proceeded first with the criminal charges there would have been an inevitable delay while charges were considered by a Grand Jury before Eisler could have been held.

Thomas was notified by T. B. Shoemaker, Acting Commissioner of Immigration, that warrants of arrest in deportation proceedings had been ordered against Eisler and his wife on the basis of evidence brought out in the Un-American Activities Committee hearings. The committee had charged the evidence showed Eisler "perjured" his way into the United States.

The German-born Eisler is the brother of Gerhart Eisler, described by the FBI as a one-time Number 1 Communist in the United States, who was recently convicted of passport fraud and contempt of Congress.

Evoked Much Sympathy

Committee hearings developed evidence that Eisler, who first entered the United States as a visitor in 1935, and has now taken out his first citizenship papers, evoked much sympathy and concern in literary circles in the United States.

He represented himself as simply an anti-Nazi refugee from Hit-

Grain Export Far Above Shipments Last Year

187 Million Bushels Sent Abroad Since July 1 Against 92 Million in 1946

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Government agencies buying grain for food deficit countries abroad revealed yesterday that exports so far this crop year have been unprecedented in size.

Since July 1, it was estimated this country has shipped 187 million bushels of grain, of which about 138 million were wheat.

This is at the rate of 750 million bushels a year, It compares with about 92 million bushels in the same period a year ago.

The goal this year is 570 million bushels—which will be attainable, officials state, only if the Citizens Food Committee is successful in "saving" 100 million bushels through its food conservation program.

The full 570 million is the rock bottom necessary to avert famine in many areas abroad, food experts declare.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson revealed yesterday that the Government already has bought "more than enough wheat to last through December." Sufficient flour, he added, has been bought to carry that part of the program through November, and perhaps until January, dependent upon allocations for December.

President Truman's Citizens Food Committee launched yesterday its campaign to conserve 100 million bushels of wheat.

Although the committee at its initial meeting Wednesday declined to accept a full-scale program submitted by Chairman Charles Luckman, the latter went ahead yesterday on plans that were approved.

Meets With Harriman Group

During the morning he met with Secretary Harriman's Foreign Aid Committee, set up to advise President Truman as to American resources available to implement the Marshall Plan for European reconstruction.

It was the food division of the Harriman group that recommended a grain goal this year of 570 million bushels—100 million more than the Cabinet Food Committee headed by Anderson had said was obtainable.

Anderson yesterday reversed that decision. He expressed confidence that the Luckman program would "save" the additional 100 million bushels of wheat necessary, by reducing consumer demand for it in this country. If so, he predicted, the larger amount may be bought "without unduly disturbing the market."

Luckman's food group Wednesday did not vote down its chairman's suggestions, members asserted yesterday. Instead, he couldn't get a decision either for or against.

"The members were not quite ready to decide," one member said,

Bidault Tells Truman France Will Exhaust Dollars in Month

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Less than a month remains before France must find additional dollars or cut food and fuel imports, Foreign Minister Georges Bidault said yesterday.

Emerging from a half-hour conference with President Truman, Bidault told reporters his country faced a "very serious" need for dollars by November 1. The alternative, he said, was to curtail imports of coal and wheat and such industrial materials as copper and cotton, a measure which he predicted would have a very bad effect at home.

Bidault was accompanied by French Ambassador Henri Bonnet, who acted as interpreter in talking with reporters.

From the White House they went to the Agriculture Department for a brief visit with Secretary Anderson. Late in the afternoon Bidault paid a 50-minute "courtesy call" on Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett.

After this conference, Bidault said through Bonnet that he had discussed "a number of technical points" with Lovett and that he "has confidence and feels encouraged." When newsmen pressed for enlargement on that theme, Bonnet interrupted.

"He means," he said, "that they have a good understanding."

Bidault said at the White House that he was pleased to meet

Bidault Reception Reflects Austerity

Mme. Bonnet Serves Simple Buffet, Makes Own Sandwiches for French Embassy Party

By Marie McNair
Post Reporter

Symbols of American security were the groups of liveried chauffeurs and the cars parked for blocks around the French Embassy yesterday.

France's economic plight was reflected in the simple buffet ordered by Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, for the reception in honor of the Foreign Minister of France and Mme. Georges Bidault.

But in spite of the serious situation in his country, dapper Georges Bidault smiled his way through the afternoon. He smiled when he talked to reporters at the White House following a conference with President Truman. He said "very serious" when asked if French conditions were desperate. He smiled when he admitted he was full of encouragement following his talk with Secretary of Agriculture Clintor P. Anderson and Acting Secretary of State Robert Lovett.

The Bidaults Greet the Byrneses

It was a rare moment when both he and Mme. Bidault broke into an effusive greeting to former Secretary of State and Mrs. James F. Byrnes when they first caught sight of them coming down the receiving line. The Byrneses and the Bidaults became warm friends over the period of close collaboration of the two Secretaries of State, and it was last year that they met again in Paris.

Dignitaries and dowagers, diplomats and debutantes were at this first large official party of the season.

Arrangements were of the simplest, with no lavish display of flowers, no hams, turkeys, salads.

There was champagne, yes, lots of it, and of French vintage.

"That sends dollars to France," Mme. Bonnet said. And there was chilled orange juice as the only alternative.

The tempting tea-time cakes and tarts had all been made in the house with Mme. Bonnet putting in hours in the kitchen making her famous rolled sandwiches.

Mme. Bidault, straight from Paris, wore a black frock of sheer crepe, the pleated skirt just below midcalf, the bodice made with square neckline and long sleeves. Several strands of seed pearls were wound about her throat and two purple orchids were fastened to her shoulder.

Leopard Print Gown

Mme. Bonnet's gown was a leopard print of French blue and white satin with the new boat-shaped neckline edged with a flat fold and a bow-like drapery at the front of her skirt. She, too, wore purple orchids. Mrs. Wade H. Haislip, wife of the general, wore one of the longer skirts on her smart gown of dull green satin; Mrs. Robert Guggenheim had draped a new silver blue mink scarf about her shoulders.

President for the second time and had thanked him for what the United States had done for France.

Diplomatic officials, not at all surprised by Bidault's estimate, said it would not necessarily cause the President's schedule for aid to Europe to be altered. For some time now they have been seeking every possible source of funds for immediate aid to France and Italy.

The State Department already has announced the Allies had agreed to speed distribution of some 330 million dollars of gold looted by the Germans from invaded countries and recovered by the Allies. Asked about this possibility of help, Bidault said yesterday that it would "fill a little gap."

May Speed Claims Payment

Other possible sources of aid for France include acceleration of payment of French claims for expenses of United States troops. It was estimated that this, plus the gold distribution and other odds and ends, might provide as much as 150 million dollars to help carry France through November.

While Bidault was busy telling executive department officers of his country's plight, the question of aid to Europe assumed more than a tinge of political coloring. Three Republican members of Congress gave out with blasts against phases of the aid plan and GOP Presidential candidate Harold E. Stassen called for a special session of Congress to act on the matter.

House Republican leader Halleck of Indiana accused Mr. Truman of giving Congress too short notice that it might be called into special session on aid to Europe. He said the President was attempting to shift responsibility to Republican leaders on the question of calling Congress back.

Langer Hits Marshall Plan

Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) served notice he would oppose the rehabilitation plan of Secretary of State Marshall or any other measure that goes beyond merely feeding Europe.

Senator Cordon (R., Oreg.), about to leave on an Appropriations Committee survey of Europe, said he intended to make an independent inquiry about what happened to European industry other than that actually destroyed in the war. He said he would endeavor to learn why food production in Europe had dropped so low.

Stassen told a Town Hall meeting at Los Angeles that "we cannot permit Europe to move into the next grim winter without knowing the position of the United States. Until Congress acts, no one can say what United States policy is."

He was quoted by the Associated Press as urging use of surplus foods and "vigorous Government action against hoarding, excessive inventories and monopoly profiteering." He called for voluntary food saving and said compulsory rationing would lead to black marketing and lower production.

Grain Prices Suddenly Drop As Livestock Continues Climb

Commodity prices suddenly changed directions yesterday, and, after a strong opening, wheat, corn and other grains dropped the limit allowed in one day's trading.

Part of the loss was made up in later dealing. In the Nation's stockyards, however, hog and cattle prices continued to climb. Hogs went up an average of ½-cent a pound at most of the nation's markets.

Both butter and eggs tumbled; butter 2¼ cents a pound and eggs more than 2 cents.

From another sector higher prices were threatened. Frank G. Jungewaelter of Chicago, secretary of the Associated Retail Bakers of America, said the Nation's bakers may have to raise bread price to overcome steadily rising prices for flour, lard and other ingredients.

Wholesale prices dropped 1.2 per cent last week, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported, the first drop in 13 weeks. On the other hand Dun and Bradstreet's daily price index of 30 basic commodities jumped to 285.32. It was 284.96 Wednesday and 231.58 a year ago.

Grain Exports Far Above Shipments of Last Year

on Luckman's plans for both meatless days and wheatless days. He predicted early action on all such proposals.

Luckman Uncommunicative

Luckman yesterday was uncommunicative. After leaving the Harriman meeting he visited Anderson's office at Agriculture, accompanied by Harriman and more than a dozen Commerce Department officials.

Luckman already has arranged a meeting with the distilling industry, it was learned last night. Distillers, it was reported, have been heavy buyers of grain in recent months, accounting for much of the demand that has forced steadily rising prices.

The Nation's brewers are to meet here with Secretary Anderson Saturday. However, it was learned that Anderson does not intend to urge a reduction in brewing—although he may request that the grains used be limited to lower grades or less scarce types.

Government officials shy away from any limitation on the use of grain by brewers as long as European nations to whom this country is sending emergency shipments of grain are not restricting its brewers.

Many other developments highlighted the food picture last night:

1. A spokesman for the flour milling industry urged export of flour instead of wheat. He said cutting down on the use of wheat for livestock feed would divert more grain for relief shipments than any conservation measures that could be applied to the millers.

2. The Agriculture Department called upon farmers to sow more acres to wheat this year than last, when the all-time record wheat crop was produced. The department set a goal of 75,095,000 acres, compared with 70,700,000 in 1947. The increase, it asserted, was made necessary by the critical world food situation.

3. Representative R. F. Murray (R., Wis.), just returned from Europe, reported to Chairman Clifford Hope (R., Kans.) of the House Agriculture Committee that the food situation in Europe is so serious that longe-range food programs should be "held in abeyance until the immediate food problem is given attention."

Mexico Proposes Barter With France

Paris, Oct. 2 (AP).—Mexico has offered to exchange meat, rice, petroluem, textiles, shoes and fruit for French products, the De Gaullist newspaper L'Aurore said today.

In exchange, according to L'Aurore, France would be asked to send wines, liqueurs, alcohol products, caustic soda, carbonates and creosote and silk and other luxury items.

Snyder Asks Support For Food Program

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder, who returned from Europe today on the liner America, urged "every American to cooperate fully" with President Truman's Citizens Food Committee "so that the hungry in Europe may not go unfed."

Snyder said he believed "some progress" had been made in western Europe, adding:

"It should be remembered that economic help is contagious. Western Europe, I believe, is really beginning to face up to its problems and with continued courage, unity of effort and hard work, the people of western Europe can face the future with real confidence."

The secretary said "food and fuel are the two serious considerations for the winter in the whole of Europe," but remarked that "some exceptional countries" will not need food. He did not name them.

Britain and Russia Dicker Over Wheat

London, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—The government announced today it had resumed negotiations for a big wheat deal with Soviet Russia.

The deal, if successful, would bring Britain a badly needed one million bushels of wheat a year in exchange for machine tools and other manufactured goods.

Air Policy Commission To Start Tour Sunday

President Truman's temporary Air Policy Commission has arranged to leave Sunday in the President's plane, the Independence, for an eight-day trip to key aviation areas.

Thomas K. Finletter, commission chairman, will head the group. Others will include George P. Baker, Palmer Hoyt and John A. McCone; Brig. Gen. Bryant Boatner and Capt. Paul Pihl, Air Force and Navy liaison with the commission, and some technical advisers.

44 Legion Officials Received by Pope

Vatican City, Oct. 2 (AP).—Pope Pius XII today received 44 American Legion officials who came to Europe following the legion's national convention in New York. He told them they had "power for great good," and urged them to "use it well."

The audience, which took place at the Pope's summer palace at Castelgandolfo, lasted about half an hour. Participants said the pontiff managed in that time to talk individually with each of the men and their wives.

Pay Dispute to Close 150 Safeway Stores

Action in New York Area Taken To Avoid Food Waste, Company Says

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Safeway Stores, Inc., announced today it would close its 150 stores in the New York metropolitan area at the end of business tonight for an indefinite period because of a strike threat by 1400 employes.

The company does not want "food rotting in a time of shortages," an announcement said.

The stores are situated in New York City, Long Island, Westchester County and New Jersey.

The company and Local 474 of the National Food Chain Store Employes Union (CIO) have been in a dispute over a 20 per cent wage increase and other improvements sought by the employes in a new contract to replace the one which expired last Tuesday.

The union termed the company's action a lockout and said the concern had declined an offer to extend negotiations 15 days.

Mississippi Governor Probes Bus Violence

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 2 (AP).—Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi went to Hattiesburg today to investigate personally renewed violence in a 136-day-old bus strike, but he declined to say if he would order vehicles protected by the National Guard.

One bus was fired upon and another stoned today in the latest disturbance growing out of a dispute between AFL union bus drivers and the Southern Bus Lines, Inc. The shooting occurred a few miles north of Hattiesburg, and the State highway patrol reported it had trapped a suspect in a patch of woods nearby.

The strike began May 20 in a controversy over wages, and failure to renew a previous contract. The company since has replaced striking men with new drivers and trainees, and refuses to bargain further with the union.

Yesterday the Governor said he would man the company's buses with National Guardsmen, under orders to "shoot to kill," if it was necessary to protect lives and property, but he declined to say if the newest outbreak of violence would justify this.

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it," he said.

Carburetor Workers Get 14½c Increase

St. Louis, Oct. 2 (AP).—A six-week strike at the Carter Carburetor Corp., one of the automotive industry's largest carburetor manufacturers, has been settled under a two-year contract providing for a general wage increase of 14½ cents an hour for production workers, a company spokesman announced today.

Production at the company's three plants, halted when 2400 CIO United Automobile Workers walked out August 20, will be resumed next week, the spokesman said.

Under the agreement, adjustments in 125 job classifications will be made as soon as possible after production is resumed, he said.

Taft-Hartley Act Faces West Coast Test

Los Angeles, Oct. 2 (AP).—Most cargo in freighters and on docks of Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors lay untouched today in the stalemate between CIO Longshoremen and the Waterfront Employers Association which a union official called "the first major test of the Taft-Hartley Act."

"We can no longer depend on law but must rely on our economic strength," the union official, Louis Goldblatt, international secretary of the Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, told a mass meeting of dock workers.

"We hope to get an impartial chairman (of the Coast Labor Relations Committee) by the end of the weekand this dispute will immediately be placed before him," Goldblatt said.

CONGRESSMAN'S ANSWER TO FOOD PROBLEM—Congressman Wingate Lucas (D., Tex.), and Mrs. Lucas went home to Grapevine to solve their food problem and in doing so they are indirectly helping to feed hungry nations. They brought back with them in a pick-up truck 400 cans of home-grown fruits and vegetables and home-cured meats. Not only are they combatting the high cost of foods, but they are saving food. Here they stack the cans at their residence, 4743 Bradley blvd., Bethesda, Md.

Election Law Quiz Brings Green Blast

Virginia's election laws are "designed to keep people from voting," John Locke Green, Republican treasurer of Arlington County, said yesterday.

He made the statement in answering a questionnaire sent all Virginia counties by the State Board of Elections. In it, clerks of court and other election officials were asked for suggestions on improving State election machinery.

To the question: "Do you favor abolishing the absent voters' law?" Green answered, "yes," and explained his belief that the present system "promotes fraud," and eases the way for ballot-box stuffing.

He felt that election laws should be rewritten in "layman'e language," with related subjects grouped in sections. The present $5 per day compensation allowed election officials is "not enough to compensate for their time and effort," Green added.

He felt that mistakes made by election officials were often the result of a "willful attempt to influence elections" in some parts of Virginia, but said that election erroVrs in Arlington "are made because of a lack of knowledge of officials."

Green said he preferred the present permanent system of registration as opposed to annual renewal, and favored schools of instruction for election officials held by local electoral boards.

In a letter explaining the questionnaire, Levin N. Davis, Election Board secretary, said the board plans to hold a series of conferences with election officials in about 20 counties during the next few months to explain election laws and hear suggestions for improvement.

The Market Basket

Fish Day Aids Pocketbook

By Lucia Brown
Post Reporter

Fish day brings a break for the housekeeper in her battle against rising food prices.

While some seafood is high today—oysters, for instance—fish such as trout, croakers, and butterfish fresh from the Chesapeake are reasonable, both on the Washington waterfront market and in fish and grocery stores.

Prices on butterfish and trout range around 25 to 29 cents a pound. Rockfish is about 35 cents, mackerel from the Atlantic 40 cents or more, and halibut around 49 cents a pound. Frozen fish fillets—haddock at about 39 cents and sole at 49 cents—offer a good buy for every ounce is edible.

Certain canner items also are an advantageous buy for today's thrifty shopper. Citrus juice is a notable bargain, the price being 40 to 45 per cent lower than at this time last year, according to the National Canners Association. Tomato juice prices also are lower, and certain canned vegetables are slightly cheaper than last year.

Apple supplies are particularly good on the Washington market now. Current prices are slightly above those on October 1, 1946, and will continue to rise as the crop moves into storage. Canning apples now is therefore a wise step for the enterprising homemaker. Many local varieties are available, including late Rambos, Greenings, Staymans and Delicious—are also coming in and are fine for eating raw.

In the dessert field, ice cream continues to retail at about the same prices as for the past year. Ice cream prices, which rose in July, 1946, to around 35 or 40 cents a pint and 75 or 80 cents a quart for popular brands, remain at the same level today.

One cent hikes in bread prices were reported in several United States cities yesterday, but Washington distributors said last night they knew of no plans for raising prices here.

San Francisco Editor Calls on President

Paul C. Smith, editor and general manager of the San Francisco Chronicle, called on President Truman yesterday.

He told reporters afterward that it was a courtesy visit and that he had not been offered any government job. He added, however, that some time ago John E. Peurifoy, Assistant Secretary of State in charge of administration, offered him the post of assistant secretary in charge of information and cultural affairs, but that he had turned it down. William Benton left the information post Wednesday to return to private business.

Frost Skips 75% of Corn In Midwest

Approximately 75 per cent of the Midwest corn crop has escaped serious frost bite although Ohio reported yesterday that low temperatures had caused severe damage in all but the southernmost counties.

Eastern fruit and vegetable crops have suffered from early cold.

In western New York State, packing plant officials termed the tomato crop a "failure" and the poorest in 27 years. Temperatures in the middle and upper 20s also damaged fruit and vegetables in the Eastern States.

Atlantic County, N. J., authorities reported the frost had sharply reduced the sweet potato crop.

Ohio, however, appeared to be the worst hit. Agricultural experts laid the damage both to the early frost and the late planting season. Peaches and other fruit, soybeans, and vegetable crops also were damaged when temperatures Wednesday night dropped to 23 at Lancaster and 24 at East Liverpool.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Chicago said warmer weather would help crops over much of the Nation for the next few days, but that New York State, West Virginia and Pennsylvania would experience slightly below freezing weather Thursday night.

Chicago Board of Trade experts said little attention has been paid to frost news on the board since it was apparent that anywhere from 75 to 80 per cent of the corn crop was safe in the main producing areas.

Farmers in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri were cutting some of their late planted corn for use as ensilage. Some experts said the frosts actually aided the corn by drying it out.

Northern Indiana and Illinois reported some heavier frost damage, but North Dakota authorities said the crop was better than expected.

Birthday Gifts Like Condolences To Gandhi at 78

New Delhi, India, Oct. 2 (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi, who was 78 today, said tonight he had lost all desire to live longer because "what is the use of living while hatred and killing have marred the atmosphere.

"The time was when whatever I said the Indian masses followed, but today mine is a lone voice," Gandhi declared soon after he broke a 24-hour fast prior to his evening prayer meeting.

"Many people came to congratulate me on my birthday, including Lady Mountbatten

"Scores of telegrams from near and far, basketsful of flowers, plentiful cash and glowing tributes have been pouring in, but I felt sore at heart. They all looked like condolences."

Food-Saving Formula Hit As Inadequate

District Commissioners yesterday discussed the Citizens' Food Committee food-saving program announced Wednesday and tabled action on it to the next regular meeting on Tuesday at 10 a. m.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Laura Somers, member of the executive board of the District chapter of the League of Women Shoppers, criticizing the plan as inadequate, likened it to use "of an aspirin tablet as a method for treating an advanced case of blood poisoning."

Already Using Every Scrap

Mrs. Somers, speaking over Marian Sexton's program on Station WOL, said the committee's request for housewives to "serve less and use leftovers" would fall on deaf ears since most women were "already buying as little as possible and using every scrap."

A recommendation by the committee for women "not to buy the more expensive cuts of meat" was described as unnecessary since most families "have long since stopped buying steak at 98 cents a pound, lamb chops at 89 cents and fancy roasts, for the very good reason that their budgets won't stretch that far," Mrs. Somers said.

She pointed out, too, that meat substitutes such as cheese and fish also had jumped in price.

Urges Controls, Rationing

Her organization requested immediate imposition of price control and rationing of foods. If this were not done, she declared the alternative was "a wrecked domestic economy and a hunger-maddened Europe."

She recommended calling a special session of Congress to authorize price controls on basic foodstuffs at market levels.

Kentucky Youth, Escapes Life Term

Pikeville, Ky., Oct. 2 (AP).—Two court rulings within four hours today dissipated the sentence of life imprisonment hanging over 13-year-old Crawford Casebolt for armed robbery and paved the way for him to enter Boys Town in Nebraska.

Within a few hours after Circuit Judge R. Monroe Fields set aside the youth's conviction and penalty and dismissed the indictment, County Judge J. W. Pruitt paroled Casebolt to the custody of former Representative John Young Brown of Lexington.

Brown, who had interested himself in the case after reading of the black-haired youth's plight, said he personally would make the trip to Boys Town with Crawford, tomorrow or next day.

Casebolt smiled happily at the decision, and walked out of the court with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Ulan Casebolt.

Two older companions previously were sentenced to life imprisonment in the same case.

37th Polio Case Reported in Area

A 10-year-old Bethesda (Md.) boy yesterday became Greater Washington's thirty-seventh polio case this year, the District Health Department reported.

The boy, whose home is in the 5500 block of Northfield rd., is being treated at Children's Hospital, Health officials said.

To date, 12 polio cases have occurred in the District, 25 in suburban areas, they announced.

Last year's toll at this time was 23 cases in the District and 78 in nearby areas, the Health Department revealed.

D. C. Postpones Investigation Of Short Weights

The District's threatened investigation of alleged short-weighting in transactions between wholesale and retail meat dealers was put on ice yesterday when no culprits could be found.

Four weights and measures inspectors tailed meat delivery trucks every day this week, but found marked weights to be correct, J. Thomas Kennedy, superintendent of weights and measures, said. Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert S. Kaeipp, who had been told that some short-weighting was a trade practice, declared that apparently such practices were no longer being observed.

Last week a retailer complained this his 71-pound package of meat weighed only 67 pounds.

Taft Swings His Ax At Administration

Winds Up Western Tour With Blast At Truman for 'Wavering Uncertainty'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Casper, Wyo., Oct. 2.—Senator Robert A. Taft tonight concluded his Western tour with a meat-ax attack on the "wavering uncertainty" of the Truman Administration.

He pictured the President as faltering between his party's right and left wings and making day-to-day decisions while government agencies are "going their own sweet way."

In the domestic field, he said the Administration is "bankrupt in ideas," and lacks any consistent policy. In foreign affairs, he said the people have been left "completely ignorant about what goes on in Europe."

"Of only one thing can we be certain," Taft told a GOP rally in the Casper High School auditorium.

"If a choice has to be made on any vital issue between the aggressive planned economy of the CIO on the one side and the American principles of liberty on the other, the Administration will not dare to antagonize the left-wing groups."

Held Past Departure Hour

The train to which Taft's cars are hitched, homeward bound after three weeks of Taft stumping up the coast and through the Rocky Mountain states, was held long past departure hour at the station until the Senator completed his speech.

Here in this remote cow and oil country Taft staged his last round-up of candidate sentiment before hustling back to Cincinnati to reach a decision on whether he will be a Presidential candidate. If he is still in doubt whether to run, newsmen aboard the Taft train believe the decision is already made. Today's Casper talk, as most of his others, was a candidate's speech.

In this last one, devoted to the Democratic records, Taft dwelt on the sectional split which he charged leaves the Democratic Party at the mercy of the left wing and "blown back and forth by the exigencies of politics and propaganda."

He said "occasional gestures" are made to the conservative South, but in the end Administration policies "must meet the approval of the CIO and advocates of a planned economy" to avert a third party break-up.

Will Take Labor's Orders

"So long as the Democratic Party remains in power it will take orders from the leaders of organized labor, regardless of how overwhelming is the sentiment for the reform of labor legislation," he said.

In an interview, meanwhile, the Senator revised an earlier forecast that tax cuts will have to wait for a Republican president. He predicted the next GOP tax reduction bill will have enough Democratic support to over-ride a veto.

The charge that Mr. Truman wants taxes indefinitely kept where they are, if not actually increased, was the least of Taft's indictments of the administration tonight.

Some of the others:

1. That the Administration would restore price control today if it dared, but that would bring with it wage control, distribution control and rationing. The CIO and "many administration officials favor this."

2. The Administration lacks any consistent policy on prices, agriculture, labor or housing and in foreign policy "it is difficult indeed to find a consistent thread."

Committee Excellent

3. Mr. Truman's new committee to urge saving of food is excellent, but if it "operates in a vacuum, without any consistent policy" it will be useless and ineffective.

Orson Was Cruel, Rita Charges

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

RITA HAYWORTH, estranged movie actress-wife of the one-time "boy genius," Orson Welles, made a simple charge of cruelty in her long-promised suit for divorce, filed in Los Angeles. The red-haired beauty's attorney told the court there was too much "genius" in one family

Conservatives Vote to Retain Nationalization

Brighton, England, Oct. 2 (AP).—The Conservative Party approved overwhelmingly today the retention in Britain of some form of nationalized industry despite a challenge that such a program constitutes "milk and water socialism."

Sir Waldron Smither, leader in Parliament of the party's "old guard" opposed the resolution. However, only three opposition votes were recorded when the 3000 delegates attending the party's annual conference indorsed the proposal by a show of hands.

The resolution, drafted by a group of leading Conservative members of Parliament, pledges the party to retain nationalization of coal mines and the Bank of England and to keep some form of public ownership of railroads if and when the present Labor government falls.

While it would leave much of the Labor government's program in effect, the resolution calls for restoration of private buying in the cotton industry and denationalization of road transport and certain phases of civil aviation.

The Conservatives also adopted a resolution calling for a new general election after Anthony Eden, former Foreign Secretary and deputy leader of the party, called for Winston Churchill's return to the Prime Ministry to rid Britain of what he described as "disorganization, confusion and loss of efficiency."

Sir Herbert Williams, author of the resolution calling for an election, told the delegates: "We have today the most fantastically incompetent government that has ever existed in these islands."

Eden charged that Prime Minister Attlee's regime was responsible for the nation's economic crisis and said:

"In the war we had, under Mr. Churchill, true national leadership that took the public into its confidence and gave a lucid exposition of our problems and our prospects. We must have such leadership again."

Another resolution called for placing in the forefront of Conservative policy a charter of liberties "guaranteeing the inviolability of the age-old freedoms of the British people."

The conference suggested no date for an election. The Labor Government will continue in office until 1950, the statutory date for the next general election, unless the government itself decides that balloting should be held before then or the outnumbered Conservatives in Commons are able to muster enough strength to pass a resolution of "no confidence."

Queen Mary, Thousands More to Sew for Britain

London, Oct. 2 (AP).—Thousands of women, 81-year-old Queen Mother Mary in the van, organized themselves into a nation-wide sewing circle today in an effort to gain dollars for Britain.

The goods knitted and sewn in British homes will be sold in the United States and other dollar areas by a nonprofit export company. The government will give pounds sterling in exchange for whatever American money the knitters earn.

Women will work in their spare time with materials the women's voluntary services will provide.

Jumping the gun like hundreds of others who heard of the plan in advance, Queen Mary already has sent in six floral chair covers on which she embroidered "Mary R." for Mary Regina. She stipulated that the chair covers be sold in a dollar area and that the proceeds, translated into pounds, go to charity.

Meanwhile, Sir Stafford Cripps, new Minister of Economic Affairs, departed from the prepared text of an address before a film producers' luncheon today to remark: "No dollars, no films!"

Sir Stafford said that sooner or later "our American friends" had to realize that world trade must be on the basis of exchange.

Virginia Ban on Klan Film Brings Request for Inquiry

The House Un-American Activities Committee was asked yesterday to investigate the ban of the Virginia Motion Picture Censorship Board on showings of "The Burning Cross," which describes activities of the Ku Klux Klan.

Dr. Clark Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which also has been investigated by the House committee, declared that "the Board of Censors of the Byrd machine has refused to allow people of Virginia to see a moving picture designed to reinforce Americanism and to expose the dangers to our system from the organization of prejudice."

Mrs. Virginia Foster Durr, chairman of the committee for Virginia, a unit of the SCHW, also objected to the ban, declaring that "while Governor Tuck and Colgate Darden were praising freedom in Charlottesville, the Board of Censors was cutting her (freedom's) throat in Richmond."

On Wednesday the censorship board, after a second screening of the film, refused to rescind its ban on grounds that it would tend to revive "animosities, dislikes and enmities."

Jack Cartwright, public relations director of Screen Guild Productions, producers of the film, said yesterday that the firm would appeal the edict. He said that "if you can report the doings of the Ku Klux Klan in the newspapers of the Nation, you certainly report them on the screens of the Nation."

He declared Virginia was the first State to ban the film.

Canada Threatens To Cite Russia For Marriage Law

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 2 (U.P.).—Canada threatened today to hail the Soviet Union before the United Nations as a violator of fundamental human rights because of Russia's refusal to let Soviet citizens marry aliens.

The threat was made by Canadian Delegate L. Rene Beaudoin in the United Nations Social Committee in denying Ukraine charges that European displaced women who have emigrated to Canada were denied the right to marry.

Soviet Delegate V. A. Zorin replied sharply that Canada was trying to "meddle" in Russia's internal affairs and served notice that the Soviet Union would continue to enact laws without consulting Canada in advance.

cross-drive transmission. Still under development, the T-32 tank is steered by a "joy-stick" much like an airplane. Due largely to its easier control, the T-32 won a race over a rugged course with the 46-ton medium General Pershing. It carries a 90-millimeter high velocity gun and heavy armor.

The pilot model of a self-propelled 240-millimeter howitzer. Army officials said the weapon, listed as the T-92, fires a 360-lb. shell 14 miles, and would have been "very useful at Cassino." An 8-inch gun on the same type carriage is on the way, it was said.

Guided Missiles Demonstration

There also were some guarded demonstrations of progress made in the guided missiles field. The Ballistic Research Laboratory disclosed that it now can control the direction, size and velocity of fragments of shell or bomb warheads.

A single fragmentation missile was fired at seven close range targets, and seven fragments scored seven bulls-eyes.

Also shown was a 16-inch tracking telescope, which can follow and record the ballistic behavior of long-range missiles in the upper atmosphere. It will be used in the V-2 tests at White Sands Proving Grounds. To demonstrate its power, the Army read settings on a clock on an airplane whic hwas out of sight from the field.

The show ended with an assault of an infantry detachment on two pillboxes. Every weapon from tanks to rifles, including the new 75-millimeter recoilless rifle, were employed in the noisy "battle."

Roosevelt Letters Written in Youth To Be Published

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—A new store of letters by Franklin D. Roosevelt, written in childhood and youth to his mother, was disclosed today. The letters are to be published, starting with a volume next month as "F. D. R.: His Personal Letters" (Duell, Sloan & Pearce).

According to Life magazine, which reprints a selection, Roosevelt's mother preserved every scrap of paper on which her son wrote. Samples:

From Hyde Park at age 6—

"I am in a great hurry. I found two birds nests. I took one egg. We are all well. I am going to the Millie Rogers party and to meet papa. Good bye. Your loving Franklin."

From Harvard at age 20—

"In spite of his (TR's) success in settling the trouble (strike), I think the President made a serious mistake in interfering—politically at least. His tendency to make the executive power stronger than the house of Congress is bound to be a bad thing, especially when a man of weaker personality succeeds him in office."

U. S. Re-Admits Lady Mountbatten, Cousin of King

Philadelphia, Oct. 2 (AP).—Lady Iris Mountbatten, cousin of King George VI of Great Britain, has been re-admitted to the United States on the regular quota from Montreal, Canada, the Immigration and Naturalization Service announced today.

An immigration spokesman said Lady Mountbatten received a permanent visa by the American consul at Montreal after State Department officials approved her entry.

The spokesman said Lady Mountbatten entered the United States September 30 and went immediately to New York, adding:

"We don't know if she is living there now."

Lady Mounbatten was asked to leave the United States this summer after her ix-month visitors visa expired and because she had illegally taken a job, the service said.

However, since she is in the United States under a permanent visa she need not seek permission to work and may apply immdiately for American citizenship, the spokesman declared.

Admit DPs To U. S., Asks Msgr. O'Grady

The Right Rev. Msgr. John O'Grady of Washington yesterday again asked admission of European displaced persons into the United States. He termed them "an intelligent group representing the best people of Europe."

Speaking before groups of newspapermen at the War Relief Services National Catholic Welfare Conference in New York, the secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities had just returned from a six months' tour of displaced persons camps in Europe.

"I have visited 14 displaced persons camps in Germany, three in Italy, and four in Austria," he said, "and have found these people wide awake . . . they are tops in crafts and labor. I am confident they would contribute creditably to the economy of the United States.

"There is certainly no evidence of communism . . . They have seen too much of communism and want no part of it."

Methodist Parley Demands Action To Prevent War

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 2 (AP).—Conference called today for action The Methodist World Ecumenical to prevent another catastrophe "more terrible than the horrors of the two world wars."

It also struck out at race discrimination, moral deterioration and freedom-trampling government.

The concluding message to world methodism issued at the close of a nine-day conference of church leaders from all parts of the world, declared that in industrial disputes a divine imperative which he can the minister "is under obligation, not escape, to demand that justice be done."

Declaring the conference was compelled to face problems of state and government, the report took no position on the form the state and should take. But it asserted, "we cannot tolerate any governmental form which tramples on the freedom of the individual, reduces man to the level of a mere instrument of the state."

Marshall Uses Influence To Aid Marxist Newsman

By The Associated Press

A French Communist newspaperman yesterday accompanied French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault from New York—thanks to some behind the-scenes wire pulling by Secretary of State Marshall and other American officials.

Pierre Courtade, correspondent for L'Humanite, French Communist daily, was granted permission to leave New York to make the trip after Bidault had asked Marshall if he could make arrangements.

Courtade until Wednesday was not allowed to leave New York because he is a Communist. The American government granted him permission to enter the United States to cover the United Nations on the grounds that he confine himself to this specific assignment and not go elsewhere.

But since Bidault obviously is top news in France, Courtade wanted to report his activities in Washington and asked to go along Marshall is understood to have instructed an aide to intervene with the Justice Department. As a result Courtade's visa was amended to permit him to go to Washington for a few days.

A Word About Meat Prices:
Almost every day one reads in the newspapers about the increased prices received by cattle, hog, lamb and veal growers for their live, ready-for-the-packer animals. In turn, the packer must increase his price to the retailer and the retailer to his customers. Meats are always priced at retail levels based on costs to retailers, to the packers, and on back to the growers. We frankly don't like the high costs of meat to us, nor to you. But, we ARE doing something about it by LESSENING our normal, legitimate profits in order to BRING YOU meats of QUALITY at LOW PRICES based on costs to us.

There were 128 rape cases. Police cleared 126 of the cases for a percentage of 98.4.

There were 828 robberies, 391 of them were cleared and the percentage was 47.2.

Assault cases totaled 2607. Cleared were 1726 cases. The percentage was 66.2.

Police cleared only 33.3 per cent of 4959 burglary cases reported. Cleared were 1650 cases.

Of 1650 grand larcency cases, police cleared 625 cases or 37.9 per cent.

There were 1887 auto thefts and 1550 of the cases were cleared for a percentage of 82.1.

Under "other felonies" the Barrett report lists 133 cases, of which 106 were cleared for a percentage of 79.7.

Police made 238,252 arrests during the fiscal year of 1947, compared with 203,729 arrests the previous year.

Of the 238,252 arrests, 7580 were for felonies, 78,979 for misdemeanors, 135,254 for violation of municipal regulations, and 16,439 were fugitives or persons held for other jurisdictions.

Of the 7580 persons arrested for felonies in the past fiscal year, the Barrett report notes that 2167 of them were juveniles under the age of 18, 926 were between 18 and 21, and 487 were over 21.

Barrett again acknowledged that disclosures made last June by The Washington Post on "pocketed" robbery reports were correct.

(The Washington Post revealed last June that police had held more than 600 robbery complaints from police statistics over an 11-month period. A check by police and the FBI verified this claim—Editor's note.)

"There was evidence of negligence on the part of members of the department in reporting certain types of cases," said Barrett, "but no evidence of a deliberate plan to suppress crime reports, nor was there evidence that the crimes not reported received less attention than those reported."

Actual Count Made

The police superintendent said "an actual count was made of felonies reported on the several precinct books" to avoid possibility of error in crime statistics for the fiscal year of 1947.

Police explained why there are only 828 robbery cases reported in the felonies. Previously purse snatchings and pickpocket cases were included in that category.

Now FBI standards of classification of crimes are being followed. Many cases previously listed as robberies now drop into the grand larceny or petty larceny category. A robbery, to be listed as such, must be accompanied by force or violence or a threat of force or violence.

collected on one day was not turned in for several days.

Check Stepped Up

Collection of $116 for Thursday, August 21, was not turned in until Monday, August 25. When the money was turned in, there was an additional $5 added for a recipient who had already received the $5 payment, apparently by error.

The turn-in of $140.75 for the dates of August 23 and 24 plus the $5 paid into the Juvenile Court twice, represented the $145 shortage. The date this money was turned in was not disclosed.

Pilkerton said yesterday that his office would have made a routine check of all the precinct records some time this year but that disclosures at the Fourth Precinct would hasten the examination.

"It is obvious after finding the irregularities at No. 4 Precinct," he said, "that we must go into the financial records of all the other precincts."

Pilkerton said that he had not yet been contacted by Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett, concerning the investigation. He added that the last audit of precinct records was made about a year ago.

making a substantial contribution to the net operating revenues."

The present fare of 10 cents between Washington and the Virginia ends of the Arlington Memorial Bridge and the Highway Bridge, and points on Arlington Ridge rd., including the Navy Annex, is not affected by the order.

Also unchanged is the 15-cent cash fare to and from Fairlington via the Shirley hgwy., and the present fares to and from Fairfax, Va., and intermediate points over the Chain Bridge.

However, the Fairlington fare could be reduced by 2½ cents under the order by the use of tokens. The token-fare basis, furthermore, would reduce the 40-cent cash fare to and from Fairfax by routes other than Chain Bridge to 32½ cents.

The special-ticket rate of three rides for 25 cents from the Navy Annex building would continue under the ruling, while the agreement with the Capital Transit Co. allowing transfers on the Pentagon line would not be affected.

Interior Plans Held Illegal by Bridges

Reclamation Plans Would Thwart Will Of Congress on Spending, He Says

Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday accused the Interior Department of thwarting "the will of Congress" by planning to spend 40 million dollars more for reclamation in 1948 than Congress appropriated.

In a letter to Interior Secretary Julius A. Krug, Bridges warned that Interior's reclamation plans appear to be "a deliberate violation of the Antideficiency Act," by which Congress sought to curb spending in excess of amounts appropriated by Congress.

The Appropriations chairman also attacked what he termed the "political activities of W. W. Straus, commissioner of the Reclamation Bureau."

Bridges told correspondents that he had been informed that Straus intends to appear before Congress next January with a request for a deficiency appropriation to complete reclamation projects.

The New Hampshire Senator said he had been informed that Straus is spending a great deal of time visiting Governors of the several Western States "attempting to drum up political support for his unauthorized program of expenditure."

Neither Krug nor Straus had any comment to make on Bridges' charges last night.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), a member of the committee, said he had learned of Bridges' letter "with amazement."

"Senator Bridges' statement is notice to the West and particularly to the States of Oregon, Washington, Colorado, Arizona and California that the reclamation program now indorsed by Senator Taft will be suspended during the next year," O'Mahoney declared.

The matter of drastic congressional cuts in the Interior Department's budget for reclamation projects in the Western States was one of the most hotly disputed issues in the first session of the Eightieth Congress.

Many Western Republicans warned at the time that the cuts in reclamation projects would become one of the major 1948 issues in the West.

Krug Bridges

Bridges said the Interior Department had announced it would spend 195 million dollars on reclamation projects in 1948. This, Bridges claims, is 25 million dollars more than President Truman originally requested.

The Appropriations chairman charged that Straus would back his deficiency request "with the threat to cease work on important reclamation projects which he has speeded beyond the sums allowed for their completion."

O'Mahoney insisted any such charge was in disregard of the fact that the Appropriations Committee was fully aware when it made the cuts in appropriations that it was not allowing sufficient funds to complete the projects involved.

"It may be that the funds will run out more quickly than anticipated," O'Mahoney declared, "because prices are rising and Congress adjourned without doing anything about prices. No deficiency is being created. The money is being applied to contracts of which the committee had full information."

Bridges maintained that if the Interior Department's action goes unchallenged it would "give a green light to the bureaucrats who set themselves above the will of Congress to spend as they desire. It would subject the Treasury to vicious raids by every politically minded appointed official."

3 Apartments Ask Rent Hikes

Rent boosts ranging from 9 to 15 per cent were asked yesterday for more than 100 units in three local apartment houses, the District Rent Control Administration announced.

William F. Mansfield, rent control secretary-docket clerk, said the following rent increase petitions were filed:

Karl F. Brodt, owner of an apartment house at 1009 11th st. nw., asked average 9 per cent boosts for 47 units. Proposed rents would advance $37.50 a month apartments to $45; $47.50 apartments to $52.50.

Mrs. Estelle B. Lewis, owner of the Chalon Apartments at 414 Seward sq. se., sought increases of approximately 15 per cent for 24 units. Present rents range from $40 to $52.50 a month. The new rates would be $52 to $60 per month.

Donald Fettit, owner of the Montgomery Apartments at 1151 N. Capitol st., asked average 10 per cent hikes for 32 units. Current monthly rents ranging from $38.50 to $47.50 would go up to $50 and $52 under the proposed increase.

Mansfield said each of the three owners maintained rent increases were necessary to cover higher taxes and increased operating and maintenance costs.

CIO Assails Cogswell For Rent Increases

A charge that rent increases authorized by District Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell are "completely unwarranted" was made by the Washington Industrial Union Council (CIO) yesterday.

Cogswell's order allows an increase in rentals equal to the present tax and water rates over the 1941 figures, and applies to the one-to-eight family dwellings.

Henry C. Beitscher, president of the council, declared "it is a curious commentary on the economic thinking of officials charged with the responsibility of curbing the ruinous inflation we are now experiencing that the solution is more inflation."

Md. Roads Board Accepts Ballard's Resignation

Baltimore, Oct. 2 (AP).—The State Roads Commission announced today it had accepted the resignation of its chief engineer, Wilson T. Ballard.

William F. Childs, jr., director of the traffic division, has been appointed acting chief engineer.

Ballard was appointed to the $9000 post in 1939 by Governor O'Conor. He is a former engineering consultant of the Baltimore County Metropolitan District.

Robert R. Reindollar, commission chairman, said he hoped that Ballard would make himself available as a consultant to the body.

Ballard said he would go into private business.

City to Give Prizes For Putting Out Trash

Salisbury, Md., Oct. 2 (AP).—Salisbury residents will get paid for putting out their rubbish next week.

At least those who put out the most will collect. A fire prevention week committee is offering $450 in prizes for residents placing the most rubbish on the curb for collection.

How babies and Mothers can enjoy Feeding Time Together
Mrs. Dan Gerber, whose second of five children was the inspiration for Gerber's Baby Foods.
When the time comes to start baby on Gerber's Strained Foods, feed him before his bottle or formula. A little healthy hunger makes this important step easier for you. After baby is used to the new food, you'll find feeding time will go smoothly with Gerber's!
Good reason why babies like Gerber's Strained Foods. Babies appreciate and need smooth, even texture in food—that's why Gerber's pays so much attention to uniform texture. And, of course, Gerber's is made to taste extra good.
Serve variety and you encourage good eating habits, say pediatricians. Gerber's makes fifteen kinds of strained foods for you to choose from. Every one of these quality foods is cooked the Gerber way with steam to preserve precious minerals and vitamins!

Soviet Writer Calls Marshall 'Shylock of Wall Street'

Secretary of State Marshall was described as "a dreadful old man . . . the Shylock of Wall Street" in an article published in Russia and sent to the State Department by the United States Embassy at Moscow.

Smith

Written by N. Pogodin, the article appeared in the Moscow publication Literary Gazette a week ago. This was the same magazine which a week before had carried an article by Boris Gorbatov comparing President Truman with "the little corporal from Munich," Adolf Hitler.

American Ambassador Walter B. Smith informed the State Department he had vigorously protested the article as "wantonly libelous" and demanded an official disavowal by the Russian government. As in the case of the Truman article, he was unsuccessful.

As author of the Marshall Plan for aid to Europe, Marshall was described in the article as "a dreadful old man, a Shakespearean Shylock, insatiable in his greed . . . who even threatens to surpass his classic original."

"There never was a 'Marshall Plan,'" Pogodin wrote, "but there was a Shylock plan—usurious, greedy and pitiless.

"Like the Shakespearean Shylock, Marshall personified the might of gold and its material force. Like Shylock, he becomes the allegory, the symbol of gold, and of its rough, avaricious power.

"From the moment of his speech (at Harvard June 5) dollars and only dollars have served as a gigantic bait, an irresistible magnet, for both officers of state, inflamed politicians, parliamentarians, men of affairs, and publicists in the western section of Europe."

Marshall at the United Nations, according to Pogodin, is "at his full stony-hearted and austere as becomes an old soldier." His plans are "the plans of the Government of President Truman."

"But," observes Pogodin, "President Truman, as is well known, directs his delegation from the battleship Missouri."

Sky's the Limit For Fishermen With Many Hooks

Salisbury, Md., Oct. 2 (AP).—Two Salisbury fishermen have worked out a policy of "give 'em plenty and get plenty."

J. Waller Williams and John Adkins explain it this way. At the beginning of summer they tried the conventional single fishing line approach. No luck.

Then they cut up tripe and baited eight hooks to a line. It worked well and croakers were caught in wholesale numbers.

That gave them an idea. Why not try a 200-foot line with a multitude of hooks? They did and landed half a bushel.

Maryland Wheat Goal Increased 5000 Acres

As part of the effort to meet the world food shortage, Maryland farmers were asked yesterday to plant 5000 more acres of wheat next year.

Joseph H. Blandford, chairman of the State Production and Marketing Administration, said the 1948 wheat goal for Maryland is 405,000 acres. While only 5000 more than this year's goal, it is 35,000 more than actually harvested.

Two Jewish Refugee Ships Seized by British

boarding British bluejackets but that there was some resistance on the Paducah. However, it was described as slight.

Arrival of the refugee ships temporarily pushed into the background the threat of an Arab general strike, scheduled to start tomorrow, but there was one Arab bombing in Jerusalem. The Arab underground blew up a Greek Christian grocery as a warning to stop selling Jewish produced goods.

Briton Freed in 'Death' Of Palestine Youth

Jerusalem, Oct. 2 (AP).—A five-man British military court today acquitted Capt. Roy Alexander Farran of a charge of murder but left the disappearance of 16-year-old Alexander Rubowitz as great a mystery as ever.

Deliberating only 10 minutes, the court freed the British war hero on the grounds that the death of Rubowitz, Jewish youth suspected of underground activities, had not been proved. The youth disappeared on May 6.

Prosecutor Maxwell Turner had drawn from a chain of witnesses the story of how Rubowitz was last seen being chased on a Jerusalem street at night, captured and thrown into a car with men wearing military uniform.

Farran was leading a "lightning patrol" against Jewish underground agents that night.

Eskimos Tell Of Red Project On Bering Sea

Anchorage, Alaska, Oct. 2 (AP).—Reports that Russia is building "rock houses" in the cliffs lining the shores of Siberia opposite St. Lawrence Island have been received from 20 Siberian natives visiting the American island, the Rev. E. R. Parker, Presbyterian missionary on the island, said today.

The missionary, now en route to the United States, told the Anchorage Times the information came to him from island Eskimos after a party of 20 Siberian natives visited St. Lawrence this summer.

"The visitors didn't know much about the activity at Indian Point on Chuckotski Peninsula (approximately 50 miles across the Bering Sea from St. Lawrence Island) but said the Russians are using large quantities of dynamite to blast out houses in the rock cliffs," Mr. Parker reported.

"They said they are not allowed to go near the project, which is a few miles across the bay from where they live. Their only contact is limited to work of unloading large amounts of cement, steel and wooden boxes from arriving steamers.

"The Siberians reported that the Soviets are using conscript labor on the building projects—periodically calling on the villages to examine the Eskimos and pick out men they want to work. They are sent to the interior and are gone about two years.

"Many never retrun, they say; those that do bring some money, asserting they were paid for their labor," he related.

The missionary said the visitors arrived in two open boats equipped with outboard motors and flying red flags. He said they carried passports issued by Soviet authorities.

The Siberians were "very curious" about the bluff that lies behind Gambell on St. Lawrence Island, Mr. Parker said, asking questions as to what was on top of the bluff or behind it.

Flood Control Costs Revised For Two Cities

Army engineers presented a revised figure of $2,125,000 for the local share of costs of a flood control project for the Cumberland, Md., and Ridgely, W. Va., area at a meeting with representatives of those cities yesterday.

The new figure compares to the previous estimate of $1,720,000 and is based on increased cost of labor and material.

Fred T. Small, plant manager and vice president of the Celanese Corporation of America, one of those who represented Cumberland at the meeting, told a reporter that the engineers promised to send a representative to the area "immediately" to survey land values.

Small said it will be important to determine "if the estimate of resale of land will be sufficiently high to lower the total cost to the communities so that we can safely go ahead and assume our share of the burden."

Engineers Ask Assurance

The engineers asked the two cities to give assurances in the form of a statement of intent that their full share of money for the project will be available.

The orignial project for the area was approved by Congress in 1937. Small said that no Federal appropriations have been made but that the engineers indicated today the initial appropriation for the first unit will be "available" in the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1948.

He said that Federal contributions are expected to be $7,900,000.

Welfare Budget To Be Discussed

Members of the Council of Social Agencies will be "briefed" on Welfare Department budget needs for fiscal 1949 at a meeting in the ABC Board Room at Municipal Center today at 3 p. m.

Welfare Director Ray L. Huff said his staff would meet with members of the council, the Committee of Nine (representatives of civic organizations interested in welfare problems), and Federal Security Agency officials.

"This is an attempt on the part of all concerned to get an over-all picture of the welfare needs of the community," Huff said.

Possession of Still Costs Md. Farmer $500, Jail

Baltimore, Oct. 2 (AP).—Federal Judge William C. Coleman sentenced Adolph Gold to six months in prison and fined him $500 today after the Frederick County farmer admitted possession of an unregistered still and 70 gallons of corn mash.

Jewish Agency Accepts U. N. Plan

Reluctantly Agrees to Partition but Warns Army Will Resist Arab Assaults

By John G. Rogers

Lake Success, Long Island, Oct. 2 (NYHT).—The Jewish Agency for Palestine told the United Nations today that it accepts reluctantly the U. N. partition plan for the Holy Land.

It asserted that a Jewish army would stand ready—with or without U. N. help—to defend the proposed Jewish state against any Arab assaults.

While accepting partition as apparently the only way out of the tightly knotted plight of Palestine, the Jewish Agency contended the plan before the U. N. is unfair to the Jews and strongly urged that western Galilee and the modern Jewish section of Jerusalem be added to the proposed Jewish state.

Says 2-Year Transition Too Long

The position of the Jewish Agency—a semiofficial body recognized under the British mandate for Palestine—was presented before the 57-country Palestine Committee of the U. N. General Assembly by Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, chairman of the American section of the agency executive.

The speech represented the first official acceptance by the Palestininian Jews of partition.

(Joseph Cherner, 1630 Juniper st. nw., president of the Louis D. Brandeis Zionist District of Washington, told The Washington Post the agency represented virtually all Jews in Palestine. He said he would put the figure as high at 97 or 98 per cent.—Editor's note.)

Although agreeing in principle to partition, which was recommended by a majority of the U. N. Inquiry Committee, Dr. Silver said that the proposed two-year transition was far too long. The Jews, he insisted, are ready for immediate independence.

Hopes U. N. Will Call Haganah

But if there must be a transition interval, Dr. Silver said, he hoped that Haganah—the non-terrorist Jewish defense force—could be called upon by the U. N. to contribute to maintenance of law and order in Palestine.

The rabbi asserted that if the British were to pull suddenly out of Palestine—as they have indicated they might—Haganah would take over immediately to enforce public security in the "dangerous vacuum" created.

And, finally, on the question of the safety of a future Jewish state in the midst of an Arab world, Dr. Silver asserted the Jews desire to live in peace among friendly neighbors.

Minimizes War Threats

But, he assured the committee, which is presided over by Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Foreign Minister, that if the need arose the Jews would be able to take care of themselves in any test of arms and in this connection he minimized the war and trouble threats that have been made both by the Palestinian Arabs and the nearby Arab states.

"The Jewish people in Palestine is prepared to defend itself," he said. "A people that has survived the accumulated fury of the centuries, faced powerful empires, in a bitter battle for survival, and during the last war saw hundreds of thousands of its sons fighting for freedom in all the liberating armies of the Allied nations—while the head of the Arab Higher Committee of Palestine was broadcasting Nazi propaganda from Berlin—such a people will not be intimidated. It is not impressed by idle threats."

Dr. Silver's reference to the Arab Higher Committee head put the finger once again on Haj Amin el Husseini, exiled Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, whose nephew, Jamal Husseini, vice chairman of the Arab Higher Committee, is here as chief of the Palestinian Arab delegation.

Bulgarian Envoy Rejects Protest on Execution

Moscow, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—S. K. Kolev, Bulgarian charge d'affaires in Moscow, rejecting an Anglo-American protest against the execution of Bulgarian political leader, Nikola Petkov, declared today that his country "cannot allow civil war to break out . . . as in Greece, as a result of . . . intervention in her internal affairs."

He told 30 Soviet and foreign correspondents the United States and Britain were guilty of "crude falsification" in charging that Petkov's execution violated the Bulgarian peace treaty clause promising a democratic Bulgaria regime.

Blast in Army Arsenal Kills Research Scientist

Dover, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP).—A small blast in the chemical research laboratory of the United States Army arsenal at Picatinny proved fatal today to Dr. Paul F. Macy, 37, research scientist and head of the Army's laboratory here.

Dr. Macy was working on an experiment, the nature of which was undisclosed. He is survived by his widow, Dorothy, and a daughter, Linda Anna.

3 Indicted in Rape

Ozark, Ala., Oct. 2 (U.P.).—A special grand jury today indicted three white men on a charge of raping a 40-year-old Negro woman. Indictments were returned against Lawrence Price, 29, and William G. Lane, 25, both of Graceville, Fla., and John Gavin 25, of Bonifay, Fla.

W. E. Johnson To Be Named Clerk Of U.S. Court in Va.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—Judge Sterling Hutcheson announced today that Assistant United States Attorney Walkley E. Johnson will be appointed clerk of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia this fall.

The Eastern District includes courts in Alexandria, Norfolk, Newport News and Richmond with active clerks' offices in all but Newport News. There is one deputy clerk in Alexandria; five in Norfolk and four in Richmond.

A native of Belle Haven, Accomac County, 45-year-old Johnson attended public schools on the Eastern Shore and Virginia Episcopal School, Lynchburg. He studied at the University of Virginia for three years after which he taught high school English and coached athletics for three years on the Eastern Shore. He received his law degree from the University of Virginia in 1931.

Write of Own Time, Author Appel Says

Benjamin Appel, whose seventh book, "But Not Yet Slain," was published this week, relaxed awhile yesterday from work on his eighth to discuss the business of being a writer.

Appel

"I believe a novelist should write of his own period and time. Yet that is the hardest period to write about because the author must find out for himself what is of basic importance in his time," he declared.

All of his books are timed in the present century. His latest is the story of a New Dealer, holder of a high position in a Government agency in Washington, and his plight in the postwar period with its many changes of politics and policies.

Appel will discuss how this book was written at The Washington Post's Book and Author Luncheon October 14 at the Statler Hotel. Other guest authors at the affair will be Lucius Beebe, author of "Mixed Train Daily"; Natalie Anderson Scott, who wrote "The Story of Mrs. Murphy"; Edmond Taylor, who wrote "Richer by Asia" and Walter Karig, author of "Zotz."

Appel knows well the background of his book. In 1943 he came to Washington, where he worked until April, 1947 for several Government agencies as a writer of speeches for top officials and of publications for the agencies.

In 1945 he went to the Philippines with Paul V. McNutt, at that time U. S. High Commissioner to the Philippines. The scene of the novel he is now working on is laid there. His earlier books were about New York City, where he grew up on the West Side.

"I got my start as a writer when I won a prize for a one-act play in contest sponsored by Northwestern University in 1929, the year I was graduated from Lafayette College. I've been writing ever since," he explained yesterday.

Actually that was not his beginning. He wrote his first novel in a mathematics class in high school.

"Needless to say, my mathematics grades were poor and the novel never published," he chuckled.

But Appel, despite rejection slips, kept at work. Today he has to his credit six novels, including "Brain Guy," "Four Roads to Death" and "Runaround," and a nonfiction book, "The People Talk," the material for which he gathered by traveling all over the country. He is also the author of numerous articles and short stories, a number of which have been included in well known anthologies.

At present he lives with his wife and two young daughters at 18 West Glendale ave., Alexandria. The Appels are in the process of selling their home, however, and plan to move soon near Princeton, N. J., so that he can be nearer publishers.

Frosts End Hay Fever Season; Pollen Count Reached 192

Graph indicates ragweed pollen count for September

A District Medical Society spokesman said last night that while "there are a few grains still floating around," the ragweed pollen season is about over.

The season's peak was reached September 2, when the pollen count reached 192 grains per cubic yard of air. It was the third of a five-day period when the count was never under a hundred grains.

Peak count for the 1946 season was 146 grains, but the total count for the two seasons was almost identical, so victims probably noticed little difference.

The season also saw considerable use of two relatively new drugs, benadryl and pyribenzamine.

Both drugs counteract histamine, a poison released in the systems of allergic persons under certain conditions, and provide a measure of relief.

Experience this past season has shown some of the limitations of these drugs, the Medical Society spokesman said, and indicated that they are much more effective in hay fever cases than in asthma cases.

16 Girls Begin Training as Nurse Aides

Sixteen girls reported for a one year course as nurse aides at Doctors Hospital Wednesday.

Revision in the course provide three months of class room experience instead of four, and a corresponding increase in practical work in caring for patients and in the hospital laboratories.

The girls will be paid $25 a month for their first three month's training, $50 a month for the second six months, and $75 a month for the last three months. In addition, they will receive free laundry, text books, and meals while on duty.

The aides, who are between 18 and 35, will work a 6-day, 48-hour week. They may be single or married, but must have no dependants.

The first class trained by the hospital will be graduated November 2. At that time they will receive aide caps, uniforms, and pins denoting their training.

Buses, Trolleys Fitted to Give Proper Heat

If you've ridden in a roasting hot bus or trolley recently—or almost frozen in one because the heat wasn't working—please understand the condition is but temporary.

That is the word of J. B. Blaiklock, superintendent of equipment of Capital Transit Co.

And despite rumors to the contrary, Blaiklock affirms that the company's 20 new buses do have plenty of heat whenever it's necessary. The hot air, he says, rolls out of the heater at a rate of 900 cubic feet a minute.

That is twice as much, the superintendent says as the output on older buses.

Blaiklock admits any bus or trolley may occasionally get too hot or too cold. If the former, the operator can turn the heat off. If too cold, the equipment can be "turned in" for repair. Within 24 hours the condition is righted and the vehicle or trolley is back at work.

"We don't worry much about lack of heat in our equipment," he said. "Our main trouble is keeping the heat down."

"Even so," he continued, "you can't please all the people all the time." Everyone sems to feel the same amount of heat differently, Blaiklock said, depending, for one thing, upon the clothes he is wearing.

"GEE, MOM... which is which?"
BLUE GOOSE CANNED ORANGE JUICE tastes fresh*
"My children proved it!" says noted home economist
"At last I've found a canned orange juice with the natural flavor of tree-fresh fruit," writes Mrs. Helen Freeman, eminent Southern California food authority and mother of two healthy youngsters.
"I blindfolded my children and asked them to compare Blue Goose with freshly squeezed orange juice. Their verdict was: 'They both taste fresh!' And children's taste buds are twice as sensitive as those of an adult!..... That convinced me.
"Naturally, I ran my own laboratory tests, too...vitamin count, and purity tests. Blue Goose compares favorably with fresh on every score. Now I can heartily recommend Blue Goose Orange Juice to every housewife and mother. I have found that it combines the convenience and economy of canned juice with the sweet flavor and healthfulness of fresh."
HERE'S THE BLUE GOOSE SECRET Four-Way Flavor Control
1. Pretesting of tree-ripened premium grade fresh California Valencias for ideal flavor.
2. Gentle pressing extracts only the sweet juice.
3. Improved flash pasteurization (old way 4 minutes—new way 2 seconds) safeguards fresh flavor—no "cooked" taste.
4. Plastic-lined cans give lasting protection from "tinny" flavor.
FLAVOR CONTROL ALSO PROTECTS High Vitamin Content
*Skeptics! Here's Your Proof
1. Chill a can of Blue Goose Orange Juice overnight.
2. Shake it well.
3. Pour it back and forth to aerate it thoroughly.
4. Taste and enjoy it.

World Radio Treaty Signed By 78 Nations

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP).—The Atlantic City Convention, a new treaty regulating world radio operations, was signed here today by representatives of 78 nations.

Denny

The only major power missing from the ceremony was Britain. Her representatives affixed their signatures earlier in the week and departed. A number of small nations did likewise.

Charles R. Denny, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, was head of the United States delegation.

The regulations adopted by the nations fill 391 pages of small print and cover all phases of international radio communications, including operating practices, technical standards, proceedings relating to safety and distress and many other subjects.

Church Meeting Set in Hagerstown

Winchester, Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—The Atlantic Conference of Brethren Churches, which has been in session here since Tuesday, closed about noon today after accepting an invitation to hold its next annual meeting the first week in October, 1948, at Hagerstown, Md.

The address this morning was by Dr. A. V. Kimmell of Philadelphia, who spoke on the scope of missionary work being undertaken by the denomination in Africa. Dr. Kimmell will leave soon by plane for the missionary field in that continent.

2 Ohio Farms Are Reclaimed in Single Day

Brownsville, Ohio, Oct. 2 (AP).—Two Ohio hill farms looked different tonight.

Their 208 acres, cupped in a little amphitheater formed by a creek flowing into the Licking River, are ready to grow food as never before. The gullies are filled and the furrows follow around the hills instead of across them.

The next rain will take but little of the remaining top soil to the Gulf of Mexico. That topsoil has been enriched with 875 tons of lime and 45 tons of fertilizers.

There's a new barn, a steel quonset, going up near a new farm pond of a half acre. There is rye and wheat in the ground along with legumes.

This was done today—four years soil conservation work in one day—in a big demonstration before nearly 50,000 persons who jammed Ohio's famous national Old Trail (U. S. Route 40) all day to see "the opening of the second frontier."

Hugh Hammond Bennett, 69-year-old chief of the United States Soil Conservation Service said:

"I never expected to live to see the day when so many people would turn out to see a demonstration of soil conservation farming."

Only doubled in value for John Rodman, a former GI who owns 128 of the acres, and George Latham, and his GI son, Bob, who have the 80 other acres. One weatherbeaten farmer tramping over the ground that Rodman bought with a GI loan more than a year ago, turned and said to his wife: "It's a $10,000 farm this morning, it's a $20,000 farm tonight."

The sponsors—the Licking County Soil Conservation District and the Ohio Soil Conservation Service—called it the "opening of the second frontier" because America has to find new productivity in the soil it has. There are no new lands to open up.

"Last year," said Bennett in his brief speech after a plaque honoring him was unveiled on a granite boulder, "the Soil Conservation Service helped farmers in their own districts to apply soil conservation to something over 20 million acres of land. Within a few years we expect them to be treating between 40 and 50 million acres a year."

The Soil Conservation Service, Chambers of Commerce, newspapers and radio stations, farm machinery manufacturers and petroleum companies all chipped in to help finance and stage the demonstration. The Army also lent its help.

Salisbury Man Named To State Accident Fund

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 2 (AP).—Governor Lane today appointed Royden S. Meise of Salisbury a commissioner of the State accident fund to succeed former State Senator Frank J. Bauer of Baltimore.

WIN a MOTOR SCOOTER!

Dash DOG FOOD CONTEST

IT'S EXCITING! LOADS OF FUN!

Just Finish a 2-Line Jingle starting with—
My best-loved pet is ----------

These SAMPLE JINGLES show how easy it is to enter!
"My best-loved pet is a dog named Rover.
When I feed him Dash, he's happy all over."
"My best-loved pet is a cat very old.
So wise she's worth her weight in gold."
Imagine! 1028 opportunities to win—just for writing little jingles like those above. Everyone says they're fun to write!

How to write your own jingles!
Just start your jingle with the words: "My best-loved pet is." Then finish your jingle so the last words in both lines rhyme (like the samples shown here). Write about any pet—a dog, a cat—yes, any pet of your own or even a friend's! Your jingle can tell why you like this pet, why you picked its name, etc. You'll get dozens of ideas as soon as you start. So get busy now!

Send your entry today!
Hurry! No time to lose! You don't want to miss your opportunity to win a motor scooter!

Grand Prizes! 8 STREAMLINED SALSBURY Motor Scooters
Win one of these 8 grand prizes and be the envy of your school and neighborhood! Imagine! 8 big opportunities to win a powerful, torpedo-streamlined motor scooter! The first and only motor scooter engineered and precision-built like an automobile. Rugged 6 h.p. motor that gives you 65-85 miles per gal. Automatic clutch and transmission! Easy to drive. Just push one pedal and you go. Push another and you stop on a dime! Internal expanding brake for extra safety. Front and rear lights. Big rear package trunk. Aircraft-type wheel suspension for riding comfort. Just picture yourself waving to the gang as you ride by on your brand new scooter! Remember, eight will be given away!

Second Prizes! 20 BRAND NEW Ranger Bikes
What fun you can have if you win one of these flashing, new bikes! They're famous Ranger bikes—made by Mead Cycle Co. Fully equipped with these latest features: 26" balloon tires, chrome-plated handle bar, bell-type electric head lamp, chain guard, clip-on hand pump, luggage carrier, kick stand and built-in reflector. Winners have choice of boys' or girls' models! AND—twenty will be given away!

Third Prizes! 1000 CARTONS (GIANT SUPPLY) Bub BUBBLE GUM
Here are one thousand opportunities for you to win a whole carton of Bub, the bubble gum of Champions! Each carton holds 20 packages—each package holds 7 sticks. 140 sticks in all! Think of it! A whole month's supply all at once! You have 1000 opportunities to win—so send your entries at once!

SEND DASH LABEL WITH EACH ENTRY OR REASONABLE FACSIMILE

Tell Mother you want Dash for your dog because it's fortified with liver! (You know, football coaches recommend liver for their star players' diets!) So it's extra good for your dog. Cats love it, too. Get some today!

Just follow these easy RULES TO WIN!
1. Finish a 2-line jingle that starts with the words: "My best-loved pet is . . ." The last word in the first line must rhyme with the last word in the second line.
2. Write on any sheet of paper. Be sure to print your name and address clearly. Write on one side of the paper only.
3. Mail your entry to Armour and Company, Box 1369, Chicago 90, Illinois. Send as many entries as you wish, but each entry must be accompanied by a label from a can of Dash Dog Food (or reasonable facsimile).
4. Entries will be judged on originality and aptness of thought by independent judges. Neatness and proper spelling are not required. Duplicate prizes in case of ties. Judges' decisions are final. No entries returned. All entries and ideas contained therein become property of Armour and Company.
5. All persons in United States, its territories and possessions, may enter—except employees of both Armour and Company and its advertising agency, and their families. Contest subject to all Federal and State regulations.
6. All prize winners will be notified as soon as possible after the contest closes. Complete list of winners will be sent to anyone sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
7. Contest closes Saturday, Oct. 25, 1947. All entries must be postmarked before midnight of that date and received before November 15, 1947.

Rome Union's General Strike Is Postponed Near Deadline

By Norman Montellier

Rome, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—The Communist-controlled Labor Federation (CGIL) postponed the threatened general strike in Rome tonight 30 minutes before the midnight deadline and considered an urgent government appeal to cancel completely the scheduled walkout of 200,000 workers.

There were no indications, however, that government mediators had solved the dispute between 30,000 squatters and the owners of the private land on which they have squatted intermittently for 11 days.

The squatters had demanded that they be given 80 per cent of the uncultivated land in Rome Province.

The Labor Confederation ordered 4000 farmers to "march on Rome" Sunday, to "protest against the government."

The tense labor situation, coupled with the leftist-sponsored assembly motion of no confidence in the government of Premier Alcide de Gasperi, brought a jubilant left-wing Socialist statement that, "in these conditions, De Gasperi stands with his back to the wall."

One source close to the cabinet drew a parallel between Italy's current crisis and that which presaged the Communist coup in Hungary last May. He said, "The Communists are trying to keep the government so busy dealing with agitation that it is almost impossible to do any governing."

Italian Rightists Ask New Cabinet Post

Rome, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Guglielmo Gianni, leader of the right-wing Qualunquist (Common Man) movement whose 33 Deputies hold a balance of power in the Assembly, conditioned his support of the governmen ttoday on ht ecreation of a new ministry to be called "the Ministry of European Unity" and to be headed by a member of his party.

The red-haired former playwright, whom leftists say would be a "new Il Duce," declared "A United States of Europe is the key to the world situation today. It must be the key to our foreign policy."

N. C. Will Execute 5 Criminals in 1 Day

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 2 (A.P.).—Governor R. Gregg Cherry announced today that he would not intervene in five scheduled executions tomorrow, a record number for North Carolina on one day.

The five condemned men are Jethro Lampkin and Richard McCain, Negroes, convicted of murdering a Charlotte coal dealer; Robert Messer and Earl O'Dear, convicted in Jackson County of slaying a taxicab driver and his wife; and Willie Cherry, Negro, convicted in Northampton County of first degree burglary.

Winchester Firemen Kept Busy at School

Firemen of Winchester, Va., fought another blaze in a two-room schoolhouse 7 miles south of Winchester less than six hours after battling an estimated $175,000 packing shed fire in the town.

The school fire, discovered about 7:30 a. m. yesterday, burned out one room completely and made the other unfit for use. The school's 56 pupils, none of whom were present, will enjoy a vacation pending school board decision as to where they will resume study.

Damage has not been estimated. A school official said the building was covered by insurance.

Winchester Fire Chief Taylor Barr said yesterday he will investigate the packing shed fire together with a member of the State fire marshal's office. Cause is undetermined.

The metal-covered, 200x160 foot apple packing building was owned by the Winchester Cold Storage Co. Apple grading equipment, packing boxes and materials, and several thousand bushels of apples were destroyed.

Diseases, infectious and parasitic, take almost a half billion dollars a year from livestock producers, says the United States Department of Agriculture. An estimated 30 per cent of these losses are due to internal worms.

Manchurian Port Shelled

Peiping, Oct. 2 (A.P.).—The Chinese navy, credited with a major role in yesterday's capture of Chefoo, moved north today and began shelling Communist positions around the vital government port of Hulutao in Manchuria, government dispatches reported.

Hulutao is a port of entry for government troops and supplies bound for the Manchurian fronts. In addition to the naval aid, Gen. Fu Tso-yi's well-knit government troops are reported moving eastward from Jehol in hot pursuit of the Communists.

South of the great wall in China proper, Communists fired on a passenger train on the reopened Peiping-Paoting route and raided several points on the Peiping-Chengteh line within 35 miles northeast of Peiping.

Approximately 2,145,000 passenger automobiles and 933,000 buses were produced in the United States last year, the Encyclopedia Britannica 1947 Book of the Year reports. That was 84 per cent under the number of units produced in 1941.

Morgenthau Says Wallace Shied at Reds

Henry Morgenthau, jr., said yesterday Henry Wallace and Cordell Hull opposed recognition of Soviet Russia in 1933 on religious grounds and Wallace's position led President Roosevelt to call him "a kind of mystic."

Hull

The former Treasury secretary said in the third of a series of six articles in Collier's magazine, based on his diaries, that Mr. Roosevelt believed non-recognition of Russia "a futile gesture against an established government."

Morgenthau added that "he must have perceived that Russia would be a natural ally" against Germany.

But the State Department, Morgenthau said, was "unsympathetic if not hostile" and Secretary Hull "gave the impression that the religious issue was uppermost in his mind.

Wallace Opposition

"Opposition came also, strangely enough, from Henry Wallace, who called on the President late in October in order to express his fears about the 'religious effect' recognition would have on the country. That conversation left the President thoroughly puzzled."

He said William Bullitt, then handling Soviet affairs in the State Department, hoped to be first Ambassador to Moscow and "was as furiously pro-Russian as he is furiously anti-Russian today.

Wallace, Harold Ickes and others who "were to become deeply alive to the Nazi menace" were then "too much immersed in domestic questions," Morgenthau said.

When Morgenthau argued for sale of surplus cotton to China to strenghten her against Japan, the State Department feared it would "offend Japan" and Wallace "simply ignored the foreign policy implications," he said.

Morgenthau said Wallace, then Secretary of Agriculture, asked him, if the sale went through, to withhold anouncement of it for 30 days "so that the price of cotton will stay down and I can go out and conclude my arrangements to lease land (for the Government) from cotton growers and withdraw it from cultivation."

Controversy With Hull

Morgenthau said he told Wallace the farmers "would feel that you had misled them" and said Wallace replied: "I do not care what they think as long as I can lease their land."

The former Secretary described his long controversy with Hull over methods of curbing fascism and said that although he respected Hull's "fine moral and human qualities," Hull's "moral force sometimes verged on mere testiness.

"While disliking fascism, he did not always see that its threat to peace had to be met by vigorous action on our part. The State Department was beating its wings ineffectually against a rising storm.

"The State Department was not alone in this attitude," Morgenthau added. "In the midst of the Italian invasion of Ethiopia, Jesse Jones, then head of the lending agencies, proposed that the United States grant Italy a short-term credit for the purchase of cotton. The Treasury killed that idea."

Ends Clinic Work

Dr. William Welsh of Rockville this week ended many years as physician in Montgomery County venereal disease clinics. He was presented with a gift by Rockville clinic workers in appreciation of his services. Besides the Rockville clinic, Dr. Welsh has been connected in recent years with the Olney and Poolesville clinics.

Billy Repaid Guest

Billy Repaid, WEAM news commentator at Arlington, Va., will be guest speaker at the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce monthly dinner at 7 p. m. Monday at the Kenwood Country Club.

G. W. Barghausen

Funeral services for George W. Barghausen, 56, 1126 9th st. nw., who died at his home of a heart attack Monday night, were held yesterday at the W. W. Deal funeral home, 4812 Georgia ave. nw.

Founder and president of the sheet metal contracting firm that for 30 years bore his name, Mr. Barghausen had operated his business from a wheelchair for the past 10 years. He fell when a scaffolding collapsed while he was repairing the roof of a church in LaPlata, Md., in 1937.

Although his injuries forced him to curtail many of his activities, he designed and built a 35-fot cabin cruiser, the "Miss Gee," in his own yard. The craft took three years to build and was lanuched in the Chesapeake Bay in 1945.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Marie Hook Barghausen, a son, George J. Barghausen, three brothers and five sisters.

Chester W. Glidden

Funeral services for Chester W. Blidden, 51, Washington real estate dealer, will be held today at Geiger's funeral home, 3805 14th st. nw., at 2 p. m. Interment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Glidden died at his home, 3005 Otis st. ne., Tuesday.

A native of New Hampshire, he attended New Hampshire State College and was a member of the local alumni group of the college. He had been engaged in the real estate business here for more than 20 years, maintaining offices at 412 5th st. nw.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Zelda S. Glidden; three sons, Willis S., Robert T. and Richard S. Glidden, all of Washington; three sisters, Mrs. Esther Albury, Springfield, N. J.; Mrs. Nellie Christian, Roxbury, Mass., and Mrs. Elizabeth O'Neil, Washington, and two brothers, Willis H. Glidden, Milton, N. H., and Augustus S. Glidden, Wolfsboro, N. H.

Wedding Plea Saves Fine

A 22-year-old Takoma Park, Md., youth, convicted of speeding at more than 70 miles an hour, drew a suspended fine of $175 in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday because he was to be married.

Judge Arthur P. Owens agreed to suspend the fine after the youth, Norton H. Rhodes of 6701 New Hampshire ave., pleaded that he "needed money because he was about to get married." Although he admitted he might have been speeding, he denied the specific charge that he was traveling in excess of 70.

Rhodes was arrested at about 5 a.m. yesterday by Takoma Park Town Policeman J. W. Hite, jr., who testified that on one occasion the youth's speed reached 82 miles an hour. He said Rhodes explained that he was "in a hurry to get home"

Safecrackers Get $3500 From Office at Alexandria

Safe crackers got away with about $3500 from the Paulsam Distributing Co. in Alexandria Wednesday night.

Police said the safe showed no sign of being forced. But a metal box inside, where coowner George Winnick said he had placed $3500 at the close of business Wednesday, had been broken open and emptied.

Policemen George Jordan and Robert Evans reported that while making their rounds just after midnight they noticed the front door of the office at Duke and Union sts. had been jimmied. On entering they said they found the 18 x 36-inch safe open in the front office.

Police surmised either that (1) the thieves had carried the safe into the more secluded front office to work on it, or (2) they were in the act of carrying it away with them when they found that they could open it.

Winnick felt sure he had locked the safe after depositing the money. But he said he usually just flicks the combination dial to lock it; he wasn't sure that the lock had caught.

About half the money, which is entirely covered by insurance, was in checks, Winnick said.

Farmers' Day Crowd Tops at Frederick Fair

Frederick, Md., Oct. 2 (Spl.)—Farmers' Day attracted the largest crowd of the week today at the Frederick Fair, held at the Fair Grounds here.

Main attractions of the day, observed in honor of the Farm Bureau, Grange and Homemakers' Clubs, were the exhibits by farm women and 4-H Club girls in the art building.

Eighteen girls' clubs arranged booths with clothing, canned goods and other typical exhibits. A model of a home, titled "Today's home builds tomorrow's world," was erected by the Rural Women's Short Course, while a note warning was injected by the Frederick County Senior 4-H Council in its showing of farm equipment, asking "Is it safe?"

Autos Provide Light

Failure of electric power last night necessitated the latter part of the outdoor entertainment being illuminated by lights from parked cars in front of the grandstand.

Camparatively few complaints have been received by police so far. They reported that several persons had requested their money back after engaging in games of chance and that one dice game had been closed. No reportsof pickpockets have been received and order, generally, is god.

The first cavalcade of livestock paraded before the grandstand this afternoon prior to the race and grandstand attractions. It will be repeated tomorrow.

Motion Heard To Dismiss Fare Protest

A motion to dismiss a complaint lodged by the Washington Industrial Union Council against the fare rate increase granted Capital Transit Co., last May, was taken under advisement by Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts in District Court yesterday.

Attorney Herman Tucker, representing the council, argued that the Public Utilities Commission did not allow a "reasonable" lapse between May 8 when the increase was approved and May 11 when it became effective. This, Tucker contended, stifled the possible filing of applications for a rehearing.

Counsel for Capital Transit and the PUC asserted the PUC action was legal, that the order was in effect, and that there was nothing for the court to decide. The PUC was represented by Lloyd Harrison. Attorneys Samuel Clark and F. G. Awalt appeared for the transit company.

F. M. Fairfax, Funeral Set for 1 P.M. Tomorrow

Funeral services for Frederick M. Fairfax, 42, finance officer of the Treasury Department's National bank division, will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. in the Church of the Ascension, Sligo ave. and Carroll lane, Silver Spring. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln cemetery.

Mr. Fairfax died unexpectedly Wednesday at his home, 116 Hamilton ave., Silver Spring, following a heart attack.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ann Fairfax, and a son, Carl S., both of the Silver Spring address; a brother, Lawrence Fairfax; and three sisters, Mrs. Lewis M. Francis, Mrs. Arthur D. Stanley, and Mrs. Carl Hilley, all of Washington.

Profs Eat Well

New York (U.P.)—George Faurbach, manager of the cafeteria at City College, believes that the average professor eats twice as much as the average student. He estimated that whereas the professor spends 68 cents for his average meal at the cafeteria, the student eats only 30 cents worth.

Girl, 21, Tries To Ship Self To U. S. by Air

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 2 (U.P.). Officials at Rhein main airport today opened a "suspicious" packing case offered for air express to New York, and found a half clad, baby-faced girl.

Tears flooding her blue-gray eyes, Doris Brigitte von Knobloch, 21, explained to the startled officials she was so desperate to see her sweetheart in New York she had tricked a GI into shipping her.

She had spent 20 hours in the box, which was barely big enough to hold her in a jack-knife position, subsisting on four slices of black bread and a small jar or cold, sugarless tea.

Takes Box to Airport

Military authorities exonerated Pvt. Robert Siedentopf of any part in the plot. He had jeeped the box to the airport as a favor for Miss von Knobloch's girl friend and co-plotter, Sigrid Kraft.

Officials said that if the soldier had had the money to pay the $130 express charge, the box would have left on last night's plane and Miss von Knobloch would have arrived in New York as a frozen corpse. The box would have been placed in an unheated, center compartment of a freight plane where the temperature at 10,000 feet hits 15 degrees below zero.

After the war Miss Von Knobloch worked in a Berlin hospital where she met and fell in love with Rolph Berndt, who had spent 18 months in notorious Sachsenhausen concentration camp because one of his parents was Jewish. In 1946 Berndt went to New York.

Miss von Knobloch and Miss Kraft, who hopes to go to the States to meet a sweetheart in North Carolina, conceived the self-shipment plan.

[When Army investigators questioned Miss Kraft, she disclosed she also was planning to ship herself to America and said she already had slept two nights in her box with the lid closed "just for practice."

[Both of the girls had sleeping tablets and razor blades in their possession, The Associated Press reported. Sigrid said they planned to take the tablets if they were too uncomfortable in their cramped quarters and that they would have slashed their wrists to commit suicide if they thought they were suffocating. Both girls were being held today "pending further investigation."—Editor's Note.]

They built a box 21 by 30 by 24 inches for the five-foot, 105-pound girl. It had false screws so it could be opened from the inside.

Danse Macabre

It was a rather gruesome fate that overtook our late fellow townsman, Mr. Bobo Newsom, yesterday afternoon at Ebbets Field. Mr. Newsom, as you know, lasted slightly more than an inning against the Brooklyn Dodgers; and whatever it was that was wrong with him, he managed to pass on the infection to nearly all the pitchers on either side. Indeed, before the advent of Mr. Hugh Casey, it began to appear that the game might go on till midnight, so difficult became the business of getting a side out.

Still, it is a comforting thought that in these times of inflation, the spectators got a good deal for their money, if not in the way of baseball, in other assorted excitements, especially in the later innings. And perhaps the best of it all was the final realization, at least on the part of those who were bright at arithmetic, that the Dodgers are still in the World Series. It is not, to be sure (judged by either technical or esthetic standards) very much of a series—but they say, alas, that it isn't much of a world either.

Morgenthau's Memoirs

The installments of the much-advertised memoirs of Mr. Henry Morgenthau, jr., which have now appeared in Collier's magazine, are distinguished by what might be interpreted either as a courageous candor or as extraordinary naivete. They are concerned mainly with the conflicts within the inner circle of the Roosevelt Administration over questions of fiscal policy. By 1937 there seems to have been a strong party among the President's advisers which believed that recovery was impossible unless the Administration regained the confidence of the bankers and businessmen and that the only way to regain it was to balance the budget. This party included, besides Mr. Morgenthau, Mr. Farley, Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy and apparently Mr. Ickes, whose natural instinct in dispensing public funds was "to measure them out with a medicine dropper." Opposing them was the "boom or bust" party headed by Messrs. Harry Hopkins and Leon Henderson.

At one point the party which favored reconciliation with the business interests seemed to have gained the ascendancy of the presidential mind. On November 10, Mr. Morgenthau, in a speech that had been carefully edited by Mr. Roosevelt himself, announced to the members of the National Academy of Political Science, who included "the wealthiest and most conservative businessmen of New York City," that the Administration intended "to continue progress toward a balance of the Federal budget." But instead of cheering this statement the audience "openly tittered and hooted."

Whether this meant that the businessmen, as Mr. Morgenthau seems to believe, were so sodden with self-interest as to have lost all public spirit, or merely that they understood better than he the value of such assurances, is something that we shall leave you to decide for yourself. In any event, Mr. Roosevelt in his next press conference took pains to tell the correspondents that there were more important questions before the country than balancing the budget. This was a sign that the President had abruptly transferred his support from Mr. Morgenthau to Mr. Hopkins. The "boom or bust" party, it seems, had persuaded the President that it had to be a finish fight between Big Business and the Administration to determine "who controls America." A new and still more grandiose spending program was launched, one that would increase the deficit by 3½ billion dollars, not counting "money for lending and pump-priming." The figure seems paltry now, but at the time it shocked Mr. Morgenthau profoundly. He thought of resigning, but allowed himself to be talked out of it; after all, he decided, it was "a technical . . . rather than a moral issue; a question of means, not ends." But means are always important, if only because they have a way of becoming ends in themselves.

Looking back, Mr. Morgenthau cannot now decide whether he or the opposite party in the Roosevelt Administration was right in 1937. The truth is that Mr. Morgenthau, whether he realizes it or not, has posed here the great dilemma which underlies the world-wide crisis, at least in its economic aspects. In any system of free enterprise and private profit where each turn of the business cycle reduces a larger and larger section of society to pauperism, political liberty must sooner or later lose any meaning for the majority of citizens.

Yet the device of mitigating the effects of the business cycle by public spending is also destructive of liberty because of the vast power it places in the hands of those who control the public funds. From public spending to planned economy is a logical step; from planned economy to the conscription of labor is, as the British experience testifies, an almost inevitable one. Thus unless the modern world is to drift into either universal economic chaos or into universal slavery some escape from this dilemma must be found. It is now clear enough that neither the First New Deal nor the Second New Deal was able to discover it.

Blocs And The U. N.

Clearly the creation of blocs in the United Nations would be to the detriment of world opinion—the world opinion that the ordinary man is relying upon to focus on the peace problem. This is probably a vain hope as the organization is now constituted. But the consequences of not realizing it should be pondered. If the voting in the United Nations degenerates into bloc log-rolling, then the world conscience would have no recognized outlet, and the spirit of the United Nations would be homeless.

The thought arises from contemplation of diplomacy at work in the United Nations. Latin Americans, evidently, have met as a group and decided that western Europe could have access to their raw materials—on a strictly dollar basis. All this means is that they are open to business. (Business in the case of Argentina is wheat at $5.90 a bushel, or over twice the ruling price.) This advertisement of business as usual in Latin America is hardly worthy of record. Of interest would have been an announcement that in the cause of world peace the Latins had decided to make some contribution to the restoration of western Europe. Such an announcement would have been regarded not only as a pacific gesture, but also as a return for favors received. Latin America owes a good deal to western Europe. Some of the western countries are the stock whence they came, religious ties are close with Italy, and the intellectual and cultural parent acknowledged by most Latin Americans is France. Most important, western Europe is in the grip of an economic travail which unless arrested will change all our futures, that of Latin Americans included. Group action in furtherance of regional at the expense of world interests is reprehensible in this critical posture of events.

However, Latin America, while regionally conscious, does not vote as a unit in the United Nations in matters of general concern. Nor is there any evidence that the successive Latin-American members of the Security Council are not world-conscious. Brazil's Vellosa died from overwork in the Security Council, and his successor, Oswaldo Aranha, now President of the Assembly, has already won his spurs in world counsels. Even Dr. Arce, who now goes on the Council in Brazil's place as Argentina's representative, is far from limited in his interests. A voluble man, not averse to lobbying among the other Latin Americans, he seems, nonetheless, to have something to say about everything. That is as it should be. The need is for all the delegates to think of proposals not affecting themselves immediately as requiring a sense of responsibility in their consideration. Perhaps the habit will grow as a result of some of the examples among the statesmen of Latin America.

By no means the same progress can be noted among the members of the Arab League. It is already called a bloc in the United Nations, and the seven members of it who at the same time are members of the United Nations seem to entertain little regard for general affairs. The bloc may now be joined by the two new members, Yemen and Pakistan. Just before their admission a spokesman of the Arab League talked to the United Nations in language that hardly comports with the preamble of the United Nations Charter. War to the death is pledged if the U. N. Commission's majority report on Palestine is accepted. No doubt, too, the members are being courted by, or are courting, the U. S. S. R., as the Soviet is the most bloc-minded of all, having no other aim than the particular interests of the Slav world. Horse-trading between the Slav bloc and the Latin bloc (or some of it) was responsible for Soviet support of Argentina for the Security Council in return for Latin support of the Ukraine. Moscow likewise refuses to agree to the admission of Italy and Finland as long as the majority of the Security Council refuses to countenance the nomination of Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Of course, the United States itself cannot altogether dissociate itself from bargaining, now that power politics rule the world. But at least we have the power and the prestige to keep foremost in our mind the vital interests of mankind. That is realistic idealism in a world resentful of the chains of tyranny. Perhaps, to sum up, it would be a good idea if the preamble—which, in its emphasis on human rights, is the valuable fruit of Senator Vandenberg's labors in San Francisco—were read every morning to the United Nations delegates. It might serve as a reminder of the general as well as the particular responsibilities of the member nations.

Herzog's Rule

"Completely right answers are rarely available in so human and dynamic a field as labor relations," said Paul M. Herzog, chairman of the NLRB, in an address in New York yesterday. "But there are such things as better answers and worse ones. It is the duty of a public official to try to find the better ones, for however slight the difference may be between the two, that difference can be extremely important." Probably we have here a better guide than any other that has been given as to what the NLRB is likely to do when the question as to the anti-Communist clause of the Taft-Hartley Act comes before it.

The law clearly requires that the officers of local and national unions file affidavits to the effect that they are not Communists or advocates of the violent overthrow of the Government before the NLRB can conduct elections or handle unfair labor charges at their request. But it does not make clear whether unions lose their standing before the NLRB if officers of a national labor federation with which they are affiliated refuse to file a statement disavowing communism. In ruling that the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations are within the scope of this provision we think Robert N. Denham, NLRB general counsel, chose the "worse answer" instead of the "better" one. Where a choice was clearly open, he took the interpretation that tends to hamstring operation of the law—to deny its benefits to millions of wage earners because one man may refuse to swear that he is not a Communist.

The five members of the NLRB are known to have discussed the Denham ruling, and indications are that a majority of them have found it inimical to effective administraton of the act. They will soon have a chance to overrule Mr. Denham when the petition of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers for certification of bargaining representatives comes before the board. Mr. Herzog quite properly refused in his speech on Thursday to indicate what the decision will be. But since the board is pledged to give the new act "the fairest and most efficient administration . . . within their power," a prompt reversal of Mr. Denham's ruling may be reasonably anticipated. Indeed, the essence of fair administration, as Mr. Herzog implied, lies in interpreting a statute that is experimental in nature and sometimes vague in language so as to make it workable.

Remembering Petkov

That was a brotherly gesture on the part of Senator Hatch and Representatives Lodge and Judd when they laid a wreath on Nikola Petkov's grave in Sofia. In body Petkov belonged to Bulgaria, but his spirit belongs to all mankind. He was a gallant fighter for his country's freedom, a man who lived in and out of prison in revolt against a succession of dictators, King Boris, Hitler, and finally, the Communists. The peasants idolized him. In the 1946 elections, where there was so much intimidation that we refused to regard the result as a fair reflection of Bulgarian opinion, the Agrarian Party which he led actually got nearly a third of the votes cast.

Petkov, however, was no professional martyr. In any constructive service, war or peace, he was in the front rank. He was perhaps the most decorated man ever to serve in the Bulgarian army. He signed the Moscow armistice which brought Bulgaria on the side of the Allies. He was Deputy Prime Minister when the Fatherland Front government was formed. He insisted he was entitled to the same post as the result of the 1946 elections, but the Communists were all prepared to saddle on this country of peasant proprietors a worse tyranny than any predecessor, and Petkov, the symbol of hope as well as opposition, was marked out for liquidation.

Petkov was murdered—worse, judicially murdered—before the ink was dry on the second article of the peace treaty with Bulgaria: "Bulgaria shall take all measures necessary to secure to all persons under Bulgarian jurisdiction . . . the enjoyment of human rights and of the fundamental freedoms, including freedom of expression, of press and publication, of religious worship, of political opinion and of public meeting." What cynicism! Our protests, necessary for our soul's sake, made no difference, because the bloody act was intended to show how little we counted in the Balkans. The Agrarians, however, would have spared Petkov if he had "confessed" to the plotting charge. Such a hope was vain, and the Agrarian leader went to his doom with the personal courage for which he and his family are renowned in Bulgaria. It was a deed most foul, a travesty of the judicial process which deceived nobody.

The three members of our Congress expressed in a tangible way the sorrow that his passing caused in this fair land of liberty. When the Communists succeeded in taking away Petkov's freedom, they deprived the rest of the free world of some of its own. That is perhaps what was in the mind of one of the congressional mourners who, on being apprised that a tribute might be personally dangerous, said: "We are as dispensable as anyone else." Petkov's body, the party reported, lies under "a heap of raw earth in a miserable part of the cemetery," but his spirit will continue to inspire the people of Bulgaria, and we cherish it as well as they. Our country has now sent a new envoy to Sofia, a decision from which we do not dissent, because a rupture of diplomatic relations would do more harm than good. But there can be no question of any relaxation in our opposition to the entry of Bulgaria into the United Nations under the rule of the treaty-breaking and noxious regime in Sofia.

Vishinsky's Accusations

I have just finished reading with much interest and corresponding resentment three letters in The Washington Post of September 29, carried under the caption "Vishinsky's Accusations."

Quoting excerpts from Mr. Braag's letter: "The fact . . . is that 90 per cent of the newspapers, magazines, radio commentators, to the lowliest parish priest (note gratuitous rabbit punch there) . . . have been stirring war hate against Russia . . . ." Let Mr. Braag first study the dictionary meaning of the word "fact" and then list any of the foregoing group who have made public misstatements about or who have advocated war against Russia.

I know of no World War II veterans who desire World War III, myself included. I feel, however, contrary to Mr. Braag's views, that elimination of the hard core of the poison would be a material and lasting contribution to curtailment of communism and, it logically follows, to real peace on earth.

Also, contrary to Mr. Braag's statements, I know of no "good Americans" who agree with Vishinsky on his charges.

To H.S.H. I direct this query: What specific accusations of Vishinsky's toward the United States contained "truth" to the extent of factually placing the onus on this country for the current international impasse? "Long traditional friendship" between nations connotes mutual trust and reciprocation; has Russia once furnished concrete manifestations of such trust and reciprocation during peacetime years?

As to H.S.H. quoting General MacArthur in re Russian military and economic might, this smells suspiciously like an attempt at pervasive fear psychology and I, for one, refuse to buy it.

Alberta Henley's thesis is noble in principle. But can she recite a single instance since war's end when Russia has acted as though her intentions toward the United States called for the muted violin and the dimmed lights? Isn't it more consistent with the facts to conclude instead that Russia's foreign policy is wholly imperialistic in objective, following without deviation basic Communist ideology?

Food-Saving Campaign

All this patter about voluntary food-saving looks beautiful in print and sounds big and generous over the radio, regardless of how little food it provides for the starving babies.

Of course, the food industry swings in behind the campaign. Why shouldn't the grocers, the bakers, the millers, the packers—yes, and the soapmakers—wholeheartedly support any campaign that staves off or postpones onerous Government controls—which provide the one really effective means of providing sufficient food for equitable home distribution and humane export.

While the food industry again tells the harried housewife how to convert bread crusts into luscious bread pudding, the millers will fight bitterly any suggestion that they mill the more palatable, nutricious, cream-colored flour instead of their customary anemic white product with its profitable mill-feed by-products for livestock.

No disparagement intended for comparatively foresighted and liberal Mr. Luckman of Lever Brothers, who heads the new slogan-shouting campaign, but the national fat salvage committee, sponsored by the fats-hungry soap makers, may be expected as in the recent past to continue calling upon housewives to turn in their used cooking fats to assist in the making of nylon hosiery, washing machines and automobiles.

To keep this used fat coming in at salvage prices, while housewives have to buy their new cooking fats at peak prices, no doubt will call for more fervent pleas from Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson.

Yes, the new voluntary food-saving program sounds well to the food industry because it staves off the return of the too-soon-removed and much-hated Government controls. Individually we all hate controls for ourselves, but collectively we don't depend upon voluntary methods when our national security is threatened.

Mrs. Taft's Labels

As a housewife and breadwinner for her family I cannot but deplore the attitude of Martha Taft with her silly jibes and chatter directed against the Government and what she terms as the "pinks" who run it. In this day and age when so many people are being labeled as Communists for their honest attempts to pull in the reins of the greedy monopolists who are taking the very bread out of our mouths, it is strange to me that there are not more voices raised against people like Mrs. Taft and her husband. ### False Prophecy

In the summer of 1946, the National Association of Manufacturers spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in advertising telling the country that prices would come down if the OPA were killed. I think that somebody should sue the NAM for making false and misleading statements.

Sowing and Reaping

Grover Cleveland said, "The people should support the Government, not the Government the people."

The New Deal party completely reversed Cleveland's sound policy and embarked on the wildest spending spree in history. Ancient Roman emperors that adopted the squandermania notion (thereby paving the way for national disintegration) were "pikers" in comparison to our starry-eyed professors of today.

Having sown the financial wind by recklessly scattering dollars all over the landscape we are now reaping the inevitable whirlwind.

Today a jittery New Deal party attempts to blame "big business" and the Republicans for the fiscal chaos. They should blame themselves for the existent disorder and realize that a safe financial structure has never been reared on the shoals of debt.

"Program For The Crisis"

Your editorial of September 29, "Program For the Crisis," is very much to the point. I inclose solicitations such as you describe bearing upon the rampant speculation. You will see I am asked to take advantage of crazy prices for lines of steel goods. I know nothing about steel, but all I have to do is to put up a slight margin.

Keep punching on the same lines. If we duck the responsibility of putting our house in order for fear of losing ballots, our young men will surely have to duck bullets. Could you entertain an idea of a coalition—Truman to step down as President, go on as Vice President? Or there could be a Republican Cabinet and advisers?

If both sides continue to play for the ballot, we shall all be sunk. We need nonpartisan emergency measures and politics should take a holiday. BUSINESSMAN.

"Little Black Sambo"

Growth of civilization, according to Toynbee, is a series of successful responses to a progression of increasingly more difficult challenges generated by preceding responses. America's response to the challenge offered by her present treatment of the Negro will be one of America's crucial tests. The Washington Post is to be commended for its awareness of the significance of this challenge and for its impartial presentation of certain issues which the local community must face. The Washington Post's excellent coverage of the recent Brookland-Dahlgreen episode is a case in point. A second illustration is l'affaire Little Black Sambo.

Little Black Sambo, of course, is harmless per se. It is a story which countless children have loved for years—it is a part of childhood's heritage. My 7-year-old daughter who overheard a discussion of the current episode expressed alarm when she interpreted the discussion to mean that the story would no longer be printed. It is easy for a minority as well as for its sympathizers—and it is understandable in the light of the experience of minorities—to be supersensitive on certain issues. Some objections to Little Black Sambo, in my judgment, may arise from such a supersensitivity. According to Time for September 29, protests were raised over the New York Herald Tribune's representation of high prices as a gigantic Topsy. As an American Negro, I regard neither Topsy nor Little Black Sambo per se as derogatory or inimical to interracial good-will.

I must add, however, that an adequate understanding of the American Negro cannot be attained if the curriculum in American schools offers no more than Topsy and Little Black Sambo. It is essential, for example, that the schools include substantial material on the races of mankind designed to give the pupils proper perspective in the art of living together on truly democratic principles. In the specific case of Little Black Sambo, the teacher should realize that the term "Sambo" is used in certain parts of this country as an opprobrious epithet and should consider this fact in the presentation of the story. Needless to say, the attitude of the teacher is all important.

Dr. Hager's view, I believe, is an excellent statement of the case, i. e., "There should be many more stories about Negro children in which the child is treated as a member of the human race than as a member of the servant class or a ragamuffin." This is particularly true in a city like Washington, where children in the most impressionable period of their lives are not permitted to attend school together. The Washington Post has called attention to an important issue, How should minority questions be presented to children in segregated schools? Until the advent of the day when segregated schools are abolished, it is imperative that this challenge be effectively met.

P. S. You may be interested to know that I wrote this on September 28, before I read your September 30 editorial.

Italian Winter

ROME, ITALY.—One obvious result of the political and economic strife boiling up in Italy has been the prediction of Communist revolution in the near future. Certain signs, such as the recent strikes and demonstrations, point to that end.

Yet those predictions seem premature. Leaders of Italy's Communist Party say vehemently again and again that they have no intention of resorting to illegal violence. They say they intend to win the elections next May and dominate a government in which other parties would have minority representation.

Given Communist tactics, that would be reason to believe the opposite and to assume that secret plans were being developed to take over by force. That can happen. But the logic of the present situation in Italy points to a different course.

Palmiro Togliatti, boss of Italy's Communists, who comprise the largest Communist Party in Europe, did not spend 15 years in Moscow for nothing. He knows how to read the signs and he knows how to act on them.

All indications are that the Italians will have a very bad winter. Purchases of coal and wheat have been stopped because there are no dollars in the till to pay for these essential commodities. That means the current of Italy's remarkable industrial recovery will be reversed.

AS THIS is written, the kind and degree of help to be obtained from the United States in the interim period before the Marshall Plan goes into operation is uncertain. One must say candidly, however, that the likelihood is that it will be too little and too late.

Perhaps it is already too late. So short are the Italians of hard money that the Foreign Minister, Count Carlo Sforza, had to wire to all Italian Ambassadors and Ministers telling them to hold down their cables to the Foreign Office to a minimum. The government cannot pay the cable bills.

There will be hunger in Italy this winter even if America moves at once. Houses will be unheated. Unemployment, now put officially at about two million, will grow as industry slows down for lack of fuel.

These components of despair the Communists know all too well how to exploit. They will put the blame on the government of Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi and his Christian Democrats. They also will blame the United States for failing to come to Italy's rescue. This will be powerful propaganda among a cold and hungry people who have come to believe in the legend of America's boundless wealth.

IF CURRENT rumor proves to be true, the Communists in late February or March, only a few weeks before the national elections, will spring their ace in the hole. That ace will be an offer of wheat from Russia. It will come at the psychological moment when the bottom of the barrel has been scraped to maintain the bread ration at a level just sufficient to sustain life.

It is fairly certain that the Soviets will have surplus wheat. The drought that has seared most of the rest of Europe has not touched the great wheat fields on the other side of the Carpathians. Outside evidence tends to confirm the Soviet propaganda boasts of a generous harvest. Communism across Europe is geared to the political exploitation of a surplus.

Given this situation, the Communists may make good on their claims for the May elections. They say that in union with the leftwing Socialists they will get more than 50 per cent of the vote while the Christian Democrats will not get more than 20 per cent.

There is a compelling reason why the Communists should not at this time resort to force the Communists themselves rarely, if ever, speak about. Nor does anyone else. That is the existence on the right of a growing faction that would welcome a showdown at this time even if such a showdown should mean civil war with the left.

In such a showdown the right could count on most of the armed gendarmerie and the fairly extensive secret police. There are reports of arms held privately by the right to a degree that matches the arms held by the partisan-Communist bands in the north. The weight of force might be against the Communists.

Therefore, the logic of the moment is to use legal parliamentary means. The goal is to put second- or third-rate Communists in cabinet posts and then, as usual, to snipe at the government from the outside, thereby preparing the way for the next step. By this strategy the Communists have everything to gain and little to lose.

Buffalo Schools

Steel Expansion

A Communication

YOU PROBABLY know that the situation as to delivery of steel is very bad, and while the steel industry has stated that the availability of steel would be back to normal within two years, inquiries with the various steel companies themselves result in a promise of no such relief, and they actually predict there will be a shortage for a long time to come. Recent requests for open quotations from nearly all the major steel companies on tonnage for immediate or future delivery were denied, with no promise of relief, whether the steel was to be used for general purposes or for most essential building elements to be used in housing, etc.

I take it that your editorial of September 26, "Steel Bottlenecks," is based upon the premises that the "steel-making industry" can expand. (I believe everyone will concur in this), but that it does not choose to do so adequately for fear the necessary investment might not prove profitable. (To assume that the steel-making industry cannot expand adequately if it chooses to do so does not seem tenable. Many industries cannot expand because they cannot get steel, which is the principal item required for their expansion, but this, of course, does not apply to the steel companies as they make the steel and can allocate it to themselves. The steel companies have also been prosperous during the war and can doubtless secure the necessary capital.)

IF IT IS true, as assumed, that the steel-making industry can expand adequately, and will not, this is an indictment in that:

(1) The very fact that the "steel-making" industry apparently acts as a unit in effectively controlling expansion of facilities, is de facto admission that said industry as constituted in this country today is a monopoly, and that it has its own planned economy. During the war it was a different proposition when the Government necessarily had an emergency planned economy. It would seem that this monopoly acts to limit competition by controlling expansion, possibly through control of new capital required to finance new production facilities, and through other means creates or maintain artificial advantages and thus the continuance of scarcity and resulting high prices.

(2) The very fact that the steel-making industry promises or predicts that the steel shortage will end within two years may indicate that said industry controls the output of steel in this country. It may be, therefore, that this promise or prediction is of little value as a forecast of relief, as such forecast might possibly be intentionally misleading. It is only human nature for any person or group of persons who have a profitable monopoly to sit tight and resist any effort for change, and do nothing about it themselves. However, this is, of course, the reverse of free enterprise which has made this country great industrially and otherwise, and, to be blunt, such a policy is, of course, selling our country short.

(3) THE cumulative adverse affect to industry in this country due to the steel shortage is, no doubt, colossal, running into the losses of billions of dollars, and resulting in the crippling and stunting of thousands of industries, including, of course, the critical housing industry; this loss, no doubt, amounts to many times the cost of adequate expansion of the steel industry. This is a crying need, the satisfaction of which could contribute enormously toward ending shortages of every character, and toward bringing down present high prices generally.

(4) I have personally been very much opposed to the excessive power given labor chiefs, and its autocratic use, resulting in the spiralling of costs and the stifling of production, but I think Mr. Reuther is right in complaining bitterly about the shortage of steel which has resulted in the lay-off of thousands of men, and, in effect, drastically cut their income. There is small satisfaction in the steel-making industry's comment to the effect that there is nothing to worry about as "everything will be O. K. within a couple of years."

(5) Within a couple of years or much less our country may be in a disastrous war, and if the steel-producing companies can't even meet our present domestic requirements, which have naturally materially expanded, their present attitude that they are doing "well enough," when it is known that enormous increase in steel tonnage will be essential for military success, may very well cause us the loss of the war and in the end the loss of our liberty and of thousands of lives.

(6) IN THE free enterprise system in the past, when there were shortages, some one or group was always willing to risk capital to build new enterprises, and in only this way were shortages ended. What is it that is now preventing the building of new, much-needed iron and steel-producing units. What has become of that spirit of willingness?

(7) In my humble opinion a serious study should immediately be made, with the objective of finding means to remedy this perhaps key problem in our industry economy. Taxes perhaps should be reduced to encourage investment, although this would not necessarily result in the present steel companies entering into adequate expansion programs.

If the steel companies are not willing to commit themselves on this, the banks should be encouraged to make favorable loans to new steel-producing industries, although present-day banks are either unable or unwilling to be very helpful to new industries. Perhaps men of Mr. Kaiser's type and others equally qualified should be encouraged. If no promises or commitments for quick relief are forthcoming otherwise, while I am strongly opposed to Government in business, I think many people would be in favor of immediate emergency large Government subsidies for those who are willing and able to build new iron and steel-producing units, or to expand the old ones.

Matter Of Fact

"It Will Take A Miracle"

THE GENIUS for anticlimax, which is one of President Harry S. Truman's most notable characteristics, has served to obscure the great importance of the decisions taken at this week's White House conference between the Administration and congressional leaders. At his press conference after the meeting, the President seemed to say that while a desperate crisis is clearly upon us, the Administration has no real plan for dealing with it. In point of fact, the Administration has a plan. It is a plan which involves a calculated risk, a risk which is very great. Yet the plan has at least been made after a careful assessment of the political dangers of any other course.

What in fact emerged from the White House meeting was a complete schedule of action. Although it is, of course, subject to change, this timetable calls for the hearings of Senator Arthur Vandenberg's Foreign Relations Committee and Representative Charles A. Eaton's Foreign Affairs Committee to end toward the middle of November. It is hoped that the House and Senate Appropriations Committees will complete their work by the end of the month. If the four committees can work on this tight schedule —and Vandenberg and Eaton will try to complete their work in a matter of days—then a special session of Congress will be called on or near December 1. And at the White House conference the President clearly indicated his hope that the Congress will approve the desperately needed appropriation by December 25, or by the New Year at the latest.

Asked by one of the congressional leaders who will take responsibility for calling the special session, Truman firmly replied, "the President of the United States."

THUS THE meeting accomplished far more decisive results than has generally been supposed. Truman himself set the grave tone of the conference. He spoke briefly of the nature of the European crisis, calling it the most serious which has ever confronted the United States and saying that the stakes for which the United States was playing in western Europe were higher even than those of the two world wars. Then Secretary of State George C. Marshall spoke, for no more than 3 or 4 minutes. Soberly and undramatically, he described the real meaning to this country of the economic and political chaos which would ensue in Europe if the United States failed to act in time. Characteristically unimpassioned though he was, Marshall left a deep impression on his listeners.

He was followed by Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett. At Marshall's request, Lovett filled in the factual background of the crisis. Gravely, with an impressive grasp of detail, Lovett talked and answered questions. Before he had finished, few doubts lingered of the reality of the crisis or of the need for action.

Yet grave doubts remained that action could be taken in time on the schedule outlined by the President. The President and his advisers had concluded that it was better to take the risk of calling the special session at the last moment, rather than to call it earlier and risk the wrecking of the whole American foreign policy by a congressional refusal to act. Yet it is privately admitted that even if the Administration timetable is adhered to, there is a fearful risk that American action will come too late.

AS UNDERSECRETARY Lovett has pointed out, there will be at least a month—the month of December—in which the pipeline will run dry, and in which the French and Italian people will be face-to-face with starvation. In December, the French and Italian Communist Parties are expected to redouble their efforts.

But will Congress stick even to the risky Administration timetable? At the White House meeting, one of the congressional leaders asked the President, whether, on the basis of his own experience as a Senator, he could really expect the Congress to act on so grave a matter within a mere three or four weeks. His point gained weight when, after congressional prodding, it was reluctantly admitted that the stopgap aid could not be the only business before the Congress. It will almost certainly be necssary to request not only 246 million dollars to underwrite British dollar costs in Germany, but possibly as much as 300 million dollars for increased American occupation costs.

Thus more than a billion dollars will have to be asked, and as a mere first installment, from an economy-minded Congress, its resistance already stiffened by ominous reports from home that more and more people are blaming high grocery bills on "all this foreign spending." Finally, by the time Congress is called, the presidential election will be less than a year away. As one of the congressional leaders remarked after the meeting, "It will take a miracle."

Yet miracles have happened, when miracles have been essential. "We've got to remember," said the aging Charles Eston, toward the end of the White House meeting, "that we will be taking action against the background of the most terrible crisis this country has ever faced. Let's remember that, and forget about November, 1948." Perhaps Eaton's advice will be followed.

Exports Show Slight Decline During August

Total United States exports declined slightly in August for the third straight month, but shipments for which foreign nations paid cash rose in value for the first time since May.

The Census Bureau reported today that total exports, including lend-lease, UNRRA and other aid programs, were $1,149,500,000 in August or $1,500,000 below July. The drop was so small it was interpreted to mean a near halt in the export downslide.

Commercial or cash payment shipments rose $900,000 to $1,125,400,000 in August. This was a slight increase but it was the first since cash shipments increased $128,800,000 in May to a $1,361,400,000 peak.

Upturn is Significant

The upturn in commercial shipments was significant because the drop in exports generally during June and July was attributed mainly to a growing shortage of dollars in the rest of the world and a resultant tightening in purchases from this country.

United States imports fell for the third straight month, dropping $50,900,000 or 11 per cent to an August level of 399 million dollars, the lowest since October, 1946.

That meant that foreign countries were getting still less from sales to this country which in turn provide them with money to pay for part of their purchases from the United States.

UNRRA Shipments Drop

Principal reason for the decline in overall United States exports in August was a sharp drop in UNRRA shipments to $2,800,000 in August from $25,300,000 in July. Lend-lease shipments also declined to $100,000 from $1,200,000 in July.

Two offsets to those declines were:

1. First shipments under the "world-wide relief program" were reported in August and were valued at $12,300,000.

2. August export figures were somewhat artificially swollen by $4,700,000 in merchandise under the Greek-Turkish aid program, shipped in July but reported too late for inclusion in July figures. August exports under the Greek-Turkish aid program, therefore, were reported at $8,900,000.

Vishinsky Declines Radio Talk Bid Of Mrs. Roosevelt

Lake Success, Oct. 2 (AP).—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Russian chief delegate to the United Nations, has declined the invitation of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to appear on a radio program for which she is moderator and discuss his "warmonger" charges against Americans, Mrs. Roosevelt reported today.

Mrs. Roosevelt said Vishinsky replied that he was too busy with U. N. Assembly business to prepare an address for the "World Security Workshop" program Sunday afternoon. The program deals exclusively with United Nations problems.

Mrs. Roosevelt, a member of the United States delegation to the U. N. Assembly, recently was appointed by Secretary of State Marshall to a position on the Political Committee where she may answer the Vishinsky "warmonger" charges in some way.

The Gallup Poll

Americans Take Gloomy View Of War-Torn Nations' Future

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 2.—The average American takes a dim view of the future of many of the major countries involved in the war.

Coast-to-coast questioning by the Institute shows that fewer than one third of the Nation's voters think conditions will be any better during the next year in England, France, Italy, Germany or China than they have been during the past year.

In the case of Japan, however, Americans have a more optimistic outlook. A small majority think conditions there will be greatly improved a year from now.

Since most voters do not possess firsthand information about conditions abroad, the poll reflects the impressions which the American people have formed about other nations on the basis of what is said in newspapers and magazines and over the radio.

The way our people size up the future of other countries may have an important bearing on public attitudes here toward the Marshall Plan for Europe. Judging by the results of today's poll, most Americans clearly sense Europe's vital need for help. The major question is whether they will feel that aid under the Marshall Plan will or will not substantially improve the economic status of the countries involved.

The survey questioned voters as follows:

Do you think conditions in general will be better or worse in the coming year than they have been during the last year in the following countries?

| | Better | Worse | Same | No opin. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| China | 20% | 30% | 17% | 33% |
| Italy | 25 | 25 | 14 | 36 |
| England | 29 | 33 | 13 | 25 |
| France | 31 | 20 | 16 | 33 |
| Germany | 37 | 32 | 17 | 24 |
| Japan | 51 | 9 | 12 | 28 |

It is interesting to note that more people think the status of two countries—England and China—will be worse than better. In the case of Italy, where American observers are reporting a desperate need for aid, sentiment is about evenly divided over whether the future will be worse or better.

The three countries where better conditions are expected to the greatest extent are France, Germany and Japan. Optimism about Japan undoubtedly stems from the fact that there has been relatively little publicity given to hardship and difficulties there, as compared to the flood of reports from Europe.

The public's apparent satisfaction with the job which Gen. Douglas MacArthur has been doing in Japan may find reflection in next year's preconvention presidential campaign. General MacArthur has been talked about as a possible Republican candidate and a substantial MacArthur boom would likely develop if the general gave a nod of approval.

The Institute has just completed a survey on the political standing of General MacArthur at this time. Results will be released Sunday.

Editor Berates Slanters of News, As 'Indefensible'

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Grove Patterson, editor-in-chief of the Toledo Blade, said today "publishers who instruct or allow reporters to slant the news, in conformity with personal views and personal policy, are journalistic gangsters."

Addressing 27 managing editors and news editors at the American Press Institute at Columbia University, Patterson said American newspapermen face a "more profound responsibility" than at any time since the founding of the Republic, citing two counts:

"First, objective reporting without slant or prejudice is more than ever the personal duty of every man or woman who writes for a newspaper.

"Second, in view of national and international conditions, we face a tough problem of intelligent, illuminating and just interpretation. The unpardonable sin in newspapering is to be guilty of lack of objectivity. It is more indefensible than a lack of accuracy."

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday had the following White House apointments:

10:30 a. m.—Ernest E. Lorris, president of the Southern Railway.

11:15—Paul Smith, editor, San Francisco Chronicle.

11:30—Myron Taylor, special representative to the Vatican.

Storm Delays Pipers

Hong Kong, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—A typhoon expected to strike tonight along the South China coast today forced round-the-world Piper Cub pilots George Truman of Los Angeles and Clifford Evans of Washington, D. C., to postpone their scheduled hop to Tokyo.

Deputies to Take Up Future Of Italian Colonies Today

London, Oct. 2 (AP).—Deputies of the "Big Four" foreign ministers meet in Lancaster House here tomorrow in a new bid to settle the future of the 1,100,000 square miles and three million inhabitants of the colonies that made up Mussolini's "New Roman Empire."

Competent British government informants said new strategic factors, emerging from Britain's projected withdrawal from much of the Middle East and the United States, interest in the Mediterranean area, were certain to guide the course of the discussions.

The Whitehall sources said Britain's projected surrender of the Palestine mandate and her "possibly complete" evacuation of Egypt represented one aspect of the events which have transformed the United States into a power with "defined and major" interests in the Mediterranean.

One informant in close touch with War Office opinion said: "The Middle East is known to be the source of 75 per cent of the world's oil reserves outside the United States and Soviet spheres and has, accordingly, become the testing ground for Soviet-American diplomatic policies. The future course of those policies must, therefore, take into account the future of those countries having Mediterranean and Red Sea coastlines."

There have been no authoritative pronouncements by any of the four powers—Britain, the United States, France and Russia—concerning the former Italian colonies of Tripolitania, Cyrenaica, Eritrea and Somaliland since the Paris Peace Conference last year failed to settle their final disposition.

Mussolini's Daughter To Be Wed to Jeweler

Rome, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—Edda Ciano, daughter of the late Benito Mussolini, is about to marry a wealthy Naples jeweler and settle down in a three-room apartment on the Isle of Capri, the Communist-sponsored newspaper La Republica reported today.

The newspaper quoted Edda as saying to friends, "We Mussolinis are becoming cursedly bourgeois. My mother has become a cook, my brother Romano a bookkeeper and I am getting married."

Adverse Trade Balance Is Eire's Greatest

Dublin, Oct. 2 (AP).—Eire built up the highest adverse trade balance in her history during the first half of 1947, figures showed today.

Total imports from Britain and Northern Ireland were less than those from other countries for the first time, the government tables indicated, while Eire bought more from the United States than ever before. Eire's adverse trade balance was put at £36,848,000 ($147,392,000).

Morgenthau, Fosdick Send Tito Regrets

New York, Oct. 2 (INS).—Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor emeritus of Riverside Church, turned thumbs down today on Marshal Tito's invitation to them to inspect conditions on the Yugoslav-Greece border.

Morgenthau and Dr. Fosdick thus followed the lead of former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Harold Stassen, who previously refused the invitation, contending it was the United Nations' job. The others invited were Author John Gunther and Military Analyst Hanson Baldwin.

Hermaphrodite, 5, Becomes All Girl Through Operation

Chicago, Oct. 2 (AP).—Dr. Elmer Hess, Erie, Pa. surgeon, described a case today in which he had a choice of converting a 5-year-old patient into a boy or a girl.

He decided to make the patient a girl, he said, because the child's family preferred it and neighborhood playmates had believed she was a girl.

Dr. Hess, chief of the urological department at St. Vincent's Hospital, Erie, Pa., displayed a motion picture of the operation to members of the United States chapter of the International College of Surgeons.

In an interview, he described the patient as a true case of hermaphrodite. There are fewer than 50 cases in all medical history, he said. Dr. Hess added that cases of true hermaphrodism were much rarer than pseudo-hermaphrodism in which the male tendency is truly predominant.

In describing the cases he said:

A biological and chemical condition develops about the twenty-eighth day in every unborn child which stimulates one or another group of glands that determines sex.

In the case described, both sex characteristics were being developed equally. Midway in an exploratory abdominal operation it was determined that organs of both sexes were present.

"I had to decide at that point whether to make the patient a girl or a boy," he said.

Certain male organs were removed, and the child became a true girl and ultimately may be capable of motherhood.

Low Countries, France Protest Ruhr Mine Plan

France, Belgium and Holland have protested against the British-American agreement turning over management of the Ruhr coal mines to the Germans.

State Department officials said yesterday the three governments contend the plan concentrates too much power in German hands and may turn into a potential instrument of German aggression against her neighbors.

An American-British Ruhr coal conference last month, searching for ways to boost production, decided to turn over responsibility for operating the mines to German administrators, subject to veto by a British-American board.

France, Belgium and Holland have suggested that nationals of their country be allowed to manage mines they own wholly or partly in the British-American zone, numbering at least seven mines.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

GRAMPS GOES MAD. That white bearded gent slamming a pretty miss around the Casino Royal floor is not Santa Claus beating his wife. It's the Dias and Diane dance drama of Faust and Marguerite. It climaxes with gramps killing Marguerite or she killing him. Or maybe they kill each other. This remarkable spectacle left yours sincerely so unnerved that who killed who didn't seem to matter . . . Watch for Casino Royal's "Fall Opening" on October 14. Among the elegant stars already booked are Danny Sullivan, the Irish tenor; those handsome steppers, the Mayo Brothers; Juanita and her roller skating aces. Also Jack "Jive" Schafer is hoarding three new unscrubbed ballads for the party.

The Old New Orleans will wine, dine and dance the "Queen of WEAM," now being chosen via that station's "Man About Town" program. The party will be held in the O.N.O.'s Sazerac Room.

STANLEY WEINER, violinist son of Michel, owner of Michel's, will be presented at a concert in Constitution Hall in November under the sponsorship of Marcel Ancher, distinguished 'cellist of the Chamber Music Guild. He'll play the Paganini Concerto with a background of 15 musicians directed by Michel Piastro. When he joined the Chamber Music Guild at 18 Stanley was its youngest member. He has recently received a highly flattering offer to become the concertmaster of a noted Eastern symphony orchestra.

MEN ABOUT TOWN, Charlie Zeller, Washington's foremost nitery designer, sat in a corner and looked over his newest creation, the redone Rainbow Room. It looks too beautiful, but Charlie's planning to add a few extra touches. He also designed the Anchor Room and the spectacular Blue Mirror . . . Robert Gabriel, debonair owner of La Salle du Bois, is now a real Washingtonian. He and his family have settled down in Chevy Chase . . . Rudy Poppell, who operates the Byrne Tavern up Fourteenth Street way, tells a thrilling story of how George John Daeschle, the German saboteur, was one of his waiters at the Glen Island Casino . . . The Chemical Engineers Club will dine at the Good Earth tonight, sample lobster Cantonese and other masterpieces of culinary chemistry . . . "Mayor" Ciro Gallotti, owner of Ciro's, is thinking lovingly of Florida beaches where he spent most of last year, now that the winds are blowing cold . . . Youngest man-around town is Robert J. Clermont, jr., who celebrated his twelfth birthday at a dinner at Olmsted's with 12 of his boy friends. Only grown-ups around were his daddy and lovely blond mother, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Clermont.

When Bandleader Florian Zabach poked his yellow head into the Mayflower Lounge at the style show luncheon, he was promptly nabbed by visiting fashion editors who inveigled him into joining their table. And don't think he didn't love it!

EXPERTS' CHOICES. That wild little rumba, "Pancho Maximilian Hernandez," is a pet of Johnny Robb and his Madrillon orchestra . . . Arthur Post, interlude pianist in the Neptune Room, favors an alluring something called "Lorraine." And why shouldn't he? He wrote it himself . . . That goes, too, for the natural preference the Metronome Room's Gene Pringle shows for his own tricky tune, "Ain'tcha Sorry?" . . . Organist Nate Shanks of Merry-Land plays "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice" quite often. It's the favorite selection of Maj. Earle Clarke, who's the husband of the spot's owner, Olivia Davis . . . That master of polished music, leader Oscar Davis of the Pall Mall Room, goes for "Passing By," the Jean Sablon theme song . . . Rodolfo Cornejo of Cafe Caprice has a special affection for the folk songs of his native Philippines, especially "Bahay Kubo." Which means "My Nipa Hut."

Suzanne, slender, tender and tall—also pretty and dark-eyed, is the new accordionist in the Muses cocktail lounge. She plays everything, classics, semiclassics and pop. Everything, that is, but be-bop.

INDIAN SUMMER NIGHTS. Coming up now is the loveliest time of the year, early autumn. It's a good time to drive under the harvest moon to countryside dance and dineries. Right on Mount Vernon Boulevard is rustic River Bend with George Stein's band and hearty Southern dinners . . . For those who concentrate on dancing there's the Nightingale below Alexandria with Clinton Hobbes' boiling be-bop . . . out on the road to Baltimore is Cross Roads with Junie Mays' band, also the refurbished La Conga with Herbert Curbelos' excellent Pan-American band and the Jessie Mack Trio. Happy motoring!

Ted Lewis and Martha Raye are the special treats that Club Cairo promises its patrons after mid-October. Lewis has never been booked into a Washington nitery before. The wide-mouthed Raye broke all attendance records at Cairo last season.

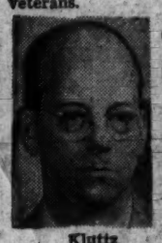
Legion Plans Legal Fight On Firing Of Veterans

Preference Laws Ignored in Some Cases, District Chairman Says

By Jerry Kluttz

The American Legion yesterday threatened criminal action against Federal officials who illegally fire veterans.



Kluttz

Leo N. McGuire, chairman of the veterans preference committee of the Legion's D. C. department, said his group had decided on legal action because certain unnamed supervisors had shown no intention of complying with the veterans preference laws.

He added that the veteran's right to appeal to Civil Service "does not appear to be a sufficient deterrent to a supervisor who is determined to retain war service or temporary employes while dismissing veterans with permanent status."

McGuire explained his group planned to file a test case under a provision of the 1912 Veterans Preference Act, which says in part:

"Any person knowingly violating the provisions of this section shall be summarily removed from office, and may also upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not more than $1000 or by imprisonment for not more than one year."

McGuire said his committee was aware that some Federal attorneys were of the opinion that the 1912 statute was superseded by the 1944 veterans preference act. He pointed out, however, that the 1944 act doesn't specifically repeal the language cited above. Further, that the 1944 law clearly states that it "shall not be construed to take away from any preference eligible any rights heretofore granted under any existing law."

The Legion official said his committee would also:

1. Offer its services to Government agencies to avoid violations of the veteran laws, and,

2. Advise veterans who are improperly fired and restored to their jobs by Civil Service to seek back pay, leave and retirement benefits.

Meantime, several war service veterans who have been fired have asked the Federal District Court here to order them restored to their jobs under the 1912 law.

As revealed in this column two weeks ago, the entire Government system of making dismissals would be upset and endless administrative turmoil would result if they won their cases. Briefly, it would result in the Government being forced to fire long-service career non-veterans before a temporary or war service veteran with a good or better efficiency rating could be dismissed.

The Legion made no mention of this important angle, which has officials concerned throughout the Federal service. Other members of McGuire's committee are: Frank Peckham, James P. Googe, Donald Van Houten and Warren Johnson. McGuire said his group was studying the cases yesterday of several career veterans who had been fired from the Air Forces.

TAX COURT: The President has ordered William W. Arnold and John A. Tyson, both members of the United States Tax Court, exempt from compulsory retirement at 70. Both men will soon reach that age . . . INTERIOR: William Zimmerman is a good bet to be promoted to Commissioner of the Bureau of Indian Affairs to succeed the ailing William A. Brophy. He's assistant commissioner.

DOWN: Federal employment slumped 34,466 the world over during August to a 5-year low of 2,054,108. Two thousand of that reduction was in this city, putting total Federal employment in the executive branch here on September 1 at 196,033. In addition, there were about 10,000 Federal people here in the legislative and judicial branches.

The large August reductions were in Postoffice, Veterans, War and Navy. Nine agencies here reduced staff by more than 100 each. Total Federal employment in this country is now down to 1,783,777.

Atomic Energy: Fletcher Waller, its personnel officer, is to be promoted to a new job—chief of its management staff . . . Public Buildings will release 52 Government lease dprivate buildings here during the next few months.

Reorganization: The 12-man Hoover Committee to study Government reorganization will soon launch a functional study of Federal activities. An outstanding man of each field of Federal activity will be brought in to make the study.

The reorganization will be spark-plugged by former President Herbert Hoover, the committee chairman. Mr. Hoover will move here and devote his full time to the important study.

The committee will build up a staff of experts.

Mother Loses Custody Suit, Boy Stays With Grandparents

By Howard L. Dutkin

Post Reporter

A Washington mother yesterday triumphed over her own daughter in a legal battle over custody of the latter's son.

But the tears that flowed from the older woman's eyes, as she sought to comfort her daughter, indicated the victory was a hollow one.

A bewildered witness to the bit of courtroom tragedy was the small key figure in the case—7-year-old Edward (Butch) Dye, whose mother Mrs. Edith Dye, had left him with her stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde King, when he was a year old.

As Mrs. Dye, an attractive 24-year-old brunette, slumped sobbing in a chair in a District Court corridor after hearing the verdict, Mrs. King approached, put her arm around her and the two women spoke in hushed choked voices.

"Butch," who a half hour before had told Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts that he preferred to stay with his grandparents, smiled, as his weeping mother clung to him, showering kisses.

"We offered her a home with us," Mrs. King told reporters later. "She is undecided whether to return to us. Her lawyer is trying to persuade her to return." James Toomey, attorney for Mrs. Dye, told reporters there was "a good possibility of a reconciliation."

In discharging the writ of habeas corpus, which in effect continued the child in the custody of the Kings, Justice Letts said:

"I find the boy is well cared for and happy where he is. He hardly knows his mother. He has never been taught to call her mother. He told me his mother taught him to call her Edie or Edith. There is no question of the boy's preference."

The justice who spoke to the lad privately before rendering the decision, held out some hope to Mrs. Dye saying: "All cases of this character are open to reconsideration."

Mrs. Dye, a former Wac, had testified she left her parents' home, in 1941 after her stepfather made improper advances toward her. She is estranged from her husband.

Last night as Mrs. Dye conferred with her attorney as to possible future steps, "Butch" played happily at home "shooting up the house with a cap gun," as Mrs. King phrased it.

U. S. Revokes Citizenship Of American U. Teacher

Manuel Castello, Spanish teacher at American University, yesterday lost his American citizenship for claiming draft exemption during the war as a national of Spain.

Castello

The citizenship, granted July 1, was revoked by Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of District Court at the request of the Bureau of Naturalizati o n. The teacher's aplication was placed on the court calendar for rehearing.

Castello, who has lived in the United States since 1936, is an instructor at American University night school. He teaches romance languages during the day at the Woodward School for Boys.

Visibly disturbed by the court action, the 40-year-old native of Valencia, told The Washington Post he had not understood when he applied for draft exemption that he would be forfeiting future he said, he was contemplating a right to citizenship. At the time, trip to Spain and had sought the exemption in order that he not be considered a draft dodger. The trip, he said, was never made.

The Bureau of Naturaliation explained that the draft exemption form specifically states that the signer will be barred from citizenship.

Castello said he was aware of this when he signed the document but had thought it would not be in effect after expiration of the draft law.

"I never would have signed if I had known," he said.

Before coming to America, Castello, who lives at 1835 Kilbourne pl. nw., was in the tourist business in Spain. His permit to come to the United States was granted two days before the outbreak of the civil war, he said.

Two years before that he married the former Gertrude Kirk of Bangor, Me. in London. Mrs. Castello is now a clerk in the office of Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.).

4 New Parking Lots to Have Shuttle Bus to Downtown

A syndicate of local businessmen is planning to open four parking lots on the outskirts of the business district and supply shuttle bus service into the downtown area.

This was disclosed yesterday by P. Y. K. Howat, chairman of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency.

Howat, who is also a Washington businessman and vice president of the Board of Trade, said he had suggested the idea of "fringe" parking lots but that it will be up to the businessmen themselves to carry forward the idea.

Seen as Partial Solution

Howat said his role had been to get businessmen together to work out an answer to the parking problem in downtown Washington. He said a number of them have expressed the opinion that "fringe" parking lots would be a partial solution.

It has been estimated that Washington needs 10,000 additional parking spaces in the downtown area. Under the proposed plan, each of the "fringe" parking lots would accommodate 450 cars, or a total of 1800.

The lots would be located at each boundary to the downtown area. They must be close enough to the center of the shopping area so that parking is worth a premium and a bus run can be made in "10 minutes or less." Yet they must be far enough from the center so that land can be acquired at no more than $3 a square foot and a maximum of 35 cents charged for all-day parking.

Howat said that discussions with Capital Transit Co. officials concerning shuttle service to and from the parking lots has been going on for some time.

Must Have Large Lot

He pointed out the necessity for having a large lot, one capable of handling at least 450 cars. He said Baltimore has a "fringe" parking lot and auxiliary shuttle service, but that the project has been losing money because the lot is too small.

Howat said this is one of the many proposals by private industry for alleviating the parking congestion in the downtown area.

2 Captured With Stolen Goods, $495

Skylight Robbery Suspects Trapped In Blind Alley With Bulging Pockets

Two First Precinct policemen making an early-morning routine check, yesterday arrested two suspects in the "skylight burglary" of the Ford Photo Supply Co., 801 Market pl. nw.

Held for investigation and further identification were:

William Gustafson, 19, of 609 H st. nw., and Elmer L. Edwards, 27, of 902 7th st. ne.

They were arrested, Police Lieut. David McCutcheon said, as they crouched in a dead-end alley near the building. McCutcheon said they recovered over $495 in cash, several camera lenses and a camera from them.

McCutcheon said they thought at first the two men were "drunks" in the alley, but saw sales tags on the photo equipment sticking from their bulging pockets when he and Sergt. A. S. Douglas approached them for questioning.

The regular patrolman on the beat came on the scene shortly after the two men were arrested.

Linking them with the skylight burglary was a wrist watch inscribed "I love Gus" and about $2 in nickels found in the Lincoln Furniture Co. offices in the same building.

Edwards

Gustafson

Police said the two apparently climbed the fire escape, then made their way into the building through a skylight.

The two men face further questioning concerning a posible burglary attempt at the Apex branch postoffice a short distance from the Market space address.

New Odenton Health Center Is Dedicated

Odenton, Md., Oct. 2 (AP).—Governor Lane declared today his administration "hopes and expects to bring public health out of the basement for all the people of Maryland."

He made the statement in an address during the dedication of the $50,000 Odenton health center, which will serve approximately 30,000 people in Anne Arundel County.

The Governor paid tribute to Ephraim Winer, president of the National Plastic Products Co., who gave the money to build the center. The former health center was housed in a school basement.

Health Funds Cited

Lane said, "through this fine gift, Mr. Winer has brought public health out of the basement for the people of Odenton and surrounding communities.

"I am happy to report to the people of Maryland that this State administration has provided for expenditure during the current two-year budgetary period the sum of $20,457,000 for health purposes . . .

"We are spending $9,162,000 more on the health of the people of Maryland than was appropriated for this all-important responsibility to State government two years ago."

Wedemeyer on Program

He said most of the sum was being spent for the mentally ill, and in increased amount for the State tuberculosis sanatoria.

Lane appeared on a program which included Dr. Allen W. Freeman, consultant t othe State Board of Health; Lieut. Gen. A. C. Wedemeyer, head of the Second Army, and Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr. Judge Joseph Sherbow, of the Baltimore supreme bench, acted as master of ceremonies.

Women Want Jury Duty

More than half the Montgomery County women who have returned their questionnaires to the circuit court have stated they would be available for jury service.

Judge Stedman Prescott said approximately 200 of 300 questionnaires had been returned and the remainder are expected within the next few days.

Only a few of the women stated they would "prefer not to serve." A recent law authorizes women jurors for the first time in the State's history.

GOP Club to Reform

The Seventh District Republican Club, in Montgomery County, will be reactivated and a reorganization meeting will be held Tuesday at the Chevy Chase Women's Club, Delegate R. Duncan Clark said yesterday.

The meeting is timed to coincide with the drive now under way to encourage all new residents to register so they may vote in the 1948 elections.

Court Ends Shopping for Easy Judge

Officials Also Agree To Speed Up Cases, Insulate Witnesses, Increase Efficiency

Steps to combat the practice of "shopping" for a judge the defendant deems to be sympathetic, and other measures designed to speed the handling of District Court criminal cases were announced yesterday.

As a blow at the "shopping" practice, the fture rule will be to send the oldest case that's ready to the first available judge.

Continuances will be agreed upon by counsel for both sides before the case is marked "ready." This also will have the effect of facilitating handling in that the common practice of having one side in court ready for action while the other side pleads for a continuance will be abandoned.

Barrett Attends Meeting

The three judges assigned to criminal court will rotate, each taking arraignments one week in every 3.

Murder trials if possible will open on Mondays when a full jury panel is available.

The announcement followed a meeting of four judges, Police Chief Robert J. Barrett, George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for the District; Assignment Commissioner John H. Sullivan and other court officials. Jurists attending were Associate Justices David A. Pine, Edward M. Curran, Richmond B. Keech and Alexander Holtzoff. The first three are assigned to criminal cases with Holtzoff as auxiliary.

To "Insulate" Witnesses

Greater "insulation" of witnesses against outside influences was promised. All witnesses will be held in rooms set aside for that purpose and a closer watch kept on them.

Major Barrett declared steps would be taken to insure prompt attendance of all policemen called as witnesses.

Better preparation of cases was promised by Fay who said he would arrange the time of his assistants so that they would spend two weeks in court and one week in preparation.

Currently under consideration, Justice Pine said, was a uniform rule in respect to the disposition of prisoners awaiting sentencing. Some judges are inclined to grant bail in most cases while others, Pine among them, believe that violators should be incarcerated immediately after pleading or being found guilty.

British Ensign Hoisted Here For Admiral

The British man-o-war ensign flew atop the Potomac River Naval Communications Building yesterday.

Occasion for the action was the visit to Washington of Vice Admiral William Tennant, royal navy, commander in chief of the British American and West Indies station.

Admiral Tennant, who arrived Tuesday night, paid his respects yesterday to the commandant of the Potomac River Naval Command, Rear Admiral Glenn B. Davis, and was greeted with the traditional three ruffles and flourishes by the United States Navy Band. After the playing of the United States and British National Anthems. HMS Snipe, Admiral Tennant's flagship, was given a 15-gun salute.

Admiral Tennant, with the British Ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, then called on President Truman and Admiral Chester Nimitz.

Admiral Tennant, who is making a tour of Eastern ports, is scheduled to see the sights of Washington today, and to remain here until Saturday, when he will join H. M. S. Sheffield, now at Annapolis, and go to Portsmouth.

200 Acres Allocated To Virginia Scouts

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—William A. Wright, chairman of the State Conservation Commission, announced today about 200 acres of the 10,500 acre Comp Peary reservation near Williamsburg have been allocated tentatively to the Peninsula Boy Scout Council. He also disclosed plans for an extensive forest nursery project in the area.

Camp Peary was acquired last August for indefinite lease by the conservation commission and the State Commission fo Game and Inland Fisheries.

Youth Given Life For Killing Policeman

Philadelphia, Oct. 2 (AP).—A jury of 11 women and 1 man today convicted the foster son of a child psychiatrist and college professor or murdering a policeman.

Life imprisonment was the punishment fixed for William Kern Hallowell, 23, who showed no emotion.

Hallowell shot two policemen in a gun duel after they caught him speeding in a stolen automobile.

Boy, 6, Regaining Use of Legs, Thanks to Community Chest

SOOTHING—Claire Jack, nurse on the staff at the Christ Child Farm, a Community Chest agency, oils bandages on Jimmie Adkins' burned legs

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

IMPROVING—Jimmie, 6, one of the many young patients at the convalescent home near Rockville, attempts to swing. And he will be doing it soon

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.

Post Reporter

There are still terrifying scars on his small legs. They will always be there.

But Jimmie Adkins has forgotten the searing pain of that bonfire six months ago. He is regaining use of those legs.

Six-year-old Jimmie still can't stand up straight, but he can walk, even run a little.

He is being cared for at the Christ Child Farm for Convalescent Children in Rockville, Md., one of the many institutions and agencies which benefit from contributions to the Community Chest Federation.

This is what happened to Jimmie last March 17:

There was a flickering rubbish fire in an alley behind 9th st. between Massachusetts ave. and L st .nw. Jimmie threw some tin cans in the fire. One of the cans contained cleaning fluid. The fire blazed up. The child, scared, t to stamp out the fire. Two men rescued him, but not before his legs had been badly burned.

Jimmie was treated first at Children's Hospital. Then, on July 25, he was transferred to the Christ Child Farm.

Surgeons have done what they can. There have been several operations and skin taken from the child's chest grafted on his legs.

Now time and care are needed.

Each day his legs are soaked in water and moved about for half an hour.

Each day his legs and body are oiled.

Each day the scarred legs are manipulated gently but expertly so the muscles will retain their vigor.

Jimmie's legs are still in splints, still bandaged. But he can sit in the sun and know that some day soon he will be joining his brothers and sisters at their home in Vienna, Va.

There are 30 other children at the farm, regaining their health and waiting for the day they can go home.

And they will go home some day thanks to Community Chest dollars.

Group Construction Plan Is Approved for District

Plans for "group construction" of new District buildings by a single contractor were approved yesterday by the Commissioners in an effort to spark the city's construction program.

Under the new system, companies may submit either one bid covering construction of several specified buildings, individual bids for any of the buildings, or both.

This method will be used for the first time "within a week or ten days" when bids are sought for constructing three new District school buildings, they revealed.

The plan was proposed by Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, who said is was designed to "bring more competition" into the city's construction program.

Large contractors, who hastitate to take a $400,000 to $600,000 job, he explained, might take a group of projects which would add up to a million dollars or more. Such contractor might make "mass production" savings on matreials and other items, he indicated.

L. E. p0sVerET AETA ETAETETA

Assistant Engineer Commissioner L. E. Cox said the commissioners expected to use the method "wherever jobs have enough similarity to warrant it."

Local contractors generally questioned the effectiveness of the plan.

Ancle Tester, secretary-treasurer of John Tester & Son, Inc., 418 Florida ave. ne., declared the plan "wouldn't work at all." Tester, who said his company handled contracts up to about $450,000, pointed out that small contractors were willing to assume more risks. Bidding by large contractors would force costs up instead of down, he contended.

Victor Judson, general manager of Harwood-Nebel Construction Co., 1520 K st. nw., one of the larger local companies, called the plan impractical. "It wouldn't be fair to put smaller ones in competition wit hthe big fellows," he declared.

Agency Cash Drained by Doubling of Relief Load

Dropping of 1400 From District Rolls Has Shifted Burden To Private Bodies

The Board of Public Welfare's recent drastic cut in public assistance cases has almost doubled the requests for relief from private welfare agencies, delegates to the Council of Social Agencies declared yesterday.

At a meeting, held by the Board of Public Welfare to explain its 1949 budget estimates, several private agency spokesmen said they had handled 100 per cent more relief cases in July, August and September than in the same period last year.

As a result many of them no longer have relief funds for the rest of the year and must make other arrangements, they said.

They agreed that at least 60 per cent of the increase could be attributed to the Welfare Board's cut in its cases and the other 40 per cent to other factors, including an expected continued increase in relief cases over the past year.

Year's Funds Already Gone

The Jewish Social Service Agency said it depleted its year's relief funds at the end of September. Catholic Charities declared its relief funds would be used up by the end of this month.

A spokesman for the American Legion's welfare department said they had to shut down intake (of cases) from August 20 to September 1 because they lacked funds.

By September 20, the Board of Public Welware had dropped 1400 from the relief rolls in its public assistance division, leaving a total of 3700 on the rolls.

The cut, made by tightening relief requirements, was necessitated by a lack of funds. Welfare Director Ray L. Huff declared yesterday that the cuts, many of which are still under consideration, may not be adequate to save the $272,536, which is ht edifference between his budget estimated for fisic 1948 and the amount Congress actually appropriated.

Yesterday's meeting was called to give members of the Council of Social Agencies a complete breakdown on BPW's estimates for its pected to speak in behalf of the 1949 budget. Many of them are ex-Board when public hearings are held on the budget.

The Welfare Department has asked for $23,945,400.

The 1949 estimates call for a $9,532,000 capital outlay, to be used for a Children's Center at Laurel, Md., and new buildings at the Home for Aged and Infirm.

It calls for $2,382,000 to operate and maintain its protective institutions as compared with this year's appropriation of $1,852,900. The institutions will need an additional $288,185 to improve and add to their staffs, which must be increased because of an expected institution population increase, a mandatory 40-hour week, and mandatory salary raises.

Because of increased prices of food, etc., the institutions will need an additional $37,933 to feed and clothe inmates in 1949, according to the estimates.

The Welfare Department is asking for $3,893,080 to operate and maintain its Public Assistance Division as compared to a $2,158,788 appropriation for 1948.

Based on a study of an increase of cases over the last six years, the 1949 budget ehtimates that old-age assistance cases will jump from 2195 in 1948 to 2700 next year; aid to dependent children will go from 1410 to 1825; aid to the blind from 230 to 250, and general public assistance from 1000 to 1290 for an individual and 165 to 335 for a family.

Therefore, the 1949 estimates ask for $3,531,030 in 1949 to finance assistance grants as compared to $1,934,450 appropriated for 1948.

It calls for $298,693 to pay 101 social workers and supervisors as compared to the $198,386 appropriated as salary for the present 68 workers. It asks for $174,777 to take care of 73 administrative and clerical positions as compared to $127,201 appropriated for the present 54 such positions.

For its child welfare division, the Welfare Department is asking for $1,227,181 for 1949 as compared to the $750,312 it was granted for 1948.

The number of children requiring board, and clothing is expected to rise from 980 in 1948 to 1112 in 1949. BPW also hopes to increase board rate for children now ranging from $35 to $45 to a flat $50 a month and to substitute a cash clothing allowance averaging $77 per child for the present distribution from a central store room. This will require $768,657 in 1949 as compared to the 1948 appropriation of $494,420.

The 1949 estimates ask for 140 social workers, supervisors, nurses and clerks as compared to the 85 now employed. Including with-in grade promotions, the cost will be $430,409 as compared to the present $246,203.

In Maryland and Virginia

Swing to Beer, Wine Still On in Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 2 (AP).—Marylanders are continuing to drink more wine and beer and less hard liquor, according to alcoholic beverage revenue figures released today by Comptroller James J. Lacy.

Lacy reported beverage revenues during the fiscal year—since July 1—had fallen from $2,160,310 in the preceding comparable period to $1,384,187. This represented a 35.93 per cent decline.

During September the State took in $384,773 in distilled spirits taxes, a decline of $70,375 under that of September 1946; $29,124 in wine, an increase of $8,337; and $157,094, an increase of $11,391.

The distilled spirits figure has showed a generally lower return to the State so far during the fiscal year, reaching 50.71 per cent in the three months.

Express Strike May Compel Lay-Offs Here

Loss of an estimated 25 per cent in business done by the Railway Express Agency here since New York Railway Express workers struck on September 19 may soon force lay-off of "15 to 25 drivers and clerks."

Only the seasonal fall jump in deliveries and pickups, a spokesman said, has enabled the agency to retain all its personnel.

The spokesman, S. W. Hughes, D. C. agent for the Railway Express Agency, declared "our business is down approximately 25 per cent because of the New York strike."

"The agency employs about 800 persons here," he said, "but if the strike doesn't end soon we'll have to cut down." He added that a study would be made to determine where the heaviest loss in business is.

The agent said that business was down not only in Washington but all over the country. "Drivers in New York simply aren't picking up any goods," he stated.

Deliveries to department stores, especially in millinery and ladies' hats, have fallen off considerably, he noted. Drivers of trucks making department store runs, Hughes indicated, probably would be among the first to be laid-off.

Hughes said he had "heard of no strike talk" among local employes of the express agency. New York workers, he added, are striking to gain an increase of 15 cents an hour and a 40-hour week, instead of 44 hours.

CTC Pay Tops U. S. Scale, Board Is Told

Average annual earnings of Capital Transit Co. employes top those of Federal workers or others of comparable skills, a Wage Arbitration board sitting at the Raleigh Hotel was told yesterday.

J. Edward Heberle, transit company vice president and controller, asserted the company's union employes now have average annual earnings of $3150, compared with an average annual Federal salary of $2680.

Seventy per cent of Federal workers receive $2644 annually or less, with ratings of "very good" or "excellent" necessary to reach government pay brackets equal to those enjoyed by the street railway workers, Heberle said.

Seeks 35% Pay Increase

The union, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL), is seeking a 35 per cent wage increase, paid holidays, sick leave and other benefits.

Between $3000 and $4000 annually is earned by 68.4 per cent of Capital Transit operators, Heberle testified, while only 16.1 per cent among those with comparable skills earn as much.

Eli Oliver, union spokesman, said the company was using 1945 figures to show earnings of kindred workers with comparable skills, contrasting them with the higher company pay figures for the contrast year 1946-47.

Labor Counsel's View

Hawley Simpson, labor counsel for the company, told the board bus and streetcar operators are in the upper one third of industrial workers in America in economic standing.

O. David Zimring, representing the union on the arbitration board, said the workers, due to rising costs, suffered a cut in purchasing power shortly after recent contracts had been entered into. Simpson conceded this.

The board, of which Dr. George W. Taylor is chairman, completed its second week of hearings yesterday and adjourned until Monday. The company then will resume presentation of its case.

Drive to Equip School

Report Due Today on Hite School

A police and physician's report on an investigation into conditions at the Hite Nursery School, near Rockville, Md., will be delivered today to State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson of Montgomery County.

Delivery of the report today was promised by Capt. Theodore F. Vollten, Montgomery County detective chief, who was in charge of an inspection party consisting of two detective corporals and one physician which visited the school on Wednesday.

Questions concerning the care given approximately 30 children enrolled in the school which charges $100 a month for each child were raised this week when a Washington couple, accompanied by police, withdrew their two children.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Langlotz, 3221 Connecticut ave. nw., said they withdrew their two boys, Wayne, 2, and Ronald, jr., 10 months, when they learned the boys were sick and a school official refused to admit the Langlotz's physician.

Dawson reiterated yesterday his intentions of asking the grand jury of the November term of the Montgomery County Circuit Court to indict Mrs. Hite for operating without a State welfare license.

Trade Board Eyes Sales Tax As BudgetProp

Possibility of a sales tax to pay for three million dollars in District government expenditures during the fiscal year 1948-49 is anticipated by a Board of Trade committee.

Data on which the supposition of additional taxes is based in the committee's preliminary study is summarized in the October issue of "Washington Board of Trade News," which appeared yesterday.

"District Department heads have submitted estimates totalling 145 million dollars for the 1949 budget. It is generally agreed by those familiar with the subject that these amounts will be pared down to approximately the amount of the 1948 budget," according to the Board's Municipal Finance Committee.

$3,000,000 Deficit Indicated

"Estimated expenditures during the fiscal year 1948 amount to $80,792,837. Estimated general fund revenues during the fiscal year 1949 amount to approximately 78 million dollars.

"If these preliminary figures prove to be correct, a deficit of almost three million dollars is indicated without any increase in the general fund budget.

"Many members of the Municipal Finance Committee feel that the only reasonable remaining source of additional revenue is the sales tax," the article states.

A more accurate forecast of the size of the anticipated deficit will be submitted at the board of directors' meeting Monday, and the committee's findings will probably be presented at the District commissioners' hearings later in the week.

W. B. Willard, chairman of the General Fund Subcommittee of the Board's Municipal Finance Committee, has named a special group to study District income taxation, including the possibility of repeal of personal income tax and operation of the income tax on corporations.

Besides his brother, Little is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Leroy Messersmith of Baltimore and Mrs. Ida Breitbarth of California.

Community Property Bill Studied in Md.

Public opinion in Montgomery County may determine whether a bill establishing community property laws in Maryland for husband and wife will be introduced at the next session of the legislature.

Delegate R. Duncan Clark said the Republican delegation is considering introducing the bill and public reaction in Montgomery is being sought.

The law would enable husbands and wives to file separate Federal income tax returns and result in a general lowering of taxes, it was declared.

"Several other States already have adopted this law," Clark said, declaring Pennsylvania adopted the law last year and "we feel Maryland residents should have the same privileges as nearby States."

Also being considered by the delegation is legislation which would create a State-wide junior college system under supervision of the public school systems.

Clark said Montgomery Junior College, which was established last year and is one of the few in the East, received a $10,000 grant from the State and $25,000 from the county. With no legal basis for the school's existence, Clark warned, there is no assurance of continued appropriations.

Samuel Baker

Samuel Russell Baker, 72, of 4860 Chevy Chase blvd., Chevy Chase, died yesterday at his home. He had been in poor health for some time, his family said.

A native of Amissville, Va., Mr. Baker came here four years ago. For many years he was a salesman and later operated a mercantile store at his birthplace. He was a graduate of Rappahanock Military Academy.

Funeral Set Today for Sidney Alley

Funeral services for Sidney Rufus Alley, 83, 1474 Harvard st. nw., retired photographer who died Wednesday morning at Gallinger Hospital, will be held at 1 p. m. today at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A native of Petersburg, Va., Mr. Alley received his education in Wilson, N. C. He operated a photographic business in Tarboro, N. C., and moved to Washington 30 years ago. Until six years ago, when he retired from the business, he was proprietor of the Alley Photographic Studios near 12th and F sts. nw.

During the war he returned to the business world, however, and until last winter was employed in the securities department of the National Savings & Trust Co. His death followed an illness of about three weeks.

He was a member of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church and of the Tarboro (N. C.) lodge of Masons. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Lelia Shaw Alley, two brothers, Wesley G. Alley, Government photographer of 1466 Harvard st. nw., and Walter B. Alley of Philadelphia, and several nieces and nephews.

Swinburne Funeral Set Tomorrow

Mrs. Louise Ingles Swinburne, 77, 1835 K st. nw., for 35 years a resident of the District and a retired Treasury Department employe, died yesterday in her apartment of a heart attack.

A native of Delhi, Iowa, Mrs. Swinburne was a member of Esther Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star, the Political Study Club.

Her husband, who died last year, was Dr. Arthur Halifax Swinburne.

She leaves two sons, Arthur Francis Swineburne of Bethesda, Md., and Rhodes Dewey Swineburne of Wheeling, W. Va.; three brothers, Clark White, formerly of Los Angeles, Calif., and Ross and Grover White, both of Puyallup, Wash.; two sisters, Mrs. Bess Irmscher of Delhi, Iowa, and Mrs. Nell Arthur of Edgewood, Iowa, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N st. nw. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Pinecrest Citizens Dance

The Pinecrest Citizens' Association will hold its annual fall dance at the Pinecrest Recreation Center on Lawrence dr., Silver Spring, Md., at 9:30 p. m. Saturday.

Counting Pennies with Carolyn

Just a step from Fairlington and Parkfairfax is the beautiful business community of Shirlington. If you live further away, it's still remarkably easy to reach by bus as well as private car. From Washington, all you need do is to get on the Fairlington bus at the A B & W Terminal at Pennsylvania and 11th. Buses leave every 20 minutes. Once aboard you whirl over the smooth highway, past the Pentagon, and before you know it you're in the heart of Shirlington.

Shirlington's newest beauty spot, Clive's Beauty Salon, opens next week, bringing the community its first air-conditioned beauty shop. It's the only beauty shop we know of that has the pleasant custom of serving piping hot coffee to early morning visitors. How wonderful, not to have to stop for breakfast before keeping a "first thing" appointment. You'll want to see the beautiful modern decor, with electric blue walls divided into eleven private booths by handsome rust leather and glass partitions. Basins and chairs are black, floors a marble pattern in the colors of the decorative scheme. Draperies at solid glass windows are a beautiful peachy beige striped in brilliant rust and blue.

A stop at Berger's brings to light a fine collection of sweaters, very timely right now. A brilliant-hued selection in pure wool with long or short sleeeves are just $2.99 each. Imagine! You can even get sweaters wrapped in cellophane. Berger's long-sleeved fitted and boxy styles in pullover and cardigan styles come that way. Pullovers are 3.99, cardigans, $4.99.

Ann Lewis' new collection of warm dresses from $8.99 to $12.99 anticipates chilly fall and winter days. Gay gingham-checked wools with tiny metal buttons and Peter Pan collars, shadow and glen plaid one-piece classic wools are wonderful for the money. New and young black velveteen bodices contrast with plaid wool skirts. Rayon gabardine shirtwaist dresses are smart as can be. No wonder you go away with two or three instead of one dress.

Shirlington Woolworth's, remarkable store, always seems to have the unexpected and hard-to-find. Now it's pure Irish linen handkerchiefs for a quarter each. Hallowe'en party decorations and masks are also coming in.

Chances are, when you've been served wedding cake that tasted as good as it looked, icing and all, Pittle's made it. This bakery is famous for wedding cakes, and has supplied them for many diplomatic and socialite weddings at embassies, official residences, and fine clubs. Recently, a sixty-pounder was delivered to the Virginia Army Navy Club. Cakes are made to order in any size from 2½ lbs. to 100 lbs., with fitting decorations, Army, Navy or Marine insignia, special flags, etc. The cost is only 85c a pound. Be sure to allow a couple of days for a small cake, three or four days for a large one.

In the luxurious surroundings of the Shirlington Theater, any motion picture is more enjoyable. When it's an emotion-packed melodrama, like "The Unfaithful," playing there today, the combination is ideal. In this tale of marriage, told with a hint of mystery, Ann Sheridan gives a fine performance as the wife, with Zachary Scott convicing as the husband, Lew Ayres adding to his laurels in the role of counsellor and friend. On Saturday, October 4, a double bill planned for the youngsters, brings "King of the Wild Horses" and "Blind Spot" to the screen.

Active in local civic and business affairs, he is on the directorates of Washington Gas Light Co. and Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., a former member of the Board of Public Welfare and serves numerous civic organizations. He is also a past president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association.

Other ABA vice presidents elected to represent their respective States included I. T. Van Patten, jr., of Norfolk, Va.; Harvey E. Emmart of Baltimore, Md., and R. Lewis Bentz of Martinsburg, W. Va.

HEADS HOTEL ASSOCIATION: Howard F. Dugan, vice president of the Hotels Statler Co., Inc., was elected president of the American Hotel Association at the annual convention in San Antonio, Tex. He succeeded Leonard Hicks, Chicago, who became association's chairman of board. Speaking for the association's 6000 members, Dugan pledged full cooperation with President Truman's food conservation program. He revealed that the hotel industry's $1,500,000,000 rehabilitation program is well under way.

Conference Secrets Revealed!

At last

The INSIDE STORY of what took place at the Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill Yalta meeting and the Potsdam, London, Moscow, Paris and New York conferences

By former Secretary of State

—his first-hand account!

20 articles, starting Wednesday, Oct. 15 in

The Washington Post

The "Big Three" at Yalta. President Roosevelt took Mr. Byrnes, then Director of War Mobilization, with him to this conference

The Potsdam Conference marked the first meeting of President Truman with Stalin and Churchill. Mr. Byrnes was there and took notes

As U. S. Secretary of State, James F. Byrnes met Britain's Bevin and Russia's Molotov again at the Foreign Ministers' Moscow meeting

Now you can learn the whole truth of what went on at the Yalta meetings between President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill, and the Truman-Attlee-Stalin talks at Potsdam. James F. Byrnes, "assistant president" and later Secretary of State, attended these meetings. He took down the Yalta conversations in the shorthand he learned as a youthful court reporter. At the other conferences he took extensive notes. His story, "Speaking Frankly," answers such questions as these:

Is it true that Stalin brushed aside the Pope's views on peace by sneering, "How many divisions does he have?"

What did Churchill and Roosevelt say about Poland's new boundaries and the Soviet-sponsored Polish government?

What did Stalin and Churchill say to each other about the big-power veto in the proposed United Nations?

Why did Roosevelt consent to three United Nations votes for Russia through admission of White Russia and the Ukraine?

What secret agreements were made at Yalta? How did Russia get the Kurile Islands north of Japan?

Is it true that United States-Soviet relations became strained only after the death of President Roosevelt?

What government fell when Vishinsky slammed a door?

What Churchill charges did Stalin dismiss as "fairy tales"?

What happened to British foreign policy when Churchill and Eden were replaced by Attlee and Bevin?

After the death of President Roosevelt, Mr. Byrnes was asked to become Secretary of State. His articles tell frankly why his coming appointment was kept secret for months, why he refused to attend the San Francisco Conference, and what went on at the first Council of Foreign Ministers. Here is the complete story of the Wallace resignation from the Cabinet, including the actual teletype message to President Truman which Secretary Byrnes sent from Paris. Here is Mr. Byrnes' frank opinion of Stalin and Molotov, of Soviet aspirations and what we should do about them, of the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan.

James F. Byrnes served in all three branches of our Government: as Representative and Senator, as Supreme Court Justice, and as Director of Economic Stabilization, Director of War Mobilization, and Secretary of State. His interpretation of the events he saw, the conversations he heard and the incidents in which he played a part makes tremendously interesting reading. You will want to read and clip every installment. There will be 20 in all, starting Wednesday, October 15, in The Washington Post. Newsstands may be sold out—be sure of your copies by subscribing. ## This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BROOKLYN, Oct. 2.—As they took the field against the Yankees today, the Dodgers were not only trying to win a ball game but had the long-range idea of trying to make World Series history. No club that ever lost the first two games of a seven game series, ever won a series.

POVICH

Meanwhile the series had moved from the dark, depressive recesses of Yankee Stadium to the county fair atmosphere of Brooklyn, with gaudy signs on the fences, a caliope wafting its music all over the place and a band serenading the customers in the grandstands.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler, who was non grata in Brooklyn after giving the heave to Leo Durocher last April, was somewhat more acceptable today. A couple of fans even asked for his autograph, which act, six months ago, would have been asking for violence in Brooklyn.

Durocher was an interested spectator as were his wife and ex-wife. The series in fact is getting more interesting for Durocher. If, by chance, the Dodgers dropped four straight, there'd be a new clamor for Leo's reengagement as the Dodgers manager and out with Burt Shotton.

Buck Newsom learned that being an ex-Dodger gets you nothing in Brooklyn, except boos. At the announcement of the Yankees' battery, the customers let Newsom have it and he paused during his warm-up on the sidelines to tip his cap in mock gratitude.

MANAGER BUCKY HARRIS weakened on his pre-series announcement that Yogi Berra would catch all games for the Yankees. After watching Berra go hitless in the first two games with the Dodgers stealing everything but his tattoo marks, Harris switched to Rookie Sherman Lollar as his catcher today.

It didn't take Newsom long to get into the main act. Facing Jackie Robinson in the opening inning, Newsom looked at the sign from Lollar and pontifically shook him off, swinging his head to and fro until certain that all in the park knew that Newsom was the boss. What Newsom pitched was a curve ball which Robinson belted for a clean single to left.

Robinson quickly stole second and then acted up like a man infatuated with his own speed on the bases. He stepped confidently off the bag and then was picked off by Stirnweiss, who had backed up the low throw to Rizzuto.

THERE WAS A dismaying thought for Brooklyn fans who have been told for decades that the strength of a ball team is concentrated in the line from home plate to centerfield. The Dodgers had to contend with the American League umpires at home plate and second base.

It didn't take the Dodgers long to catch on to this baseball business. After reading in the papers how the Yankees won the opening game by the strategy of staging a big inning, the Dodgers went out and got a big inning for themselves today. They weren't content with a five-run inning like the Yankees got in the Series opener. They staged a six-run inning, the show offs. I hate showy people, don't you.

In the third inning, the Yankees trotted out Mr. Nervous Nellie himself as their pitcher. The tall rookie Karl Drews was wondering where they kept the plate located in Ebbets Field. His first act was to hit Gene Hermanski with a pitched ball, and the next thing he did was to pitch one behind Edwards' back, with Hermanski going to second on the wild heave. He had an easy play on Hermanski going into third base on Edwards' tap to the box but for some vague reason known only to Drews he threw to first.

THE HARSHER PEOPLE could say that the run the Dodgers scored in the third inning served Bucky Harris right. With a man on third, two out and Jorgensen up he pitched to Jorgensen instead of Pitcher Hatten, and Jorgensen singled.

Whoever it was that said you can't boo a home run was dead wrong, incidentally. When Joe Di Maggio returned to his center field job after hitting his two-run homer in the fifth, those sounds from the bleachers could never be confused with applause.

Some kind of a strategical triumph was attained by Bucky Harris in the seventh inning when he withdrew his catcher Sherman Lollar, for a pinch hitter. Lollar had just made a single and double, and the man who hit for him was Berra, who hadn't made a hit in the series. But Harris must have been clairvoyant, because Berra got the perfect pinch hit, a home run over the wall in right center.

You knew you were in Brooklyn in the seventh inning. That was when Phil Rizzuto, batting, sprawled into the dirt in a frenzy to duck a high hard one by Hugh Casey that almost sheared Rizzuto's head off. Then it was that the Brooklyn fan behind me yelled, "Never mind, Casey, you'll get him next time."

But Still Confident

Bucky Harris and His Boys Unhappy Over Performance

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Oct. 2 (AP).—Stanley Harris is a self-possessed, sauve gentleman but after today's World Series game his face was flushed, his hands shook, and there was moisture in his eyes that might have been tears of wrath.

But even under the provocation of the 9-8 victory eked out by the Brooklyn Dodgers, the manager of the New York Yankees did not raise his voice as he said huskily:

"We just couldn't catch up with 'em. We had chances but we couldn't cash 'em. We just must go on from dad to day."

No, this had not changed his notion of how the series would come out.

In the austere visiting clubrooms of Ebbets Field, so unlike the ylush and chronium to which the Yankees have been accustomed at the stadium, there were expressions of disgust and a few snarls.

"Where were you on that play?"

"You shudda been over at third base."

"Aw, skip it."

The team took it hard.

The summing up remained for Bobo Newsom, the 38-year-old starting pitcher who had, as the phrase goes, his ears knocked off in the second inning.

"They just hitting," said Bobo, dropping a few words out of his sentences in his emotion. "They hit other people today, didn't they? Thought I had good stuff. Thought I was fast. Looks me like everybody hit today."

Catcher Yogi Berra, who became the first man to hit a pinch-hit home run in World Serlies annals, took no pleasure in his feat.

He pushed away autograph seekers with a gesture of disgust and spoke harshly of the Dodgers.

"They should be ashamed of themselves for letting us get up that far."

Dem Bums Make 'Bronx Bummers' of Yanks

By Whitney Martin

Bbbets Field, Brooklyn, Oct. 2 (AP).—Well, what'd we tell youse guys? The woim toined when we got them Bronx Bummers at Ebbets Field, didn't it?

All we needed was that good old home back yard, with everythink like we are used to it—good old Hugh Casey going to the mound, Pete Reiser going to the hospital.

Soon as we loined old fat stuff, Bobo Newsom, was going to pitch for them Yankees we knowed it was in the bag. Why, him and old Abner Doubleday made up the first battery. We got him out of there right quick, if you'll notice.

Sure, after we'd got six runs in the second we eased up and let those American Leaguers chase us a little, just to keep the folks happy. Smart, that Shotton. You'll notice we never let them catch us. Give the fans a good, long show, we always say.

Maybe you didn't notice some of the finer points. You remember when George McQuinn had to hit the dirt to keep from getting beaned? And h ewas called out on strikes at the same time? Well, the ball ticked his bat. What strategy; what finessee!

And did you notice that when we let Joe DiMaggio hit it out of sight we were careful there wasn't more than one man aboard. And we fed that home run ball to Yogi Berra just to give the kid a thrill. We felt a little sorry for the guy, with everybody on him for some of the things he did the last couple of days, and besides, we wanted to hear him say: "I hit that one good. Huh?"

There was nobody riding the bases and it only brought the Yanks to within a run of us, but shucks, with Hugh Casey out there, there wasn't nothing to be afraid of. We wasn't nervous at all. Not at all.

We really had the mguys hopping mad, didn't we? And I mean hopping. Did you see Yogi turn around and try to eat up the umpire when Yogi claimed Casey got in his way on a bunt? Shucks, that's the way Casey always does. Just stands around waiting to see what happens. He didn't mean nothing.

And did you ever see a man as big as John Lindell jumping up and down in such a tantrum at second base as he did when he said Ed Stanky never touched him as he went by. Johnny nearly blew a fuse that time. No fooling.

Go after the big innings, we always say. Besides, with Newsom out there, we knew it would come. Before the game, he says: "Gee, my hands are sweaty." He may not of been nervous, but it wasn't hot. He wouldn't sign his name to anything before the game, neither. Said it was bad luck. He must have forgot and signed his breakfast check. His luck wasn't good, we wouldn't say.

Well, folks, that win was all we needed. We'll throw—say, who in the dickens will we throw at them tomorrow? My gosh, Shotton forgot we had another game coming up.

Maybe you didn't notice the big black headlines on the first page of our paper here the last couple of days. Yesterday it says "Who's Worried!" Today it says: "We Aren't Afraid!" Can you imagine what it will be tomorrow? Probably "We're In."

Well, they might as well be truthful about it. Sure, after today it's a cinch. We wore them out today, but good. Three hours and five minutes. We're used to that and they're not. That's more of Shotton's strategy.

It would have been nice if he'd saved a pitcher for tomorrow, though. He could have done it easy, as we had such an easy time today. We weren't nervous a-tall. We always throw away the cigaret and smoke the match this way.

MIGHTY CASEY GANGED—Teammates rush up to congratulate Hugh Casey, Dodger relief pitcher, after Brooklyn won the third game of the World Series yesterday, 9 to 8. Casey entered the game in the seventh inning

Casey Saves Bum's 9-8 Victory

Bucky Harris took two gambles. The first succeeded. With Harris disdaining a bunt, Lindell got orders to hit and he singled cleanly to center to move Henrich to second. Now DiMaggio was up and the place was in panic.

Would Harris play the orthodox game and ask DiMaggio to sacrifice the tying run to third and the winning run to second? No., Harris was playing it resolutely, counting on his best hitter to hit. That was apparent when DiMag let Casey's first pitch pass for a called strike, and continued to take an extra-base stance.

On the next pitch, the Yankees' hopes of a big hit collapsed. DiMaggio, trying to withdraw his bat from a pitch he didn't like, bounced a soft grounder to Second Baseman Stanky.

Lindell, running to second, was tagged out by Stanky who threw to Jackie Robinson for a double play on DiMaggio. Henrich moved to third but now there were two out. And Casey was out of the inning on McQuinn's grounder to Robinson who beat him to the bag in a race between a fast man and a slow one.

In the ninth, the Yankees didn't raise any kind of a fuss against Casey. Bill Johnson grounded out to Robinson, Phil Rizzuto hoisted a soft fly to Dixie Walker, and Homerun Hitter Berra bounced an infield out at Casey.

Robinson is Picked Off

Newsom, groomed for this start in the series, was a complete flop. He barely scraped past the first inning after Jackie Robinson singled with one out and stole second on Catcher Sherman Lollar's low throw to Rizzuto. But was picked off on the same play, when George Stirnweiss backed up Rizzuto with a one-hand pickup and caught Jackie over-running the bag with a flip to Rizzuto.

The Dodgers poured it on in that second inning, though. Gene Hermanski walked with one out and Edwards moved him home with a two-bagger that rocketed against the left-field wall and bounded away out of Lindell's reach. Peewee Reese singled to center to score Edwards, and with two out, Pitcher Hatten singled to left. When Stanky dropped a two-run double into right field, Newsom took the long walk to the showers.

It was Raschi, up from the Coast League and a big winner in the Yankees' pennant drive, who got the pitching job then. Robinson greeted him with a single to right. Then Furillo saluted him with a two-bagger off the right-field wall that made it six runs for the inning. Brooklyn fans were in an uproar.

Hatten Off to Good Start

Joe Hatten, Brooklyn's starting pitcher who had won 17 games the past season but only one against a first division club, was untouched for two innings. In the third, the Yanks got two runs back on Lollar's single, a walk to Pinch Hitter Al Clark, and singles by Lindell and DiMaggio.

Karl Drews, a nervous rookie righthander pitching for the Yanks in the third, promptly gave back a run to the Dodgers. He hit Gene Hermanski and then wild pitched him to second. Two outs later, Jorgensen singled to left and the Dodgers had a 7-2 lead.

The Yanks got tough in the fourth again, and scored two runs but the Dodgers matched 'em. Lollar's double off the right field wall scored Johnson who had walked, and Stirnweiss singled to center to score Lollar.

But in the Brooklyn half, the Dodgers got to Spud Chandler who was wild. After Stanky and Furillo drew walks, Walker and Hermanski touched up Chandler with singles.

Yanks Make It 9-6

Hatten didn't last out the fifth. DiMaggio smasked his long home run after Lindell walked with none out, and the Brooklyn lead was cut to 9-6. Branca took up the pitching at that point.

The Dodgers never did get any more runs, but the Yanks were threatening to tie it up against Branca in the sixth after Pinch Hitter Bobby Brown opened with a double to right.

Henrich doubled off Stanky's glove to score Brown, and with two out, Branca filled the bases on walks to DiMag and McQuinn. He had a count of three balls and no strikes on Bill Johnson and was threatening to force home a run until Johnson popped up to Stanky two pitches later.

Berra moved in as a pinch hitter for Lollar with one out in the eighth and struck some terror into Brooklyn hearts, with the homer that cut the Bums' lead to one run but that's when mighty Casey took charge.

Bucs Name Meyer Pilot; Release Hank

Pittsburgh, Oct. 2 (AP).—Billy Meyer, one of minor league baseball's most successful pilots, today was named manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates in his first major league executive job. He received a two-year contract at the highest salary ever paid a Bucco field boss.

Meyer replaces Billy Herman, who resigned by request after a one-year tenure under a two-year contract. The Pirates finished in a last-place tie, the worst showing the Bucs have made in the National League since 1917.

Meyer Attending Series

The deal transferring Meyer from the manager's job at Kansas City, where he won the American Association pennant this year, was announced in New York, where the Pirate owners and Meyer are attending the World Series.

"He wanted an experienced manager like Meyer to be in charge during our rebuilding process," said Roy Hamey, Pirate general manager. He added that Meyer will have complete control on the field—and Pirate co-owners, Frank E. McKinney, John Galbreath and Tom Johnson, nodded affirmation.

Hamey also announced the unconditional release of Hank Greenberg, famed home run slugger, at the player's request. Greenberg came to the Pirates from the Detroit Tigers and was among those mentioned as Herman's successor in preliminary guesswork following Billy's resignation junst before the final game of the 1947 season.

Bucs Get Yank Permission

The Buccos first had to obtain the New York Yankees' permission to deal with Meyer, since he was Yankee chattel at the helm of their Kansas City farm club. Larry McPhail, Yankees' general manager, was quick to consent.

Meyer has a reputation as a developer of young players, especially pitchers. During his 1938-1941 direction of the Kansas City Blues, he developed the Phil Rizzuto-Gerald Priddy-Johnny Sturm double play combination which came to the Yankees as a unit. In 1942 he was transferred from Kansas City to Newark of the International League, another Yankee but he returned to the Blues two seasons ago.

Shotton Comes Up With Grin

New York, Oct. 2 (U.P.).—Burt Shotton finally got the corners of his mouth turned upward a little in a weak grin for the photographers today, yet the Brooklyn manager didn't exactly look as if his boys had just won the most vital world series game thus far.

Still uncommunicative, though his players on all sides were whooping it up without restraint, Shotton said that "we looked a little bit more like a ball club today, didn't we?"

He had no special praise for any player in the nerve-grinding, 9 to 8 triumph over the Yankees, but said that "we managed to get a few hits when we needed them this time.

"This is Brooklyn, you know, boys," he said. "When we get to Brooklyn we start playing ball again."

For the first time since the series started, Shotton gave a tentative announcement of his starting pitcher. He said Harry Taylor, a hard-throwing rookie "probably" would go, "if he tells me he is all right.

"But I'm serious about this, fellows," he said. "If he says he isn't quite ready, he won't go."

They Face Fordham, Delaware

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The setting for Washington's collegiate football opener tonight at Griffith Stadium finds Georgetown out to make its home debut a success and Fordham trying to break out of the shackles of a seven-game losing streak.

Hopeful that the Hoyas can get back on the track after launching their season with a 6-0 defeat by Wake Forest last week, a crowd of some 20,000 is expected to be on hand for the 8:30 kickoff.

It was the Hoyas who started the visiting Rams off on the wrong foot last year. They squeaked out an 8-7 triumph which was but one of seven setbacks the once mighty Fordhamites suffered without a victory.

"And if we can do it again, I'll be not only pleased, but highly surprised," said Georgetown Coach Jack Hagerty yesterday after he put his squad through their final paces for tonight's fracas.

The Hoya offense, which sputtered ineffectively against Wake Forest, is almost certain to be operated predominantly from a spread formation tonight while the Rams, under new Coach Ed Danowski, will attack from the old Notre Dame box.

Quarterbacks Elmer Raba and Babe Baranowski will be used alternately by the Hilltoppers with Raba getting the starting call. They represent the throwing end of the Georgetown passing game and indications are that their arms will be cocked most of the evening.

In the starting backfield with them will be Fullback Connie O'Doherty and Halfbacks Lew Surman and Lou Miller. Surman, an excellent punter, replaces Len Bonforte, as a starter.

The probable starting lineup:

| Georgetown | | Fordham |
|---|---|---|
| (205) Sarashevits | L. E. | Winston (195) |
| (205) Dolan | L. T. | Landmark (215) |
| (206) Oberto | L. G. | Reiss (198) |
| (200) Kelly | Center | Flora (180) |
| (206) Werder | R. G. | Breen (175) |

Vic Turyn Back; Terps Face Delaware

Maryland University football hopes took a decided turn for the better yesterday when Coach Jim Tatum announced that Vic Turyn, regular Terp quarterback, would be in shape to start against the University of Delaware tonight at College Park. Kickoff time is 8:15.

Turyn, who received head injuries in the opening game against South Carolina, ran through yesterday's workout and his return means that Maryland will have a veteran directing the team.

A capacity crowd is expected at College Park, with most of the interest centering around the question—can the Terps end Delaware's 32-game winning streak?

In its only previous game this season, the Blue Hens defeated Penn Military College, 25-13, for No. 32.

| Delaware | | Maryland |
|---|---|---|
| Hauple | L. E. | Simko |
| Gentner | L. T. | Dreche |
| Carroll | L. G. | Phillips |
| Messick | Center | Kinner |

| Zink | R. E. | Evans |
| Buchanan | Q. B. | Turyn |
| Storti | L. H. | Werner |
| Cole | R. H. | Gantrove |
| Oneill | F. B. | Sonk |

Kickoff—8:15 P. M., EST.

DEAR FOLKS:

A short World Series wouldn't hurt the feelings of this track. All hands admit the classic with radio and television, cuts down attendance. What's this I hear about the swamp fever originating in Florida last winter, a product of the Everglades? Starter Eddie Blind continues to belie his name. He's doing a grand job with an all-ex-service man line-up of assistants. Trainer Ed Chrismas will bring in the W. L. Brann horses, including the 2-year-old Escadru, eligible for the Richard Johnson on Saturday and the Maryland Futurity next Wednesday. Brann won the Futurity three times with Challedon, Vincentive and Challadette. Gustave Ring's Washington colors will be seen in action here soon. Trainer Tom Carroll is bringing in 14 members of the Ring stable. Bayard Sharp has shipped his timber-toppers into Pimlico. See you on the rail —BILL.

4-Year-Old Filly Beats Meetmenow

Laurel, Md., Oct. 2—The combination of the Baltimore-owned Bobanet stable and Jockey Don Padgett that clicked with regularity in Maryland last sesan, engineered a smashing victory by Ariel Song today.

Trainer Spec Dunne saddled the 4-year-old filly and Padgett booted her home with daylight to spare in front of E. C. Allnut's Meetmenow, the pride of Rockville. In third position in the field of six was Q. L. Nyberg's Irisen by a photo margin over H. S. Horkeimer's Tony's Find, the favorite.

Ariel Song, a busy campaigner with 25 starts for the year, ended a five-race losing streak to account for her fifth victory of the year and send her earnings in the shadow of the $20,000 mark. The race, named the Alexandria, was at six furlongs and the daughter of Ariel was clocked in 112 4/5 while ringing up a $22.80 mutuel for her backers.

Ariel Song Not Hurried

Irisen and Meetmenow did most of the early front running with the latter assuming command in the stretch. Padgett did not hurry Ariel Song in the early stages. When ready he brought her to the outside. Jockey Carson Kirk, of Silver Spring, Md., did his best to keep Meetmenow going but the filly was not equal to the task.

At the end, Padgett was handling the winner only lightly as she won going away.

Washington customers had their innings in the fifth race when John A. Manfuso's Astral came from behind to win in good fashion. Performing in the favored role, the big son of Sun Beau, downed Mrs. Jack Carson's Glyndon Mac and D. G. Smith's Audible to produce a $4.40 mutuel and won his second purse of the year.

Astral, a 7-year-old, stepped the mile and a furlong in 154 2-5 to bring Jockey M. N. Gonzalez his fourth winner in two days, a record shared by Padgett.

Those who shun the daily double to parlay the first two races took it on the chin. The double paid $159.40 while a parlay figured only $39.50.

Jockey Don Padgett, who is in excellent form here, won the first race with R. E. Carter's Oriole by the simple method of going to the front early and staying there. The winner paid $15.80 and led R. C. Utz's His Honor and A. Klee's Wonabet home in time of 113 for the six furlongs.

E. B. Townsend's Harold Harter, a $5 favorite, won the second race with Mrs. Charles Bromley's Snow Phantom second ahead of H. B. Cohen's Abeko, the pacemaker most of the way. Jockey B. Vandergriff wa saboard Harold Harter who matched the running time of the opener.

Out Fishing . . .

By Jack Bell

TOMORROW morning at North Beach, Md., the second competitive fishing tournament within 30 days will get under way.

Saturday's "Open Fishing Contest" is sponsored by the "National Capital" Chapter of the Izaak Walton League.

A trophy to remain hte property of a two time winner will Ben Dement, Washington angler, now has his name on the cup, winning last year's contest off Solomon's Island.

Tom Acken, who is responsible for arrangements, says, something new has been added this year—a trophy to the angler catching the largest fish while still or bottom fishing.

The contest begins at noon and takes off from Stinnet's pier, at North Beach. After the contest the winners and near winners will be announced during dinner at Stinnet's.

CHANNEL BASS hit off the beach around Fox Halls Levels the first part of last week. Fourteen of the big bronze fish were beached by surf casters before the northeaster on Wednesday of last week quieted things down a bit.

But now the weather has cleared, and the big fish are again striking. Arnold Stewart of Wilmington, Del., says weakfish weighing 2 to 4 pounds have become a nuisance with some surfcasters taking as many as 50 per day.

Hockey Lions Get New Line

Barrie, Ont., Oct. 2.—Coach Jack Riley today disclosed that his Washington, D. C., Lions, of the American Professional Hockey League, have acquired a potent, new line from the Chicago Blackhawks.

Duke Slater, Buck oJhnson and Bud Thomas comprise the new unit from Western Canade, and should add new punch to the Lions, who open their 1947-48 season against the Philadelphia Rockets at Uline Arena a week from Tuesday night, Oct. 14.

The Lions dropped their initial exhibition to these same Rockets in Belleville, Ont., last night, 9-5. However, three members of the 1946-47 Eastern League Lions distinguished themselves in defeat as oJe Ciuman turned in a three goal "hat trick", while Walter Babey and John Carr-Harris fired one each.

The Washington combination had won a practice game from the Dallas team of the United Sates League the night before, 2-1.

Ike Williams Signs

Chicago, Oct. 2 (AP).—Ike Williams of Philadelphia, lightweight boxing champion, has signed to meet the winner of next Monday's 10-round bout here between Gene Burton and Johnny Bratton on October 31 in Chicago Stadium.

Demaret's 65 Sets Record at Reading

Reading, Pa., Oct. 2 (AP).—A near perfect round of golf—a 65 that carved 6 strokes from par to set a new Berkshire County Club course record—gave Jimmy Demaret a 3-shot lead today in the first round of the $10,000 Reading Open.

Second place at the end of a brilliantly sunny day went to Terl Johnson, of Norristown, Pa., a top-flight Philadelphia district pro who carded 68.

One stroke further back was Bobby Locke, the knickerman from Johannesburg, South Africa, tied with Amateur Frank Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio; and tournament veterans, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, York, Pa., and Willie Goggin, White Plains, N. Y.

U. S. Open Champion Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., headed the remaining golf par-breakers. He was bracketed at 70 with Ed (Porky) Oliver, Wilmington, Del., swarthy Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Y., and Amateur Ed Johnston, Baltimore, Md.

Demaret thought his spectacular 65 "just another round" of golf, but to many in the gallery who followed the gaily garbed man from Ojai, Calif., it was practically perfection. The leading 1947 tournament money winner made six birdies.

Four Hit Par

Only four other players in the field of 161 for this final tourney of the summer golf circuit managed to match par: George Payton, Hampton, Va., Fred Hawkins, Antioch, Ill., Clarence Doser, Hartsdale, N. Y., and Louis Barbero, Deal, N. J.

One casualty was PGA Champ Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, who started despite a painfully wrenched knee, played the front nine in 37 and was forced to quit at the fourteenth.

It took a card of 79 or better today to qualify for the field of 100 to play the second round tomorrow, with the playing list to be further cut to 60 for Saturday and 36 for Sunday's final 18 holes.

Former Giant Sues For $300,000 Damages

New York, Oct. 2 (AP).—Daniel L. Gardella, former New York Giant outfielder, filed suit for damages of $300,000 in Federal Court today on the grounds that the major league players agreement, particularly the "reserve clause," is monopolistic and tends to restrain trade and commerce in violation of the Sherman and Clayton Anti-Trust laws.

Gardella is under a five-year suspension in the major leagues an din 1946, according to the complaint, played in the Mexican League.

Boys Club No. 5 Romps Over No. 12 by 32-0

Police Boys Club football team No. 5 romped to an easy 32-0 victory over team No. 2 on the Ellipse yesterday.

Fritz Stone provided all the scoring punch for the victors, running fo rthree scores and completing passes to Robert Dewdney for two more. Jack Inscoe bucked across for the two extra points.

Tennis Tournaments

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—The Virginia championship tennis tournament in men's and women's divisions and a similar event for junior and boys' brackets have been awarded to Charlottesville for next summer, Sam Woods, secretary of the Richmond Lawn Tennis Association, announced today. Dates for the events will be arranged by the Charlottesville group, Woods said.

Record 36,594 May See Skins

THE PHRASE you saw in every Redskin home game report last year—"Before 33,691 paying customers"—will be used no more.

This year, with the addition of seats in right and center field, there will be 36,594 cash fans at each of the Griffith Stadium epics. That is, if present ticket sales continue.

Redskin headquarters yesterday took stock of its unsold seats for Sunday's home opener against the Pittsburgh Steelers and sent out the following communique:

"A very few tickets are still for sale. Some are good."

If the stadium is sold out Sunday, the crowd will be a record for Washington. Largest previous gathering was for the 1940 championship playoff with the Chicago Bears, (73-0, remember?) to which 36,034 of the faithful were attracted.

A Sunday sellout would also top the Redskins' previous regular season crowd record handily, that being set by the 34,645 who saw the 1943 Bear game here, and start the Redskins toward a season total of more than the 201,401 who paid to see last season's home games.

Redskin players will turn out almost as faithfully as the fans for Sunday's affair. Only Tackle John Adams, his knee in a cast, will be unable to take part. The Redskins are still three men short of the 35 man player limit but aren't expected to do anything about it until after Sunday.

Amity Takes Lead In Bowling League

Amity advanced to first place in the Odd Fellows Bowling League with a three-game victory over Metroplis. Columbia, Columbian Encampment and Friendship No. 1 are tied for second place, one game behind the leader.

Knight Dream Sets 2-Mile Pace Mark

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 2 (AP).—Knight Dream, already hailed as the greatest two-year-old pacer of all time, scorched Lexington's "red mile" for a new world's juvenile pacing record of 2:00 2-5 today.

The Rhode Island rambler, owned by Percy and Jere Gray and Robert Armstrong of Providence, waited until the second heat of the Two Gaits Farm Stake, a $3000 test, to improve the mark established over the same oval by Jimmy Creed in 1944. Jimmy Creed's record was 2:00 2-4 (cq).

Quantico Opens

The Quantico Marines eleven opens its home season Saturday against the Fort Eustis Helldivers in a Middle Eastern Service Conference tilt at 2 p. m.

Don't Be Reasonable

Then You'll Like 'Dark Passage'

By Richard L. Coe

THOUGH IT'S IMPLAUSIBLE claptrap, the Warner's "Dark Passage" is good movie fun. Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall are the stars.

It's one of those pictures that bears no critical scrutiny, but-on its purely melodramatic level it has plenty of suspense and novel twists.

By "good movie fun," we don't mean fun ha-ha, but fun gee-whew-gosh. Bogart plays a man who, wrongly convicted of murdering his wife, escapes from San Quentin, gets a plastic surgery operation, discovers who did commit the murder only to have the murderer's death cheat him of a cleared name. So he winds up in Peru, his girl joins him and they presumably lead nice, dull lives ever after.

To detail the plot of this one is well out of our debth, and, since "Dark Passage" revels in taking the most illogical turns, and attempt to do so is like cheating cheaters.

The beginning has a touch of Robert Montgomery's "Lady in the Lake" trick; you never see Bogart's face. The camera becomes Bogart; eventually you find the reason for this. Once the face surgeon finishes his work, this pretense is dropped, and for a reel or so the camera shows us Bogart with his face taped up. Finally the bandages are tenderly snipped off by Lauren and there's Bogey in all his pasty Stonehenge features. It's simply one of the film's endlessly illogical tricks. Makeup could have managed the facial transformation and the absurd shift of the camera's role could have been avoided.

The part the law plays in this fandango isn't in the least convincing, either, but it makes for plot twists. Not only has the law wrongly judged the man, it leaps to a wrong conclusion about a second murder and starts an inquisition in a public diner that could hardly have occurred. But, again, as Washingtonians well know, real-life law is a curious thing. Furthermore, the plot has to be kept spinning somehow.

The cast is quite up to its peculiar, illogical adventures, with Bogart setting the pace for playing the thing straight. You can't help noticing that his face is as immobile uncovered as it is when wrapped in gauze. Lauren Bacall, in the peculiar role of the rich girl who comes to his rescue, is considerably more natural than in her former parts. Agnes Moorehead gnashes up the set as the horrid villainess, but that's the sort of part it is. Houseley Stevenson stands out as the Samaritan-like surgeon who changes Bogart's face.

No, "Dark Passage" has no logic. It's complete and utter baloney. But as baloney, it's o.k.

THE WARNER SCREEN has a short subject which may somewhat have added to our enjoyment of "Dark Passage." This is the March of Time's report on radio, "Are You Listening?" While its report on the all-American muffler only echoes accepted radio criticism, it also serves to remind you that movies like "Dark Passage" have their counterparts, and inferior counterparts, on the air. It employs the series' familiar factual technique and "there's-room-for-improvement" finale. John Crosby's going further into this in Sunday's paper, so we'll leave it to him.

Skelton Owes Best Scenes In 'Merton' to His Director

By Leo Brady

In "Merton of the Movies" at the Capitol, Red Skelton, in character, learns that his talent lies in the direction of burlesque comedy rather than melodrama. Your willing suspension of disbelief in the case of this picture will consist in your acceptance of this conclusion.

For somehow Merton in his 1947 reincarnation isn't as funny as he seemed when Harry Leon Wilson invented him, Kaufman and Connelly dramatized his antics, and Harold Lloyd impersonated him. He is still the same shy Midwest movie-struck young man with an acting school diploma who fumbles his way to stardom. But the frost is on the corn.

In only two sequences does Skelton manage to convey the idea that Merton is an extraordinary comic, and he owes the value of both of these largely to the writers and the director. These are a scene in a sleepy, cobwebbed old man's club where noise is anathema and Merton has to replace a burned-out lamp, and a chase among the seats in a crowded movie theater, with the chased-under spectators popping up and down without taking their eyes off the screen.

Virgnia O'Brien His Pal

Otherwise, the paces Skelton puts through are automatic and uninspired. When Virginia O'Brien tries to convince a producer that Merton is a natural-born comedian, you find yourself on the producer's side waiting for proof.

What comfort you might expect to find in a few shots of silent-movie-making turn out dud as well, falling 'way short of the affectionate giggles you probably bestowed on "The Perils of Pauline."

I don't know whether it's habitual for Skelton's handlers to haul in a few scenes where he's supposed to be pathetic and appealing, but those that occur in this picture have a strange ring of obviousness and come off as rather shamefaced attempts to compensate for laughs.

Especially one which comes immediately after a sequence on an early movie set where three musicians bang away at mood music. Skelton's effort to wring pity out of you is accompanied by a score that sounds suspiciously like the one you've just witnessed.

Radio Gags Included

Now and then Skelton is supplied with a tag line borrowed from his radio program, but on the whole this is a frail affair. Not half so entertaining as some of the silents the picture appears to condescend to.

Virginia O'Brien plays a sympathetic stunt girl, a chore which revivifies her traditional pan, and Leon Ames' authority seems misplaced as a silent star with a penchant for-lost weekends. Gloria Graham, Alan Mowbray and Charls D. Brown are around in minor capacities.

Benson and Mann are the most popular exhibits in the Capitol's stage show, although you may be inclined to take seriously their aside about doubling at the Gayety. Otherwise, the Leon Henderson Dancers dance, Sascha Leonoff performs vigorously on the accordion and the piano, and Ada Lynne does practically everything.

Truman Letting Down Marshall, Some Fear

By Drew Pearson

Marshall

"I've got a mighty great man working for me," the President told Congressman Jackson of Washington the day after the appointment. "General Marshall is one of the best men who ever lived."

And talking to the Reserve Officers' dinner, Truman described Marshall as a greater military leader than Hannibal, Genghis Khan or Napoleon. In short, no man ever went into office with more enthusiastic support from his superior in the White House than George Marshall.

In recent months, however, some observers fear that Mr. Truman has forgotten about his original promise of support.

Last summer as Congress staggered toward its close, it was obvious to any intelligent person that Congress would have to take drastic action regarding Europe before December 1.

The Italian Ambassador in Washington made it quite clear that his government—established without Communists in the cabinet on the specific advice of our State Department—would be up against a Communist showdown by late fall. Mr. Truman's Ambassadors in Europe reported to the same effect. Even without their reports, however, it would have been fairly easy to read the newspapers and to predict what was bound to happen.

Despite this, Mr. Truman deliberately went out of his way to deny reports that a special session of Congress would be necessary. As a result members of Congress scattered to all parts of the world—including Europe and Asia.

In the Lap of Congress

More recently, when Mr. Truman was in Rio de Janeiro, the pressure—which all diplomatic observers forecast—began to get hot. His Ambassadors started reminding him of trouble ahead. Secretary of State Marshall, to whom he had promised such enthusiastic support, got more and more worried.

Mr. Truman, however, did not seem to worry. He did not hurry home. His battleship, instead of putting on extra speed, actually slowed up. And when finally he called congressional heads together early this week, here is a brief summary of what happened.

After Undersecretary Lovett gave a detailed warning of what the democracies of France, Italy and Austria were up against, the President said:

"Now, gentlemen, ask any question you wish. It's up to you."

The reply of elder statesman Arthur Vandenberg probably was typical of congressional reaction. Asked point blank what he thought should be done, the Michigan Senator replied:

"You gentlemen have had five weeks to think this over, and now you give me five minutes."

However, most of the Republicans present, including Vandenberg, were more than cooperative. New Jersey's Chairman Charley Eaton of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, a former clergyman, was impatient for early action.

Fair-minded Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire supported Eaton with surprising vigor. So did Senator Wallace White of Maine, who has always urged a nonpartisan foreign policy. He read from a letter telling how whisky distillers were laying up whisky reserves before the Government could stop them.

"Drew Pearson brought that out on the radio last night," observed Sol Bloom. "He said the distillers are doing this even though they have eight years' supply on hand."

Republican leader Charley Halleck of Indiana and Les Arends of Illinois, both from the isolationist Midwest, were somewhat more cautious. Halleck spoke up to remind that no commitments were being made, while Arends warned: "This will take much longer than you anticipate."

Democrats Fear Tax Bill

On the Democratic side, former Speaker Sam Rayburn was distinctly cool to the idea of a special session.

"I hope," he said, "that this can be handled without a special session. If the session were confined strictly to this emergency aid program, it would be all right. But the chances are that some members will try to bring up other bills which will cause confusion."

What Rayburn had in mind, according to colleagues, was the fact that tenacious GOP Chairman Knutson of the Ways and Means Committee has a tax bill all set to toss in the legislative hopper. With hearings already held, the tax bill could be passed immediately—ev before European relief could be voted.

However, everyone present, both Democrats and Republicans, seemed to agree that some way must be found to rush temporary aid to France and Italy in December and then take time for more leisurely consideration of the long-range Marshall Plan.

In brief, every congressional leader called to the White House was reasonably willing to cooperate. But as Senator Vandenberg summarized it, they were given five minutes to decide a problem which the White House and the State Department had known about for five weeks.

Note.—If Communist revolution breaks out in western Europe this winter, failure to warn Congress in advance will be chalked up by historians as one of the great errors in the Western Hemisphere's battle to save democracy.

British Spy Yarn In Best Tradition

By Richard L. Coe

"The Adventuress," at the Hippodrome, is one of those witty spy pictures the British do so well, an honorable descendant of "Night Train" and "The Lady Vanishes." Which isn't surprising, since Frank Launder and Sidney Gilliat wrote and directed all three. The remarkable thing is that the boys have managed to pull it all off again. And in the title role, Deborah Kerr gives them a pack of help.

It has been their bright idea to make their adventuress an Irish patriot on whose young, impressionable mind her father's boastings about the "troubles" of 1916 in Dublin has had far-reaching effects. As if setting a trend, their heroine, Bridie, hates the British. On her twenty-first birthday in 1944, she determines to tackle the enemy herself. This she manages by getting mixed up with a Nazi spy ring, without giving much thought to the consequences. She rather enjoys the job at first, for on her initial night in England she dumps some paint on a statue of Oliver Cromwell, whose existence everyone else had apparently forgotten.

Her stand against the wartime British includes taking a job in a small inn and finding out what she can about a military prisoner. She easily does so by making friends with military personnel. When her boss is shot, she carries on as his dying words directed, winding up with invasion plans on the Isle of Man.

There's no point in going further into Bridie's adventures, for their improbabilities will hardly tempt you. The film is amusing in how it's told: the frightening task of doing away with the Nazi's body so there will be no questions asked about him; the near blunders of authorities who almost but never quite catch wise to what she's doing; the sly digs at the Irish and border smuggling between the two Irelands.

As they were in "Night Train" and "The Lady Vanishes," some of the best Launder-Gilliat scenes are on moving trains. One you'll particularly like is a crowded compartment, one occupant of which is another spy Bridie is to meet. But which one? Bridie's bewilderment equals your own. It's a deliciously amusing scene.

There are other neatly wry observations on British muddleheadness, not only of a bumbling intelligence captain, but also of the efficient prison guards who, for all their military correctness almost, but don't quite, lose their quarry. You'll also find a British reaction to ourselves, the full-living, gum-chewing Yanks. For all its sharpness, it's a bemused, admiring glance.

There is, too, an economy of narrative that's admirable. Scenes which you might expect to see are pointedly left out but instead of being missed, the yarn spins along all the faster.

Miss Kerr's brogue, anger, dawning awareness and charming femininity are all delightful. Her boy friend—an artillery captain—is acted with just the right light touch by Trevor Howard, who was so fine as Celia Johnson's unhappy lover in "Brief Encounter." The supporting character players are excellent. Yes, you'll enjoy "The Adventuress."

Avakian Reissues Some Good Oldies

By Bill Gottlieb

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Bloodhound in hand, meerschaum in teeth, and dust protector on nose, George Avakian has been searching the musty Columbia storehouses in search of antique jazz with current significance. Avakian, a one-time critic who succumbed to a desire to be functional, has come up with some remarkable relics, some of which are chiefly of historical value, more of which are classical, ever-fresh music.

Among his available reissues are an album by wry, bitter Billie Holiday, first recorded over six years ago; a collection of songs by the late empress of the blues, Bessie Smith; some more recently cut sides by an old-time great, Kid Cry; a volume of boogie woogie; several items by Louis Armstrong's famed Hot Five (recorded in the middle 20s), and a not-yet-released set of Jack Teagarden specials.

To capitalize on the forthcoming movie "Body and Soul," Avakian has also issued an old Billie Holiday single side of the tune and has published other singles by Chu Berry and by Maxine Sullivan. This last platter, with Claude Thornhill at the piano, reminds us that it was the now popular orchestra leader who was the brains behind Miss Sullivan and "Loch Lomond," which is one of the tunes reissued.

LOCAL LORE—N. Y. Corner: Austere Carnegie Hall was sold out both for the "Jazz at the Philharmonic" and the Dizzy Gillespie concerts and almost sold out for the Ernest Tubb hillbilly session. Not a lorgnette in either crowd . . . Oscar Moore has left the King Cole trio for brother Johnny Moore's equally successful exclusive recording group, the Three Blazers . . . The recent Time magazine article on top crooners omitted Frankie Laine, among others, and neglected to say that the hundred thousand dollar incomes of each singer was measured in Chinese dollars . . . For records by said crooners, try: Art Lund's "It's a Lonesome Old Town" (MGM), Tony Martin's "Lazy Countryside" (RCA-Victor) . . . also try Margaret Whiting's version (on Capitol), Gordon McCrea's "Body and Soul" (Capitol) . . . also Ziggy Elman's (on MGM), Vic Damone's "Come Back to corrento" (Mercury) . . . this is sung half in Italian, Frankie Laine's "Two Loves Have I" (Mercury) and Mel Torme's "And Mimi" (Musicraft).

LOCAL LORE—D. C. Corner: Mary Lou Williams, greatest gal instrumentalist, is at the Bengasi with Ben Webster . . . Illinois Jacquet, hottest small band attraction, has his stronghold in Washington, where he's gotten nine bookings this year.

DISC DATA: Top tune team of Benjamin and Weiss have written "Fun and Fancy Free" for Walt Disney. You'd better like it cause you'll hear plenty of it via records by Phil Brito (Musicraft), Gene Krupa (Columbia), Margaret Whiting (Capitol), Johnny Johnston (MGM), the Dinning Sisters (Capitol) and others . . . Louis Prima's "Civilization" (RCA-Victor), a hit, with followups by Two-Ton Baker (Mercury) and Jack Smith (Capitol) . . . Though the public generally fluffs musicianly music, Musicraft's two top attractions are the most technically proficient of all swing singers: Mel Torme and Sarah Vaughan. Catch Sarah's "I Cover the Waterfront" . . . Fazola's New Orleans albums for Victor and Keynote are strictly for Dixieland fans, though Eddie Miller's "Muskrat Ramble" (Capitol) should appeal to most jazz enthusiasts.

RECORD BRIEFS: Benny Goodman comes to life on "Hi Ya Sofia" (Capitol) . . . George Paxton is in a Goodman-Basie groove with "Yale Blue" (Musicraft) . . . Frank Sinatra tries still another tack with a spiritual, "Jesus Is a Rock in the Weary Land" (Columbia) in which he's backed by the Charioteers . . . The Harmonicats' "My Gal Sal" (Universal) is bad enough to become another hit like their "Peg o' My Heart" . . . Cleverest novelty is the Modernaires' puppy love song, "Our Hour" (Columbia), with the title growled . . . Erskine Hawkins is sprightly on "Well Natch!"

Over 3500 veterans from World War I are carried on Veterans' Administration rolls as amputees.

Health Exhibit To Be Feature of Scientific Assembl

This year for the first time a public health exhibit will be a feature of the eighteenth annual Scientific Assembly of the District Medical Society, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the Hotel Statler.

Food fads and fallacies and mechanical medical quackery will be among the subjects depicted in the exhibit, open to the public from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. during the three-day meeting, and also from 7:30 to 8:15 p. m. Tuesday.

The District Health Department, District American Red Cross Chapter, District Tuberculosis Association, and District division of the American Cancer Society, are co-sponsoring the exhibit with the Medical Society.

2 Area Policemen To Be Graduated Today in FBI Class

Two Washington area policemen and one from Hagerstown, Md., will be included among graduates from the FBI National Academy at 10:30 a. m. today.

Included in a class of more than 500 who have completed the thirty-sixth session of retraining are:

Sergt. Harold F. Stewart, of the Park Police, 5602 Lincoln st., Bethesda, Md.; Sergt. Warren W. Zimmerman, of the Alexandria, Va., police department, 118 N. Peyton st., Alexandria, and Detective John E. Rohrer, of the Hagerstown police department.

Principal address at the graduation ceremonies will be given by the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, regent of the Georgetown University foreign service school.

Judge Orders Hearing on Assessments

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 2 (AP).—Judge James Clark ordered Anne Arundel County commissioners today to grant a hearing to Justin G. Buch of Riviera Beach who had charged tax assessments of 47 properties were "inequitable, unjust and undervalue."

The commissioners had declared Buch's petition for a hearing "out of order" on the grounds all property in the county is subject to continuing reassessment.

In an opinion written after Buch asked for a writ of mandamus in County Court last Thursday, Judge Clark said, "the petitioner is entitled to the hearing demanded as a matter of right."

Doesn't Fear Precedent

He said the writ would require only a hearing, adding that the court would not "attempt to mold" the commissioners' subsequent decision.

Referring to an assertion by Benjamin Michaelson, attorney for the county, that "if hearing must be granted on demands such as this, it will produce chaos," Judge Clark wrote that "few people are likely to indulge in the pastime."

He disagreed with Michaelson's contention that Buch could appeal to the State Tax Commission, declaring "as the petitioner has never been accorded a hearing, he has nothing to appeal from."

Original responsibility for questions on assessments belongs to the county commissioners, the judge continued, "and they must accept it."

Contention Denied

The court also denied an argument by Michaelson that the commissioners' refusal to grant a hearing was the equivalent of a refusal to change the assessments involved.

"How could they pass on the petitioner's contentions without knowing what such contentions were?" he wrote.

Judge Clark ruled that Maryland law gives a taxpayer the right to question the assessment of another taxpayer, not merely his own.

If assessments are "on an equality," he observed, the county "has nothing to fear and all to gain from an inquiry."

"If they are not, it should put them there. But, until it demonstrates that it has done so, it should not complain that a taxpayer exercises the right given him by statute, of calling the matter to its attention."

Yugoslav Sculptor To Be Guest at Tea

Ivan Mestrovic, Yugoslav sculptor, will be guest of honor at a tea and advance showing of his works today at the Corcoran Gallery of Art from 4 to 6 p. m.

Mestrovic's sculptures will be on exhibition to the public beginning tomorrow. His works include wood reliefs, bronze and marble human figures and a collection of drawings.

More Research Urged by Va. Air Advisers

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2 (AP).—The Virginia Advisory Committee on Aviation held a three-hour meeting here today during which it went on record as favoring a marked advance in scientific research in aviation and increases in charges by airport operators giving flight instruction under the GI Bill of Rights.

The committee, which consists of seven members appointed by the Governor, indorsed a resolution adopted in Roanoke in September by the League of Virginia Municipalities Aviation Committee, which recommended that a sum—probably 5 or 10 per cent—of the money going to aid Europe under the Marshall Plan be withheld for use of scientific research in aviation in the United States.

This action was taken after D. W. Swicegood of Danville told the committee of which he is a member that Russia is at least two years ahead of the United States in this field.

Should Protect Investment

"If we are going to invest in Europe to rehabilitate foreign nations, we should do something to protect that investment," he said.

The GI flight training program was discussed at length and the committee said that in view of greatly increased costs of airport operation and maintenance present rates for students taking flight instructions under the provisions of the GI Bill were inadequate.

A motion was passed asking that the State Corporation Commission be requested to recommend to the Veterans' Administration in Washington that operators having GI schools be permitted to charge the maximum price authorized under public law.

"This would allow them $8.50 per hour for solo and $11.50 per hour for dual flights for light aircraft. Present rates range from $6 to $8 and $7 to $9."

30 Markers Completed

Col. Allan C. Perkinson, director of the aeronautics division of the SCC, which the committee aids in planning aviation development in Virginia, told the group that the Civil Aeronautics Administration had completed 30 new air markers in Virginia in the last two months and said these were to be matched with a similar number supplied with State funds.

The committee also was told by Alfred C. Nowitsky, aeronautical safety engineer of the SCC's aeronautics division, that liaison reserve pilots were entitled to four hours of instruction per month under government provisions and said there was a distinct need for these fliers to renew their training.

Members of the committee besides Swicegood include Chairman Fred Hummel of Hopewell; Charles D. Lincoln, Marion; W. W. Edmondson, Lynchburg; A. H. Pettigrew of the State Highway Department; Col. R. A. Marr of VMI, and E. I. Williams of Front Royal.

Seized $7513 To Be Split With County

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 2 (AP).—Anne Arundel County officials and three convicted lottery operators have agreed to split $7513 between them because neither wished to take a chance of losing the entire sum.

Benjamin Michaelson, counsel to the County Commissioners, said they had agreed to divide the money, which was subject to a suit in the county court.

Samuel Goldberg, Hamilton Crandall and Morris Walter, all of Baltimore, sought to recover the money confiscated from them when they were arrested May 10.

All three were convicted by Magistrate David B. Dunker of Glen Burnie of operating a lottery and fined $1000 each.

In their suit they maintained Police Chief John H. Souers had no authority to retain the money.

Michaelson said the decision to settle the case out of court was reached because "of uncertainty as to the legal right of either to retain or recover such money."

He said legal precedents offered no conclusive grounds for deciding the right to the money in the case.

Costs of court action prior to the settlement will be deducted before the money is returned, he added.

Jovanovih Denies 'Plot' Against Tito

Belgrade, Oct. 2 (INS).—Dragoljub Jovanovich, former leader of the opposition National Peasant Party, pleaded not guilty today to charges that he aided foreign spies and conspired against the Communist-dominated regime of Marshal Tito.

Jovanovich denied specifically that his plans for a national political bloc were dictated by the British government through Stephen Clissold, a former British press attache in Belgrade. His co-defendant is Sranjo Gazi.

Correction Officers Will Go to School

Captains and lieutenants of correctional institutions here will go to school for the next three weeks. The in-service training program is directed at attitudes concerning penology and correctional administration. Classes are to be held at the District Jail and the office of the Director of Correction here.

Classes include discussion of leadership aspects of custodial training, race relations in correctional institutions, budget functions, personnel problems, custodial supervision, discipline, property control, fire prevention, legal matters, police methods, and procedure to prevent escape.

Over 400,000 veterans changed the beneficiaries of their national service lifiefe insurance during 1946, Veterans' Administration said.

False Arrest Claim Denied By Officials

Frederick, Md., Oct. 2.—The Mayor and aldermen said today they would not meet demands for $5000 damages by a local photographer who charged the city "falsely arrested" him.

City Attorney Richard E. Zimmerman said a police department report showed Charles W. Roelke was arrested for photographing a traffic accident scene.

The city announced after an executive session that it would not accede to the "demands for $5000."

Roelke said he took a picture of a pedestrian who was struck and killed by one car and run over by a second one. He took the picture home and later police got him out of bed, took him to headquarters and charged him with "disorderly conduct," Roelke said.

The photographer said his $10 collateral was refunded and the charges dropped after he exposed the negative.

Zimmerman said Roelke's account of the arrest was "substantially correct."

The nature of the report made before the aldermen was not disclosed, but it was indicated police had been instructed to permit no photographs in fatality cases until after the proper higher authorities assumed charge.

Taber Assails Communists

Berlin, Oct. 2 (INS).—Representative John Taber, (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, declared in Berlin tonight that "the Communists are a wart on the body politic and are bent on destroying the German, Austrian and Italian economies."

The representative, whose group is one of many touring Europe on an extensive investigation of political and economic conditions, added:

"This wart must be watched, and treated where necessary."

The estimated number of national service life insurance policies in force with Veterans Administration on December 31, 1946, was around 5,600,000, consisting of nearly five million term and over 600,000 permanent plan policies.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Jury Acquits Mrs. Laughery In Slaying of Ex-Husband

Princess Anne, Md., Oct. 2 (AP).—Brunette, comely Mrs. Laura Wilkins Laughery, 28-year-old former University of Maryland co-ed, was acquitted today on a charge of killing her ex-husband and burst into sobs, saying "Now I can go home and take care of my little girl."

The 11-man jury went out at 3:10 p. m. and returned in 52 minutes.

Mrs. Laughery stood by her attorneys to hear the verdict and then collapsed into a chair and sobbed with her face in her hands.

Her blond seven-year-old daughter, Judith Ann, ran up from the back of the court room and asked:

"What's the matter, mommy?"

"I can go home now," she said.

Shot In Self-Defense

Mrs. Laughery testified during the two-day trial that she shot her divorced husband in self-defense July 18, when he forced his way into her father's home, where she was living.

She was accused of pumping five bullets into Timothy W. Laughery, a 37-year-old poultry grower. The state asked a first degree murder verdict without capital punishment.

State's Attorney E. MacMasters Duer said in his closing statement that the death was "an unnecessary taking of human life." He said there was no reason to kill a man "because he had a bad reputation."

"I have no patience with anyone who comes to the bar of justice behind the gray hair of a parent or the skirts of a tiny child," he added.

Judith Ann attended the trial both days.

Mrs. Laughery Weeps

State Senator Thomas F. Johnson, Mrs. Laughery's attorney, in his final appeal to the jury, said the slaying was a justifiable homicide, "because the law gives a person the right to arm himself in anticipation of injury."

Mrs. Laughery wept during his speech.

Earlier Lorenzo T. Sommers testified that 24 hours before the shooting Laughery told him "I'm going to Pocomoke tomorrow and choke the life out of Laura and her father. I expect to walk over their dead bodies before I leave the Eastern Shore."

Mrs. Laughery and her parents had dropped assault and breaking and entering charges against her husband previously when he agreed to leave Maryland. Laughery originally was from Clarksburg, W. Va.

Opposing counsel and the court agreed to a jury of 11, one less than normal, after exhaustive questioning of more than 60 prospective veniremen.

Plan to Raise Capital Park Funds Shelved

Baltimore, Oct. 2 (AP).—Consideration of an emergency measure aimed to provide more funds for the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission was shelved by the Legislative Council meeting here today.

The Council tabled the matter when it developed that disagreement existed between the two counties affected — Montgomery and Prince Georges.

The Park and Planning Comquiring park land in the Montmission acts in cooperation with the Federal Government in acgomery and Prince Georges areas adjacent to the District of Columbia. The Federal Government pays for the land, two thirds of which is a loan and the remainder an outright grant. The loan is secured by bonds which are guaranteed by the county in which the park land lies.

Local Agreement Needed

Senator Kimble, Alleghany County Republican, expressed belief the question of park acquisition in the area was a matter of controversy among the lawmakers representing the affected counties. It should not be approved for submission to the General Assembly, he contended, unless there was a certainty of agreement among the county delegations.

Spokesman for the Capital Park and Planning Commission told the council of the need for increased borrowing authority in the acquisition of land and asked that this be made the subject of emergency legislation.

Senator Davis (R., Montgomery) proposed that the Planning Commission and legislative representatives get together to map a program that could be submitted through the council to the Legislature without danger of controversy.

Some quarters in Prince Georges County, one source reported, may be entirely opposed to further park acquisitions under the program mapped by the commission.

Council Has Influential Role

The council as a permanent committee of the Legislature holds hearings and drafts legislative proposals. Its composition of the top officers of the Legislature generally insures enactment of measures it recommends.

To be able to submit recommendations for the necessary emergency laws at the extraordinary session, the council adjourned subject to call from its chairman, Senator Byrnes (D-Balto 5th) who promised at least one more meeting before the Annapolis gathering. No date has been set as yet for the latter.

The powerful group received recommendations:

1. For an elaborate roadside control program, submitted by the Maryland Roadside Council.

2. For a proposal for legalized bookmaking, which was tabled by a unanimous vote.

3. Of opposition to a proposal that Federal income taxes be deducted in computations for state returns.

Delegate Asks Return Of Price Controls

Baltimore, Oct. 2 (AP).—Delegate Jerome Robinson (D., Baltimore, 4th) asked the Legislative Council today to recommend to the Legislature a resolution calling on Congress for the reimposition of price controls on foods and other necessities.

This immediately touched off opposition in the council, which then postponed action on the Robinson motion because a quorum was lacking.

Because of the current "runaway inflation," Robinson told his colleagues, the council should recommend passage of the resolution of the forthcoming special session of the General Assembly.

"I believe that we should take the lead that something be done to aid the housewives and consumers who now pay the bill," Robinson declared.

Before making the formal motion, Robinson presented a letter to the council, written by himself and Delegate Irvin Adler (D., Baltimore, 4th) which said Congress "made a tragic mistake when it relaxed controls on prices."

Senator Stanford Huff (R., Carroll) immediately rose to object, saying controls "only delay natural economic readjustment." Prices are higher now, he said, but "so is purchasing power."

(OUT DEFENSE HIGHWAY)
BEAUTIFUL LOTS, 100x170 FEET
$750

If you are looking for a lovely homesite—a place well situated with beautiful trees and room for flowers, and a place where the kiddies can romp and play and still have such indispensable city conveniences as city water, electricity, telephone, mail service, trash and bus connections—then come out to Lanham Park, one of Prince Georges County's fastest growing communities, where you can still get nearly half an acre of land for $750, with convenient terms if you prefer so that you can pay for your lot in small monthly payments.

Come out and look around. There is no obligation to buy—but we promise you will be impressed with the value offered and the activity here in Lanham Park.

Spritely Prexy Of Wellesley Back in Town

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

MILDRED McAFEE HORTON, former head of the Waves, arrives in town tomorrow for a weekend of big Wellesley doings—a luncheon given by the British Ambassador and Lady Inverchapel, a tea given by the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins, and a mammoth dinner tomorrow night at the Statler. The former Waves captain is back at her old stand—president of Wellesley College. Her husband, to whom she was married while still head of the Waves, is Douglas Horton, an attractive gent who's a power in America's Congregational churches.

Despite her highbrow job, Mrs. Horton is great fun, relaxes humanly and often. A favorite anecdote around town emerged from Princeton's commencement last spring when she and a group of male big shots—President Truman, Jim Forrestal, Senator Barkley, Bernie Baruch—were given honorary degrees. Part of the festivities was a large dinner at which she was the only woman present. The repast progressed stuffily until Mrs. Horton's turn to speak.

She began by saying she felt like the traveling salesman marooned in a small town hotel with only a Gideon Bible for company. He thumbed despondently through the pages, turned to the suggestions printed on the flyleaf. "If you are despondent turn to"—such and such a line on such and such a page—"If you are lonely turn to"—the last line was a penciled scrawl. Startled, he read "If you're still lonely call Millie at——"!

Needless to say, stuffiness vanished, Wellesley's president was belle of the ball.

WASHINGTON'S most spectacular fashion display of the season opened yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel and will be continued this afternoon and tonight.

Staged by the Connecticut Avenue Association, Inc., for the benefit of the Smith College Club of Washington, the shows took place in the ballroom at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m. They will be repeated today at the same hours.

Hundreds of spectators filled the large room to capacity for the opening show. Reserved seats in the balconies were completely sold out by show time, as women crowded in to get a good look at this much-talked of "new look."

Bride's Story Told

It was a fashion show with a story, entitled "The Runaway Bride." By following the heroine's daughter from the cradle, through college, a brief fling at a career and on to a glamorous wedding of her own, it was possible to introduce fashions for every hour and age.

The elopement scene opened the show and the audience followed the bride and bridegroom on a honeymoon trip to points South and West. Tweed suits and wool coats were the feature of this scene with accent on several pieces of handsome luggage.

In the next scene, "It's a Small World," 11-month-old "Sandy" Stackelberg was the star, clad in beautiful christening robes and surrounded by family and friends in morning and church attire.

Tiny Models Shown

Tiny models showed what a future Smith College girl wears in grade school, high school and for strolling in the park. When she entered college, there were costumes for the Dartmouth Ice Carnival, an Amherst house party, a Harvard dance and a Yale prom. In "That Career Is in Your Sphere" clothes were shown that will take a girl from office to an evening date.

Mrs. Gladstone Williams wrote and staged the show and commentators included fashion editors of four Washington newspapers.

Congressional Club To Hold Tea Today

With so many Congressmen's families already back in town, the Congressional Club has decided to begin its social activities ahead of schedule—and with something new. This afternoon, from 3 to 5, members will gather for the first fall tea in the club's history. Since the headquarters at 2001 New Hampshire ave. are closed until January 1, the party's to be at the United Nations Club.

Receiving with the president, Mrs. Clifford Davis, will be Mrs. Harold Burton, immediate past president.

President's Broadcast to Women Includes Talk by Mrs. Boettiger

By Bessie Hackett

MRS. JOHN BOETTIGER, the former Anna Roosevelt, daughter of the late President, will be one of three women to be heard on the same radio program with President Truman when he addresses the women of the Nation on October 8.

The announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, executive director of the women's division, Democratic National Committee, at a press conference on the eve of her departure on a Nation-wide tour. First stop will be Milwaukee, where she will address a Jefferson Day dinner Saturday and on November 2, 3 and 4 the former Representative from Connecticut is scheduled to speak in Seattle, the city where Martha Taft, wife of Republican Senator Robert A. Taft, recently attracted national attention with a quip-packed speech in which she said Washington is run by "Pendergast politicians and parlor pinks."

"But I'm not going to make wisecracks," said Mrs. Woodhouse,

Ida Jean Kain's 10-Day Diet Ends Today

Now Keep That Slim Figure By Exercise, Good Posture

By Ida Jean Kain

THE perfect way to wind up any figure-fixing series is to let you in on the one exercise that whittles the middles more effectively than all the others put together. With a single exercise you can be style-all-the-while. That's right, it's good posture. Well, yawn if you want to, I know you're bored with the whole subject. But don't dismiss it too lightly, for your posture is mental!

It's your attitude that counts. If you regard yourself as an attractive woman with a flare for wearing clothes, chances are good that you have an easy, elegant bearing. But if you're the bored sort, and don't care very much, then your posture is indifferent or careless. It takes a certain amount of verve and confidence to have a superb bearing. Colorless women never achieve a distinctive posture.

The reason good posture is better exercise than calisthenics is simple . . . it works for your figure all the time. In proper alignment, your bones help to support your weight, and there is no strain at the connections. The middle muscles work toward keeping the figure slim in the middle. But off balance, the abdominal organs push against the muscles and the muscles push against the belt and cause a bulge.

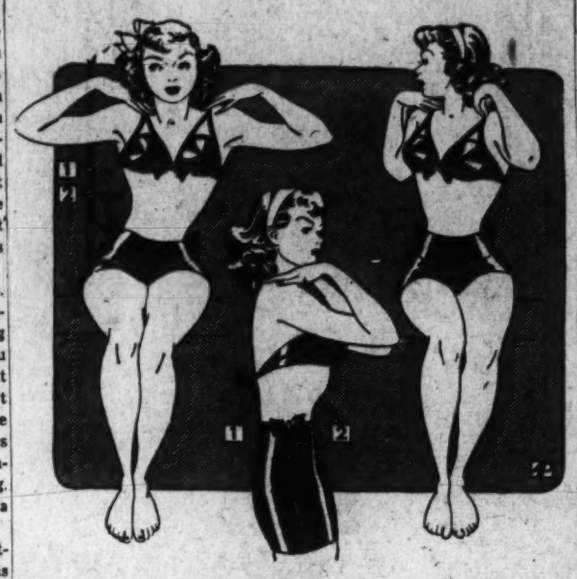
Stand with back to the wall, head, shoulders, hips and heels touching wall, arms down at sides. Now make believe you have a heavy weight in each hand . . . about 26 pounds in each. The idea is to "lift" these weights up overhead, slowly, very slowly . . . up, up . . . until arms are straight up overhead, against the wall. As you'll find out, that doesn't miss a middle muscle! Repeat the exercise slowly, three times, and add a count each day up to 12 or 15.

Throughout the series we've been working on the up-and-in-pull of the abdominal muscles to trim down the waist and midriff. If you'll follow through by carrying the up-lift into your every-day movements you can always have a beautifully slim figure. As you sit in a chair, keep the up-lift through the midsection, shoulders easy. And as you stand and walk, lift your chest and hold that bump of self-esteem on top of your head . . . high! Again keep your shoulders free and easy and natural. See what pride in your posture does for your figure? Then every step you take and every breath you draw is natural slimming exercise.



Proper alignment, especially for those neglected muscles along the spine, as well as a slimmer waistline, may be achieved by these exercises: Put a chair against the wall. (1) Place a strip of tape on the wall and rest your torso against it. Place hands on shoulders and move rib area (waist up) to right. (2) Hold position for count of 10. Do each side 20 times at first, increase as you get used to pull on previously unexercised corset muscles. Second Exercise: (1) Stand at wall. Push the spine at waistline out back two inches. (2) Lift your ribs toward the ceiling two inches. Hold this position while you count to 10. Relax. Then do it 20 times. Exercise Three: Sit on chair, place finger-tips on shoulders, push spine at waist back two inches, lift ribs up two inches. Twist left ribs around two inches, hold position for the count of 10. Repeat right side

Help Child Overcome His Shyness

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

At about 9 months of age children begin to show some timidity toward strangers. Up to this time they may have accepted their caresses and gone into their arms with pleasure. Now they turn their heads away, or duck behind their mothers, or just stare and refuse to smile and be friendly.

This is just normal appreciation of the fact that these individuals are not members of the family. The child will outgrow this if dealt with sensibly. It is unwise to force your attentions on a child who is timid. It's enough to show him that you are friendly, you can make funny faces, funny noises and entertain him, if he wishes.

If the child is left alone and shown that this stranger has no designs upon him, he will relax and begin to make the advances himself. This may mean nothing more than a tentative hand placed on your face. It may mean if the child is older, that you will be the recipient of all his pet dogs and dolls, so assured has he become that you meant him no harm.

Clings to Mother

The 2-year-old goes through another bout with timidity. Now, he refuses to look at the strangers his mother meets and talks to on the street, or the strange children who come to play at his home. He stands near his mother, clinging to her and refusing to have anything to do with anyone but her.

This is always distressing to the parent who wants her child to make a good showing with strangers. She worries too that he won't be friendly when he is on his own and antagonize people instead of "winning" them.

It's right to give every child the opportunity to meet and be with strangers. It is good, as soon as the child is old enough to play, to bring children into the home and let him get accustomed to them in his own familiar surroundings.

The mistake is to imagine there is anything more needed to make him a friendly person. Given the opportunity to know by his experiences that everyone is friendly to him and given the personal opportunity to act shy, if he so pleases without being scolded or made self-conscious about it, children are certain to discover the values of companionship outweigh any timidity they might like to display. All children are not as aggressive as others, but all will enjoy being with people if people are sensible enough to let them make friends at their own rate of speed.

Mrs. A. D. Merrill Wins Grand Prize For Needlework

Mrs. Arvilla D. Merrill's Italian cutwork chairback set won her the grand prize in a recent needlework contest sponsored by a Washington embroidery shop.

The contest, which received entries from May 15 until just recently, was divided into four categories:

1. Embroidery on stamped goods, won by Mrs. Merrill, thereby making her eligible for the grand prize;
2. Knitted and crocheted work, won by Miss Ruth Kaminsky with a hand-knitted baby afghan with monograms knitted in;
3. Tapestry work, won by Gerrie Gehr Miller with his original still life design, and
4. Rug work, won by Ralph E. Ulmer with a cross-stitch design in a calla lily pattern.

Contest judges were Mrs. Christian Heurich, Mrs. Frank L. Williman and Mrs. Maude Lynch.

To Wash Nylons

To keep nylon and silk stockings from wrapping around the clothes line, put a teaspoon in the toe of each stocking and hang stockings on the line by the top.

Removing Stain

To remove metal stains from table linens, towels and other fabrics, use a mild acid such as vinegar, lemon juice, or a 10 per cent solution of acetic acid. Rinse as soon as the stain has dissolved.

Mrs. Whittall, Concert Patron, Has Collection of Stradivari

Incidentally, the citation for Mrs. Horton's degree is surprisingly spritely for a man's college. Summing up reasons for confering this distinction it mentions Mildred McAfee's being the first woman commissioned in the Navy, then goes on—"For her unerring sense of how to rule the WAVES and when to WAIVE the rules—and her God-given sense of humor."

Like every other educational institution Wellesley's alumnae are embroiled in a fund-raising campaign. Saturday's dinner, which is to drum up trade, has former Chief Justice Hughes as honorary chairman, Chapman Rose as chairman, Justice Burton on the committee and Dean Acheson as toastmaster. Mme. Martins slips into the picture because her piquant daughter, Nora, went to Wellesley.

Collects Stradivaris

FIRST OF THE season's series of chamber music concerts took place Thursday evening at the Library of Congress, when the Krasner Chamber Music Ensemble played Bach's "Musical Offering" a seldom heard work. Concerts are free and financed through the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation.

Most foundations are set up "in memory," but Mrs. Whittall is very much alive right here in Washington. As well as a maintaining fund, she's given the foundation five Stradivari violins, innumerable manuscripts, letters of Mendelssohn, Mozart, Brahms, Paganini.

To help the artists produce wonderful music Mrs. Whittall commenced collecting Stradivari violins. Each has a name—the "Betts," the "Castelbarco," the "Ward" and a viola, the "Cassavetti." The accompanying bows, which are valued almost as highly, were made in the eighteenth century by Francois Tourte of Paris. They're carved from special Brazilian wood, pernambuco, which combines a remarkable stiffness with the required lightness.

The bows have names too—one's the "Baillot," another's the "Russian." A good Stradivari, by the way, costs anywhere from $25,000 to $70,000 [illegible] collection adds up to.

Parties Honor Foreign Visitors

THE Ambassador of China, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, entertained at a luncheon yesterday in honor of the Chinese Minister for Foreign Affairs, Dr. Wang Shih-chieh. Attended by State Department officials of the Far Eastern Commission, the party was held at the Embassy at 1 o'clock.

Among the guests were the Assistant Secretary of State, Charles Saltzman; the chairman of the Far Eastern Commission, Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy; the Secretary General of the Far Eastern Commission, Nelson T. Johnson; Raymond Muir, Charles Butterworth, Arthur R. Ringwalt, Philip Sprouse, Edward Rice, C. Tyler Wood, Lewis Clark, James Penfield and Maxwell Hamilton.

Also: Lieut. Gen. Chu Shih-ming, Dr. C. Y. Hu, Dr. C. L. Kuo, Minister Shao-Hwa Tan, Minister Y. C. Young, Counselor Chen Chih-Mai, Dr. T. T. Mar and Dr. S. C. Wang.

VICE ADMIRAL Sir William Tennant, commander-in-chief of the America and West Indies squadron of the British navy, who arrived in Washington late Wednesday aboard the HMS Snipe, was a guest of honor at a dinner last evening given by Fleet Admiral and Mrs. Chester Nimitz.

Others in the company were Lady Wilson, wife of Sir Henry Maitland Wilson; Admiral and Mrs. C. DeWitt Clinton Ramsey, Admiral Sir Henry Moore, RN; Admiral P. W. Brooking, RN, and Mrs. Brooking; Vice Admiral and Mrs. Forrest Sherman, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Thomas B. Inglis, the Naval Attache of the British Embassy, Capt. P. W. W. Wooten; Capt. Joy Hancock, director of the Waves; Capt. Fawkes, RN, and Miss Nancy Nimitz, daughter of the hosts.

Admiral Tennant will entertain at a reception this morning at 11:15 aboard HMS Snipe, which is docked at the Navy Yard.

Truman Speech Oct. 8 Beamed At Women

"I'm going to talk on issues."

The other two women on the broadcast Wednesday with President Truman and Mrs. Boettiger will be Mrs. David M. Levy of New York, active in child welfare work and the United Jewish Appeal and recently appointed a member of New York City's Youth Bureau by Mayor O'Dwyer and Mrs. Philip Crowlie of Huron, S. Dak., who was voted the "typical American housewife" by OPA. Mrs. Boettiger, who makes her home in Phoenix, Ariz., is owner and editor with her husband of the Arizona Times.

Although the broadcast will highlight Democratic Women's Day, it was emphasized that the program will be nonpartisan and will be directed to all women. It will mark the first time a President of the United States has made a broadcast addressed especially to women.

The 15-minute program, which will be heard over NBC, Mutual and ABC networks, is scheduled for 1:30 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. President Truman will speak from the White House and the three women will broadcast from their homes.

Meeting with party leaders and Democratic women's groups in 17 States, Mrs. Woodhouse will stress the role of women in the coming elections and the need for being well informed on the issues.

"I especially want the women to be well informed on the close relationship between the domestic situation in the United States and what is happening—and is going to happen—in the world at large," declared Mrs. Woodhouse.

She also will urge full support of President Truman's Citizens' Food Committee and emphasize its influence on the political situation abroad.

Sculptor's Art To Be on View At Tea Party

IVAN MESTROVIC, Yugoslav sculptor who is in Washington for the opening of his exhibition at the Corcoran Art Gallery, will be guest of honor at a tea this afternoon at the gallery for a private view before the opening tomorrow. Members of the association of the gallery and their guests will be present today.

At the tea table will be Mrs. Corcoran Thom, Mrs. C. Powell Minnigerode, Miss Anne Dudley Flannery and Mrs. Breckenridge Long. Trustees of the gallery and guests who are expected to attend are C. C. Glover, jr., R. M. Kauffman, C. Powell Minnigerode, Dr. Oliver LaGore, John S. Flannery, Breckenridge Long, Mrs. Dean Acheson, Dr. Victor Alfaro, Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, Mrs. James Houghteling, Mrs. McCook Knox, Mrs. Chester W. ## Widowed Six Months, Left Fairly Secure Financially, Woman Has Problem in Son, 25, Who Tries to Wrest Possession of Car

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a widow. My husband passed away about six months ago, leaving me fairly secure financially. At least, I shall never want if I manage carefully.

Here is my problem: I have two sons, unmarried, one 25 and the other nearly 20. Also I have a car which I do not drive myself, although both of my sons do.

They are both employed and pay me board and room; but the older boy thinks he should have first claim to the car and in fact he does have it most of the time, except when my younger son drives me out, which is very seldom as Tom keeps the keys—and regardless of what I say, he is always driving his friends about.

Have Peace at Any Price, Friends Say

IF I SAY I want the car for tonight or this afternoon, he has a fit of bad humor and says he's the only one who does anything for the car. I will admit that he cleans the car, etc., but that's for his own convenience.

Now he is trying to force me to sell him the car and I don't want to, as I can afford to own the car, use it in moderation and pay for repairs. Also I enjoy driving out occasionally, and I can't see the justice of expecting me to give up my ownership rights and pleasure in the car when I don't really need the money, but couldn't in conscience afford a new car for my own and the younger son's use.

However, my friends tell me that I ought to sell him the car rather than argue. Yet if I were to do so my younger son would never dare touch it; and also I feel that if Tom got his way in this matter, something else would crop up where he would have other fault to find. I know of two other widows who had the same trouble, and they sold their cars to keep peace, they say. What is your advice? V. W.

Don't Yield to Hijacker Demand

DEAR V. W.: In all probability, Tom is not unmindful of the spineless example of those other two widows you know, who suffered themselves to be harassed into forced sale of their car, in tired surrender to filial selfishness.

Doubtless his hopes of putting over the piratical scheme derive from his knowledge that other young bucks in the community drove a similar self-serving bargain by dint of wearing down mama after dad died.

Well, it's time you set the community a better example of dealing with greedy youth. In my opinion, it were folly to yield to Tom's hijacker demand. In your circumstances, it's plain common sense to nail down, hang on to and conserve, for maximum length of service, every bit of property you own.

Son's Attitude Is Unfilial

MOREOVER, Tom's attitude is so unfilial—from a grown man to his widowed mother—and so would-be opportunistic at your expense, that he forfeits title even to sentimental concessions concerning borrower's use of your car.

In my judgment, you would be showing the right kind of spunk and business head, dealing the proper reaction to his surly ingrate presumption, if you were to deny him that privilege hereinafter—and keep the car keys in your own possession, except when lending them to your younger son: your better friend and obliging chauffeur.

If Tom, at 25, earning his own keep after a fashion—as indeed he should—sets inordinate store upon swanking about the community on wheels when at leisure, then let him buy a car in the market place at market price, if he can afford it. If he can't, let him do without—and learn to live within his means.

M. H.

Ask Anne

Your Questions On Homemaking

Will you print the measurements to use when buying sheets, blankets, and counterpanes. I have three single beds, a youth bed, baby bed, and double bed.

S. C. L.

In buying sheets, figure the length as follows if sheets are sold as "torn size": Length of mattress, plus twice the thickness of mattress, plus a 10-inch allowance for tucking in or folding over the blanket, plus the length of hems at both ends (usually a total of 5 inches), plus 6 inches for shrinkage. If sheets are sold with minimum length stated as "finished size" and pre-shrunk, it's not necessary to include hems and shrinkage in figuring required length. As to the width of the sheets, this is of course determined by the width of the bed. Twenty-four inches wider than the mattress allows for from 5 to 7 inches take-up on each side, depending on the thickness of the mattress, and a 5-inch tuck-in and shrinkage.

To give the best service, a blanket should be long enough to tuck in at the bottom of the mattress and should still reach halfway under the pillow. For the most comfort, it should be at least 10 inches longer and 18 inches wider than the mattress.

One-piece spreads of seersucker, dimity, crocheted, or novelty weaves are usually made 108 inches long and 90 inches (for a double bed) or 72 inches (for a single bed) in width. Tailored spreads should be a full 108 inches in length with a 40-inch (single bed) and a 54-inch (double bed) center panel. The flounce should be from 18 to 22 inches wide depending upon the height of the bed from the floor and on the type of spring and mattress used.

Can you tell me how to prevent or remedy dampness in a basement and storage closet? Articles placed therein become green with mildew after about 14 days. C. B.

Practical for use in drying out small areas, such as storage closets, is calcium chloride. This chemical takes up moisture. Use the solid chloride and place it in an open container in the closet. When it becomes liquid, replace it with fresh chemical. Be sure to keep the door closed so outside air won't get in. You can buy calcium chloride in department or drug stores. This chemical isn't practical for use in large basements or rooms constantly in use. A thorough heating is about the only way to dry them out. Perhaps applying a special alkali-resisting paint to walls and floors of your basement would help to keep it drier.

Flat Heels Get the St. Louis Vote

According to St. Louis shoe stylists, the old adage, "long dresses—high heels," is no longer true.

Results of a fashion preference survey just conducted by shoe stylists in that city show that women are thoroughly sold on flat-heel comfort and intend to stay that way. Designers point out that a generation of flat-wearers has emerged since the very low heel first became fashionable. Many an 18-year-old's heel has never left the ground. For these fledglings, going suddenly into high heels is like going to a damsel's prison. And their answer is a very flat no.

In the course of their fashion preference survey, St. Louis stylists also analyzed the effect of the long hemline trend on the spectator heel. This medium-height heel is rapidly losing ground.

Workshop Studies Means Of Cutting Food Budget

By Lucia Brown

Do you hate fish because your mother whipped you the same day it was served once long ago?

Does little Jimmy scream at the sight of turnips because his favorite uncle won't eat them?

Does your husband never drink milk because he was raised in a big, milk-drinking family where he could assert his independence by turning up his nose at it?

These were some of the questions pondered by housewives attending the opening sessions of the Red Cross Food Costs Workshop this week, as they discussed ways and means of cutting the family food budget and raising its nutritional level.

Try Substitutes

Overcoming a few food prejudices—with the aid of tact and psychology—may be one way to cut food costs, pointed out Mrs. Milton Miles, instructor at the workshop at the Walsh House. Another is the substitution of certain nutritious and generally liked foods sometimes forgotten in the rush if the housewife doesn't plan buying carefully.

During the three weeks course, each member of the class will work out a sample food order aimed at supplying her family with plenty of nutritious and satisfying food at a weekly cost of $4 to $4.50 for moderately active adults; $5 for adolescents, and $3 to $4 for youngsters under 13.

One member of the class is young Mrs. Paul A. Thomas 2d, whose husband is a former GI now attending George Washington University as a premedical student. Mrs. Thomas figures that by wise planning, she can reduce food costs for herself, her husband, and infant son from around $17 a week to about $9.80.

The Market List

In figuring out her marketing order, Mrs. Thomas is using the U. S. Department of Agriculture's "Family Food Plan at Moderate Cost." She estimates that her small family needs the following for a well-balanced diet in the course of a week:

|---|---|
| Milk | 15 quarts |
| Potatoes | 7 pounds |
| Dry beans, peas, peanut butter | 12 ounces |
| Citrus fruit, tomatoes | 5½ pounds |
| Green and yellow vegetables | 7½ pounds |
| Other vegetables, fruits | 8½ pounds |
| Eggs | 1 dozen |
| Meat, poultry, fish | 6 pounds |
| Flour and cereals | 5 pounds |
| Fats and oils | 2 pounds |
| Sugar, syrup and preserves | 1½ pounds |

With these amounts firmly in mind, Mrs. Thomas plans to shop around to find what fruits, vegetables, meats, forms of milk, and other foods will supply her family's needs most inexpensively. She'll use the information thus gained to complete her weekly marketing order, blanks for which are provided at the workshop.

"We have to have a lot of milk, but I figure we can cut our costs by using skim milk—fresh and powdered—and evaporated milk, along with fresh whole milk," she said.

"Skim milk's only 4c or 8c a quart, you know, compared with 19c to 21c for whole milk," she continued. "The dry skim milk—and there are stores here where you can buy it—costs only about 6c a quart, and evaporated figures out at about 14c a quart.

To Use Margarine

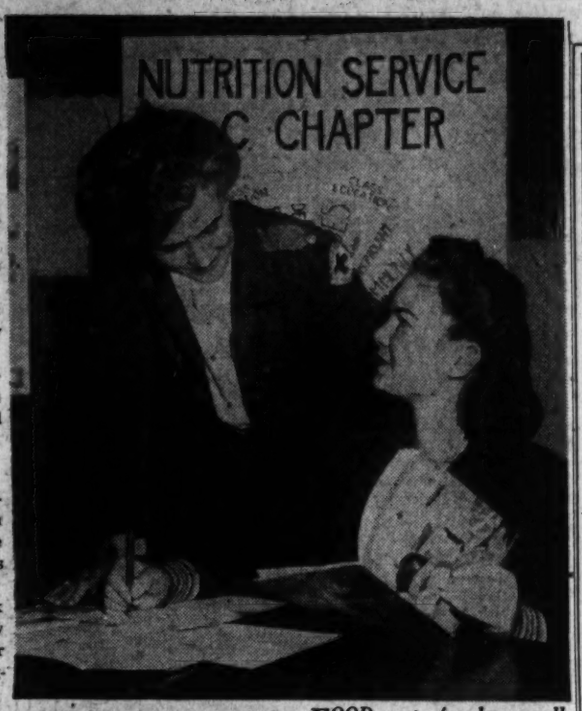
"To make up for using skim milk, I'm going to use more oleomargarine in cooking to give us needed fats," Mrs. Thomas planned. "I'm using more fish, cheese, and peanut butter now, instead of so much meat. Then, too, I'm going to buy more carefully so we won't have things left over that spoil. All in all, I think it's going to make a big difference in our food budget, to say nothing of helping out on the President's 'stop waste' campaign."



By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post.

Using dry skim milk in cooking—at an estimated cost of 6 cents a quart—is one way to cut food costs. Mrs. Marlin L. Miller of 505 18th st. nw. demonstrates at the Red Cross Food Costs Workshop how the milk can be added in dry form in making cookies. Mrs. Miller estimates that she has cut food costs for her family of three by $40 a month through careful planning in the last few months

FOOD costs for her small family will be cut from around $17 to $9.80 a week by the marketing plan being worked out here by Mrs. Paul A. Thomas, wife of a premedical student at George Washington University and mother of an infant son. Mrs. Milton Miles, chairman of the nutrition service for the District of Columbia Chapter of the Red Cross, assists her with the plan at the Red Cross Food Costs Workshop

How to Cook Rice

Cook rice in as little water as possible. It retains more flavor and has firmer texture that way than when much water is used. Boil rice gently and keep the heat low. Rapid boiling may break the grains and also the rice may boil over. Cover the pan loosely.

Use for Cartons

Savonnerie Rugs

the beauty of the original French designs— interpreted for you by the modern Mohawk Mills

In these beautiful rugs, both design and the gentle mellow colorings are true to the antique pieces of which they are replicas . . . bringing to your home and to settings in French Provincial, Early American and Colonial, much of the texture and appearance of the French hand-tufted carpets. Examine their deep, resilient pile of fine wool yarns, the wool back, the mellow rose or sand beige predominating in the two patterns. Consider that these rugs were made by Mohawk in substantial quantity to fill orders of several leading retailers of carpets . . . since they are ordinarily made only to special order, this gives you the benefit of prices much lower than usual.

GOSH, UNCLE PHIL - DID MR. IGOE REALLY MAKE YOU A MEMBER OF THE BOARD—AND SUPERVISOR OF SALES?
WELL, NOT EXACTLY, MICHAEL—BUT A BUSINESS CARD SHOULD ALWAYS BE IMPRESSIVE!
DO YOU THINK GILHOOLEY HAS HEARD THAT YOU'RE OUT HUSTLING FOR IGOE, PHIL?
I HAVEN'T SEEN HIDE OR HAIR OF HIM, SERGEANT—BUT IF HE HASN'T HEARD, HE SOON WILL!
Y-YOU MEAN PHIL FINN IS SELLING FOR IGOE? A-AND YOU'VE ORDERED YOUR COAL FROM HIM?
THAT'S RIGHT, GILHOOLEY—HE'S AN OLD FRIEND OF MINE!
I THINK A LOT OF THE OTHER BOYS HAVE BOUGHT FROM HIM, TOO—YOU SEE THEY KNOW HE ISN'T A CHISELER!

WINNIE WINKLE

SAY THERE--YOU JUST DROPPED A NAIL! TRY AND BE MORE CAREFUL!
I HOPE YOU'RE NOT CUTTING OFF TOO MUCH! LUMBER IS SO EXPENSIVE!
BETTER PICK UP THESE WINDOW FRAMES - THEY'LL GET BROKEN LYING AROUND LIKE THIS!
HELLO, MR. WRIGHT! YOU'D BETTER CALL OFF YOUR WIFE! THE MEN ARE ALL TALKING OF QUITTING THIS JOB!

DOTTY

MM--I DON'T KNOW WHETHER I LIKE THESE LONG SKIRTS OR NOT, DOTTY-- OH, DADDY! THE SITTER IS HERE!!
COME IN, CONNIE--
SAY CONNIE, YOU HAVEN'T FALLEN FOR THIS LONG DRESS CRAZE HAVE YOU?!
WHY, OF COURSE, MR. D--DIDN'T YOU NOTICE?
--I'M WEARING MY SHIRT TAIL A LITTLE LONGER NOW!!

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

"The Pause That Refreshes" Backfires on Papa

Our bus had stopped on Mount Vernon Memorial hwy. to pick up passengers. Idly, we watched the man who was pushing the baby buggy along the road.

An infant rode inside the buggy, beside a huge sack of groceries. An older child was draped across the push bar. In his free hand, papa carried a carton of cokes.

Just as our bus stopped, the sack of groceries toppled in wild disorder, and the baby lost the balloon with which he had been playing.

What happened in the next ten seconds is hard to describe.

Papa set down his carton of cokes, grabbed for the falling groceries, told the baby not to cry, warned the older child not to chase the balloon out into the road, picked up the cokes, and chased the balloon himself.

Apparently he wasn't aware that he was carrying the drinks until he was almost upon the balloon. At that moment the carton broke, and five of the six bottles splattered against the highway.

EXPLANATION

Thanks to those of you who were kind enough to call up Wednesday night to ask what had happened to my "Post Preview" Broadcast.

The WINX engineers tell me that the equipment conked out shortly after 11 o'clock, which means that after the first few minutes I was talking into a dead mike.

Unfortunately for me, dead mikes look exactly the same as live ones. I didn't know.

So I talked to myself—and made a wonderful impression.

One of our better known restaurant owners vows he'll never again consider his own waitresses inept.

"The other day," he confides, "I went into a competitor's place to sample the food. When I asked whether I could have a minute steak, the waitress said: 'Sure, we'll cook it as long as you tell us to'."

PERSONAL NOTES

Bill Foster, 157 Irvington st. sw.: You're a good reporter. Your recollection of your accidental visit to the Russian Embassy is remarkably detailed. Glad to hear that they weren't as gruff as our original version made it appear.

S. L. K., Second National Bank: Thanks, the tokens are en route to Children's Hospital.

Ruby L. Gilbert, 3900 14th st. nw.: Thanks, he's been taken care of.

Mildred Sandler: The Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society isn't collecting clothing here, but you can take your contribution to the switchboard operator at 1131 Spring rd. nw. The clothes will be forwarded to DP's and orphans in Europe.

Peggy Dudley, 1712 16th st. nw.: Certainly Mrs. Spofford was "unflied." It's our composing room that's "unruffled."

Leonard Lyons

Leonard Has This Column on Ice

NEW YORK—Unlike the newspapermen of story book and films, I don't subscribe to the Show-Must-Go-On school of journalism whose proponents insist that when your wife has to go to the hospital just when you're about to write a story, she goes alone and you write the story. I doubt that any story is worth it. A Washington telegraph operator once garbled the transmission of a column I wrote and it missed the first edition. Somehow, day broke the next morning, the Stock Exchange opened for business, Saroyan wrote another play, the sun set and Tommy Manville married again. Normalcy reigned.

And again, unlike the gentlemen of the fiction press, I don't think I could write a column while waiting outside the delivery room of a hospital. Maybe I could, but I'd rather not try. I've written columns o. planes and trains and ships, on mountain tops and in the hot tropics, and once even by flashlight in a building in Brussels where the United States Army billeted me.

But I'd rather not set up my typewriter in a maternity wing. Hence this column, which frankly is a reserve piece, written for emergency use. The anticipated emergency is a rush trip to Polyclinic Hospital to await the arrival of our fourth baby.

The uninitiate might suggest that after three such experiences I should be inured. But veteran fathers will appreciate the fact that although at Polyclinic there is a Lyons Lane, so amed by the nurses who watched me wear a rut in the carpet while pacing the corridor at the rate of 112 steps to the minute, with two encores, the reaction is the same each time. Like breaking a leg, or writing a best-seller, for the fourth time, the pain and anxiety are repeated at the same level.

Everything's the same, including the speculation among my friends about the baby's gender. If I were a gambling man I'd have made book and taken all the odds they offered, and made an easy fortune in a coup which would have been recorded as The Famous Pre-Natal Hedge.

Drew Pearson, whose sponsors claim that his predictions are 82 per cent accurate, vowed that in this case he's 100 per cent accurate and offered to bet that it would be a girl. The United States Supreme Court predicted a boy, 6 to 2—with Frankfurter abstaining and Douglas and Black, of course, dissenting.

Horace Stoneham, owner of the New York Giants, is positive that we'll have another son. "A fourth boy will round out the infield," he said, "and the Giants sure can use one for 1964." Sylvia, reminding him that our venture was only in parenthood, added: "What am I—a mother or a minor league farm club supplying the majors?"

Mayor O'Dwyer said last week that in his personal, but not official, opinion it will be a girl. Winthrop Rockefeller made a typical Rockefellerish prediction—broad, sweeping and expansive. "Twins," said Mr. Rockefeller—an arbitrary statement which he was willing to support with a 10-cent bet. When Laraine Day, in Hollywood last month, said: "It will be a girl," Leo Durocher nodded meekly, restraining all the fire and argument with which he once baited the opposition at Ebbets Field. "I go along. I'm not disputing nobody no more," said Durocher. "And besides, if Laraine's right, that will be one umpire less to argue with."

4:48 a. m.: It's a seven pound, 12 ounce boy!
